CHICAGO, Sept. 9 — Five more $20 bills from the missing Greenleaf ransom money have been found in the Federal Reserve Bank here, the Post-Dispatch learned today, following last night's announcement of the discovery of seven in the bank last Wednesday.

Donald S. Hostetter, agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation office here, would not confirm nor deny the finding of the five bills today. Including these five, the total number of $20 bills located here is 20. The total discovered throughout the country is 27.

Search at Bank Goes On.

A full staff of Federal Reserve employees and a squad of FBI agents continued their search today for more of the bills at the bank here. Hostetter declined to say whether or not those that have turned up could be traced to member banks. However, the Post-Dispatch learned, the newly found bills were in the sorting phase and could not be traced.

Earlier yesterday Hostetter had announced the finding of two bills here last Tuesday. They also could not be traced.

The first 15 of the 27 bills that have turned up thus far, the Post-Dispatch learned, came from only four of the many packets of $20 bills that were turned over to the kidnapers of Bobby Greenleaf. It was not determined which packets the bills found Wednesday and today came from.

In Packets of 100.

When employees of the Commerce Trust Co. of Kansas City assembled the $600,000 ransom money, they packed the $20 bills in packets of 100. The $10 bills were also in packets of 100. None of the missing $10 bills has turned up.

More than 150 packets of bills were included in the missing $303,720 portion of the ransom, the Post-Dispatch was told. The FBI is convinced through periodic checks it has been making that the missing ransom bills were not put into circulation until about a month ago when it was first announced that they had started showing up.

It was considered significant that none of the bills found could be traced to anyone in St. Louis, where the money was discovered missing after the arrest of Carl Austin Hall and his companion, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady.

The bills that have turned up are definitely those of the missing ransom money and not bills that Hall and Mrs. Heady might have spent on their flight after murdering the 6-year-old boy. Neither is it money they spent after arriving in St. Louis, the FBI has established.

Kidnapers Executed.

Hall and Mrs. Heady were arrested by former Police Lt. Louis Shoulters and Patrolman Elmer Dolan. The kidnapers died in the Missouri gas chamber. Shoulters and Dolan are serving sentences for perjury.

The June-term circuit court grand jury, in winding up its work today, strongly urged that the police pay-off inquiry be continued by successor grand juries "until every possible avenue of evidence has been exhausted."

In its final report to Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin, the current grand jury, in discussing the alleged pay-offs to some St. Louis policemen by brothel operators, said:

"We are not reporting any conclusion or opinions of this jury because unnecessary disclosure might result in injuring the future conduct and the proper conclusion of this vital investigation."

The grand jury pointed out that since starting its investigation in June it heard almost 100 witnesses, whose testimony required a transcript of more than 2000 pages, in connection with the alleged pay-offs.

"Due to the fact that this investigation is vitally important to the people of this city, this grand jury worked through the summer without recess for the full 14 weeks of its term," the report stated.

Urges Pressing Inquiry.

"In order to thoroughly pursue the many serious questions raised by these accusations, it has been necessary for this jury to sit in special sessions on several occasions, in addition to the regular sessions."

"While we felt that we cannot conclude this investigation, we strongly urge that it be presented to as many grand juries as necessary until every possible avenue of evidence has been exhausted."

Judge McLaughlin, before dismissing the jurors and thanking them for their services, asked Donald Carpenter, the foreman, whether the jury had voted any indictments in the police pay-off inquiry.

"No," Carpenter replied. "There was insufficient evidence."

JURY ASSAILS SEWER DISTRICT ON HANDLING OF

Find Ways to Get

The Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District was severely criticized by the St. Louis county grand jury today for its handling of the Maline creek pollution problem.

In a four-page partial report to Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss, submitted at 12:45 a.m. after a 12-hour session, the jury charged that the district:

1. By its failure to levy an ad valorem tax this year had made it impossible for the district to take over operation and maintenance of sewers last July 1, as originally planned.

2. Made no effort to enforce a year-old contract between Carsonville Sewer District and the city of Berkeley for a sewer connection to the Berkeley treatment plant.

3. Failed to examine means other than a general obligation bond issue for financing a trunk sewer for the Maline creek area, particularly use of the special tax bill method.

4. Failed to determine whether it could legally use nearly $178,000 in escrow funds in its possession for Maline creek sewer construction.

5. Has failed to make full use of existing plans, drafted by engineers in 1952, for trunk sewer construction in the Maline creek watershed.

L. E. Ordeheide, district executive director, who spent several hours before the grand jury, denied generally the charges of mishandling the Maline creek situation, and insisted the district was moving rapidly to correct existing conditions.

The jury also charged that the Walton Road District treatment plant, near the head of Maline creek, failed to operate for a 10-day period in the last month while its engines were on vacation and that "no satisfactory explanation of this laxity has been given to this jury."

FRENCH BELIEVE MOROCCO PEACE CAN BE ACHIEVED BEFORE MONDAY

Moulay Arafat Is Said to Have Agreed to Quit Throne for Regency Under Supporter of Ben Youssef.

PARIS, Sept. 9 (AP)—French hopes mounted today that a Moroccan settlement would be reached before Monday, in time to avert further bloodshed in the violence-torn North African protectorate.

Officials of Premier Faure's government said an agreement was in sight and an announcement would be made "in a short time."

A high French source at United Nations headquarters in New York told reporters Sultan Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafat by Monday will name a staunch supporter of former Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef, Si Bekkai, to head a regency council for Morocco. Si Bekkai is the former Pasha of Sefrou.

Moulay Arafat, the source at the U.N. continued, will retire to the International Zone of Tangier, leaving the council to rule until France and the Moroccans settle their quarrel over the occupancy of the throne.

Exiled to Madagascar, the French exiled Ben Youssef to Madagascar in 1953 because of his nationalist sympathies, replacing him with Moulay Arafat. The action made the former sultan's cause the chief rallying point for the nationalists.

Under Faure's plan, Ben Youssef would be allowed to live in France until his future status is settled. Meanwhile, the regency council would form a government representing all Moroccan factions to negotiate for a more home rule in the protectorate.

Faure himself set Sept. 12 as the deadline for a settlement when he began negotiations with the nationalists last month. Subsequently, a nationalist group in Casablanca, Morocco's biggest city, called a general strike for that date if Moulay Arafat was still on the throne.

Many in Morocco fear the strike, if it materializes, will touch off another blood bath similar to the uprising Aug. 20-21 in which 132 French and pro-French Moslems and more than 1000 Moroccans were killed.

Negotiators on all sides intensified their activities as the target date for the settlement approached.

Si Bekkai and Sidi Ben Slimane, former Pasha of Fez, were due back in Paris tomorrow from conferences with Ben Youssef in Madagascar.

Special Envoys, Gen. Georges Catroux and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay's chief administrative aid, Henri Yrissou, were still on Madagascar, seeking the former sultan's cooperation with the French plan.

In Cairo, the exiled leader of the Istiqlal Independence party, Allal El Fassi, finally agreed to the proposal for a regency. Previously he had demanded Ben Youssef's unconditional return.

Anti-nationalists also were busy. Rightist deputies from parties in Faure's coalition scheduled meetings in Paris to seek ways of keeping Moulay Arafat on the throne. In Rabat, the Moroccan capital, the Sultan's supporters urged him to appoint a new cabinet to forestall his departure.

However, the French source at the U.N. indicated his government was sure Moulay Arafat would step down "to help the cause of peace." Allowing him to designate Si Bekkai as head of the regency council would be a face-saving device.

In Casablanca, police said five Moroccans were killed and about 15 injured yesterday in the worst outbreak of nationalist violence in recent weeks. Six Europeans, including a nurse, were among the injured.

STRIKES, LOCKOUT IN FRENCH FACTORIES AND SHIPYARDS

PARIS, Sept. 9 (UP)—Labor and management called a series of walkouts and a lockout at key factories and shipyards in France today.

The manufacturers' syndicate at Nantes said it would lock out workers from the factories there today. Machine shops and naval equipment factories are the chief industries. The lockout was called because of persistent work dislocation dating back to Aug. 23.

There were calls for strikes at Brest, Auxerre, Angers, Lille, Dunkirk, Le Havre, Montellier and Cholet, sites of shipyards and metal works. The strikes were for pay boosts and higher holiday bonuses.

Radford Talks With President, Denies Cut in Defense Spending

ADM. ARTHUR W. RADFORD, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, with PRESIDENT EISENHOWER at Denver today for a report on the national security situation.

Admiral Says There Will Be No Changes in Basic Military Program.

DENVER, Sept. 9 (AP)—Arthur W. Radford said after a conference with President Eisenhower today that there will be no changes in the basic military program calling for defense spending of about $37.750,000,000 this fiscal year.

Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told reporters that reports of a cut contemplated in that program "are not correct."

Radford, the President's top military advisor, also differed with former President Truman. A reporter told the Admiral that Truman, in a Chicago speech today, had said the Eisenhower administration was making "unjustified and most dangerous cuts" in the nation's military power.

"I don't know of any such actions and I think I would know about them," Radford replied, adding that he wanted to make it clear that he had not read Truman's speech.

In Chicago, Truman replied that Radford "would know about it if he read the newspapers. I'm glad he says there aren't many cuts."

"Some of the cuts are already made," he said. "The bad ones are contemplated."

"Sound Program."

"I think we have basically a very sound military program," Radford said. "From the standpoint of security, the country was never better off."

There was no explanation immediately available here or in Washington of Radford's use of the $37,750,000,000 defense spending figure.

Reuben B. Robertson Jr., Acting Secretary of Defense said in Washington earlier this week over-all spending by the armed services is "still expected to be approximately 34 billion dollars as originally estimated" last January. Robertson used that figure again today in a letter to Senator Chavez (Dem.), New Mexico, chairman of the Senate Military Appropriations subcommittee.

The official midyear budget revision announced last month said spending for major national security programs would total $37,700,000,000. It broke down that figure like this: defense spending 34 billion, for-

MILWAUKEE POLIO EPIDEMIC BRINGS ROW OVER SHOTS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 9 (UP)—Physicians and city officials differed today on how to handle an "overwhelming" demand for gamma globulin to fight Milwaukee's polio epidemic.

The child welfare committee of the Milwaukee County Medical Society recommended that an order postponing the opening of Milwaukee schools be lifted to ease "public hysteria" and make mass inoculations easier.

But City Health Commissioner E. R. Krumbiegel stuck to his ruling that city schools will not open for children in kindergarten and the first six grades until Wednesday at the earliest. He also announced a plan for administering the 600,000 cubic centimeters of gamma globulin rushed to Milwaukee by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Meanwhile, 13 new polio cases were reported in Milwaukee county to bring its total for the year to 415. Thirty-nine persons have died.

PAKISTAN-AFGHANISTAN SETTLEMENT REPORTED

KARACHI, Sept. 9 (AP)—Official sources reported today that Pakistan and Afghanistan have reached a settlement of differences which have strained their relations for more than five months. Terms were not disclosed.

Anti-Pakistan rioting occurred in Kabul, Afghanistan capital, last March 31 over all of West Pakistan in a single administrative unit, including the northwest frontier province which Afghanistan claims for an "independent Pushtoonistan."

This hypothetical state of Pathan tribesmen on both sides of the present Pakistan-Afghanistan border has been a point of contention between the two countries almost since the founding of Pakistan in 1948.

SUSPECTED PLOT CHIEF REPORTED SEIZED BY PERON

Gen. Videla, 4 Other Army Officers Accused of Rebellion Role.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 9 (UP)—Brig. Gen. Dalmiro Videla Balaguer, suspected leader of a plot against President Peron, was reported captured at an undisclosed interior city today.

Videla and four other Argentine army officers had been the object of a hunt since the alleged plot was discovered in the Rio Cuarto garrison, in western Cordoba province.

An informed source said Videla was brought to Buenos Aires today and placed in custody at the headquarters of the Third Motorized Regiment to await trial.

There was no report of the other four officers who disappeared with Videla.

Besides Videla, the accused officers sought on charges of "conspiring to revolt" are his chief of staff, Col. Juan B. Picca; Lt. Col. Raul Picasso and Carlos Carabba and Maj. Jorge Fernandez.

Disclosure of the alleged conspiracy was made in a brief item published in the newspaper La Epoca. The charges were made by Gen. Maria Sosa Molina, chief military judge.

Reports from Rio Cuarto, in western Cordoba province, where the accused officers were stationed, said they had been overheard plotting an uprising against the government.

Sosa Molina summoned the five officers to appear before a court-martial of the Fourteenth Infantry Regiment at Rio Cuarto before Saturday to defend themselves or face additional charges. At the same time, authorities throughout Argentina were ordered to help track down and capture the men.

La Epoca carried the story in an inconspicuous box on page five of yesterday edition. Other evening newspapers made no mention of the purported conspiracy nor did official radio newscasts.

A naval-air revolt against the Peron government in mid-June was crushed.

FINED FOR CARELESS DRIVING

Cecil Sharp, 9243 Clayton road, Ladue, was fined $25 and costs in magistrate court at St. Charles today on a charge of careless and reckless driving.

He is 17 years old, the son of the late Dr. Cecil A. Z. Sharp, who was shot to death at his home in June 1954.

Young Sharp was arrested near Wentzville Aug. 27 by officers who said he was driving 90 miles an hour.

INQUIRY ORDERED IN PERU-ECUADOR BORDER DISPUTE

4 Powers Guaranteeing Frontier Agreement Decide to Send Military Attaches.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—A commission of military attaches will make an on-the-spot investigation of the Peruvian-Ecuadorian border, Chairman Jose Mora of the council of the Organization of American States said today.

Mora said he had received a telegram to that effect from the representatives of the four powers which guarantee the 1942 border-fixing agreement between the two nations.

The representatives of the four countries met last night in Rio de Janeiro to consider the "tense situation" which has arisen on the border. Ecuador has charged it is in danger of imminent invasion.

Mora, who is Uruguayan ambassador here, reported that the telegram said the military attaches making the study will come from Quito in Ecuador and Lima in Peru. The four nations guaranteeing the 1942 treaty are Argentina, Brazil, Chile and the United States.

The four powers, Mora said, resolved to ask the "consent and co-operation" of Ecuador and Peru so that the commission could carry out its mission.

This is "to verify on the spot if incidents have occurred and if a situation exists which might endanger peace between the two countries."

Mora said he did not know exactly when the commission would begin its work.

In notes to Peru and Ecuador, the four guarantor countries today urged the disputants to take steps to prevent further friction along their frontier.

Ecuador protested to the 21-member OAS council that Peruvian troops and ships are massed on its borders for an attack. The council agreed unanimously to defer action on the protest until it hears from the four-power mediation commission in Rio.

The two nations have been at dagger points off and on since 1941, when Peru invaded Ecuador because of territorial claims.

The treaty of Rio in 1942 settled the dispute and provided for the fixing of the borders between the two nations. The treaty was guaranteed by the United States, Brazil, Argentina and Chile.

A commission of experts from the guarantor powers made surveys of the region and fixed the borders. Under the arrangement, Ecuador lost a portion of the Amazonian region it had claimed.

One portion of the border agreement, however, provided

Physician Says He Persuaded Truman to Cancel Coast Talks

Letter Spikes Reports That Pauley Incident Led to Calling Off California Trip.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—There still is discussion of whether former President Truman canceled his scheduled speeches in California because he was "sore" at somebody or because his physician ordered him to.

Rumors last week had it this way: Truman would not fulfill his engagements because he was angry with his old friend Edwin S. Pauley, California oil man, for having been too cozy with Vice President Richard M. Nixon, during a reception attendant to the opening of a show at Hollywood Bowl.

Truman said there was not a word of truth to it. He said he had to call off the engagements at Los Angeles and San Francisco on his doctor's orders.

Herewith is the text of a letter written to Paul Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, by Dr. Wallace Graham, of Kansas City, the former President's physician, under date of Sept. 2, 1955:

"Dear Mr. Butler: "I am writing in regard to the tentative schedule that President Truman planned to aid in the coming campaign, for the frontier to follow the line of the watershed between the Canapa and Santiago rivers. This line was determined in 1943 by a Brazilian geographer, Dias de Aguiar.

Ecuador has refused to accept this line. The determination of the line, it said, is a matter for the guarantor powers.

Peru says the matter is a purely technical one which already has been solved by technicians. It charges Ecuador with seeking to revise the 1942 treaty.

Meanwhile, both countries claim the area between the two rivers. It is largely swampy jungle, perhaps 6250 miles square.

Peru, ruled by strong-man President Manuel Odría, has a population of around 7,000,000, and a strong little army. Ecuador, with a population of more than 3,000,000, is said to have a somewhat smaller army. Its president is Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra.

PRISONERS RIOT AFTER NEBRASKA SITDOWN STRIKE

Carpenter Shop Afire — Some Convicts Said to Protest Ouster of Superintendent.

LINCOLN, Nebr., Sept. 9 (AP)—Rioting broke out among inmates at the Nebraska men's reformatory this morning, about 24 hours after the institution's superintendent had been fired and replaced.

Prisoners were reported running through the grounds with iron bars and wooden staves. One shot was heard, and an inmate, Luis Morales, San Antonio, Tex., was carried out on a stretcher.

Inmates had been on a sit-down strike all morning, according to Harold Peterson, administrative assistant to the State Board of Control, which supervises all state penal institutions.

The rioting came only minutes after Peterson told reporters inmates had spurned an order to go to work or get into their cell blocks.

Shortly after the rioting began, the reformatory carpenter shop was set afire.

This was the same building where firemen were called last night to put out a blaze which the new superintendent, M. L. Wimberly, said apparently was set as part of a protest against the dismissal of his predecessor, George Morris.

Peterson estimated that from 25 to 50 men were involved in the disturbance but said as many as 150 were sitting in the yard doing nothing. The reformatory has a population of 310.

Peterson said the inmates had grievances about mail and not getting enough beef to eat. Some inmates also were protesting against the ouster of Morris, he said.

State police were called to duty at the reformatory.

CITY JAIL FILTHY AND INSPECTION POLICY IS POOR, GRAND JURY SAYS

Dirty Mattresses, Serving of Cold Food Criticized — Workhouse Termed Clean but Too Old.

The interior of the City Jail is filthy, cold food is served to prisoners in dirty surroundings and proper inspection of articles entering the jail is lacking, the circuit court grand jury reported today.

The scathing report made to Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin, pointed out that the February term grand jury had made many strong recommendations in connection with the jail. Most of the recommendations have not been carried out, the jury declared today.

In the same report, the grand jurors said they found the City Workhouse clean and a reform program being carried out there. But, they said, the physical property showed signs of old age and they declared themselves in complete agreement with the Mayor's Bond Issue Expediting Committee in giving top priority to construction of a new workhouse.

Both institutions have been severely criticized this year and new wardens have been appointed to both. Harold E. Baynes, former Philadelphia penologist, succeeded Warden Clarence Welschman who was fired from the Workhouse post on May 1.

Peter Nicholas, a jail guard officer, became warden of the City Jail July 3, succeeding the late Warden E. E. Hensley.

Heated Wagons Needed. In its report of conditions found at the City Jail, the grand jury said:

"We found that the food that was served to be very good, but the manner of serving left much to be desired. An effort should be made to procure heated serving wagons so the food will be warm when it reaches the upper floors. Some method should be devised to do away with the necessity of sliding trays of food along dirty floors and under the bars."

In another section, the jury stated: "For the most part, the mattresses used by the inmates were filthy and only a few had a sheet. The February term grand jury dealt with inspection of articles entering the jail. This jury finds the lack of a good inspection policy permitted bottles of gin to enter the premises of the jail."

The jury suggested that a section of the Workhouse be used to house women prisoners now held at the jail to relieve overcrowded conditions. This would permit segregation of first offenders from hardened criminals, the report said, and would eliminate "the practice of inmates being forced to sleep on dirty floors where roaches and vermin roam at will."

Recreation Facilities Poor. Warden Baynes was found to have carried out many improvements at the Workhouse, but buildings and equipment were said to be antiquated and recreation facilities poor. The jury recommended that industrial and manual arts be taught prisoners in co-operation with the Board of Education.

The jury was impressed with the cleanliness it found at City Hall, but expressed concern about the practice of storing old records in the basement where they would be quickly destroyed in event of fire. A more suitable location for the Collector's office, now in the basement, also was suggested.

Officials in the Municipal Courts Building, where the jury met, were found to be poorly organized and located. A tour of the offices showed, the report said, that the "Circuit Attorney's office, whose workload has increased tremendously in the past two years, was in an over-crowded condition."

Flushing Out Maline Creek

Water from an 8-inch pipe of the St. Louis County Water Co. gushing into Maline creek at 8100 West Florissant avenue last night as part of an effort by county officials to reduce foul odors and pollution of the stream, which is an open sewer.

SEWER DISTRICT ASSAILED OVER MALINE CREEK

Their said only "out-of-pocket" costs for the operation would be charged. The exact cost could not be immediately determined, he added.

Matthews also ordered that no subdivisions in unincorporated areas be approved when such developments would create serious sewage disposal problems and threaten public health, and directed that occupancy permits be withheld under similar circumstances.

Legality Upheld. The grand jury in its report said it had "carefully examined" past operations of the Metropolitan Sewer District and had found that the Missouri Supreme Court last February upheld legality of the district and its right to levy taxes.

The district board of trustees knew that to get tax revenues it would have to notify county and city officials, but "in spite of this, the board did not levy such a tax, giving as its sole reason the fact that representatives of the city of St. Louis had advised them that legal action would be taken to prevent collection of any tax on the theory that the levy would be discriminatory."

"By this failure to act the board of trustees made it impossible for the district to take over operation and maintenance of sewers as of July 1, 1955, and in effect delayed any such action for one year."

Opposition by the City of St. Louis to a tax levy resulted from a finding in the Supreme Court opinion that the district's action last year in levying 2 cents on each $100 assessed valuation in the city and 3 cents in the county was unconstitutional. Basis for the differing amount was the lower rate of assessed valuation in the county. The court held that the tax rate must be the same throughout the district.

Trustees' View. John P. McCammon, district general counsel, said the trustees decided to continue operation in the current year without levying a tax to prevent possibility of the districts hands being tied by the litigation threatened by St. Louis. Meanwhile, studies are being made of how to raise revenue by other means, he added.

On the Carsonville-Berkeley contract, the jury said it had been signed in July 1954, but that no part of the work has been started. Engineers estimate that the $8000 job could be finished in a month, the jury reported.

Ordelle said there was a question as to whether the metropolitan district could enforce the Carsonville-Berkeley contract, but that the trustees last week had authorized McCammon to take whatever legal steps were indicated.

The district formally asked the Carsonville body about four weeks ago to go ahead with the construction, Ordelle said. The metropolitan district did not learn until this summer that there had been no action on the contract, he said.

Commenting on the grand jury's point about sewer financing, Ordelle said the board did not seriously consider the tax bill method because it was more expensive and did not allow residents to vote on proposals.

"We believe the general obligation bond method is the logical one for a project the size of Maline, because it gives people in the area an opportunity to decide," he said.

On use of the 1952 engineering plans, Ordelle previously had said that recent subdivision development made the plans obsolete and also that the district now was considering combination storm and sanitary sewers rather than a sanitary trunk alone.

'Strike' for Bond Issue. County Planning Director M. Eugene Baughman charged in a statement today that the Sewer District is "on strike," permitting creeks to become polluted "so that the people will vote for a bond issue for sewer construction."

"Although the district still requires subdividers to put up funds to guarantee sewage facilities, it is not doing anything with these funds," he asserted. Baughman said that the funds held by the district, totaling about $377,000, referred to in the grand jury report, could be used in the Maline watershed, provided they use benefited the subdivisions which put them up.

Commenting on the grand jury's statement that Maline creek is a "health menace," Dr. Domke told the Post-Dispatch that the County Health Department has acted within the limits of its authority and jurisdiction to eliminate public health problems arising from inadequate sewage disposal.

He said, however, that his jurisdiction is limited to unincorporated parts of the county, and that any legal action in public health matters is the responsibility of the county prosecuting attorney, acting on Health Department recommendations.

Many sewage problems have a history of 30 or 40 years, going back long before the Health Department was set up, Dr. Domke said. He said the health hazard in Maline creek basically was no worse now than five or even 10 years ago, even though the volume of sewage has increased.

In one respect, he added, conditions in the area have improved. Raw sewage, which in many places used to flow, literally, in the streets of communities, now is concentrated in the creek and much of it is at least partly treated, he said.

He said that he and other county authorities recognized several years ago that trunk sewers were the only answer to the country's pollution problem. Septic tanks and treatment plants were simply inadequate, he said, and officials have concentrated on trying to get sewers constructed.

Crestwood Complaints. Meanwhile, McCammon, representing district trustees, heard vociferous complaints from another quarter last night at a meeting of Crestwood residents, who live in the Gravois creek watershed in South St. Louis county.

The meeting, at Grant School, U.S. Highway 66 and Grant road, was called by Mayor Oliver J. Wilkins of Crestwood to present to the district a petition urging the board to form a subdistrict for the Gravois creek watershed for construction of a trunk sewer. Residents complained last night that odors from treatment plant discharge in the creek were both obnoxious and unhealthy.

WANDERING BOY, 4, IDENTIFIED; DOUBT ABOUT CUSTODY

Police today were attempting to determine who is responsible for custody of a 4-year-old boy found Wednesday night wandering in the 700 block of South Broadway. He was identified last night as Robert Russell.

Miss Viola Eastwood, 1025 Morrison avenue, identified a photograph of the boy published yesterday's Post-Dispatch. She said he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Russell, who formerly lived in St. Louis, and that she had cared for him for awhile after the parents separated.

Police also received a call from Sheriff Clay Mullins of Farmington, Mo., who said a man and woman living at Valley Mines, Mo., brought the boy into his office last Tuesday. They wanted the sheriff to take the boy off their hands. Mullins said. The boy was left in their care last April, they said, by the father.

Miss Eastwood said the boy had suffered a spinal injury as a baby and was unable to talk.

CITES DRY SPELL, URGES WATERING OF TREES, SHRUBS

Evergreen plants, shrubs and trees should be watered now to offset more than a month of exceptionally dry weather and a three-year cycle of below normal rainfall, August P. Beilman, manager of the Gray Summit Arboretum of Missouri Botanical Garden, said today.

"Lack of subsurface moisture as a result of the deficiency in normal rainfall recently is once again endangering practically all forms of plant life," Beilman said. "We are strongly advising people to start soaking outdoor plants immediately if they want to sustain plant life."

"This area is experiencing a drought cycle which began three years ago when for the entire year of 1952, only 26.7 inches of precipitation fell instead of the normal of 37.86 inches," Beilman said. "In 1953, we had a record low of 22.98 inches, a full 14 inches below normal, and last year we were short seven inches. We are already about 20 per cent low on rainfall this year with just slightly over three months to go."

THIEF HOLDS UP STORE CLERK WITH TOY PISTOL

Woolworth Employees Chase Robber Who Flees With $650 in Collection Bag.

Police today were searching for a man who robbed a woman employee of the F. W. Woolworth Co. store at Eighth and Olive streets late yesterday using a toy pistol, which he left in the store. He fled with about $650.

Mrs. Bernadine Hillebrand, an office clerk, told police she had just collected money from cash registers on the first floor of the store and was carrying the money to a second floor office when the robber stopped her on the stairway.

The money was in a bag which she had tied around her neck with a ribbon. The robber said: "I'll take that bag." With that he took it from her and turned to another employee, Mrs. Virginia Cash, a waitress, and said, "Stand still or I'll shoot."

When he ran from the store several employees followed. They saw him run north on Eighth and enter a Black & White taxicab on Pine street. The cab turned north on Seventh street.

In another holdup last night Charles Greenlee, an attendant at a filling station at 3325 Chouteau avenue, lost $70 to a Negro who pushed him into a wash room. As the robber was leaving, a motorist pulled up for gasoline. The thief told the driver "the man will be out in a minute."

J. W. Borders, a clerk in a drug store at 2959 Sheridan avenue, reported to police that a robber held him up and took the contents of a cash register. From under a counter he took a revolver belonging to the store. The amount of money stolen was not determined.

2 DRIVERS, MOTORCYCLIST FINED; LICENSES SUSPENDED

Fines of $100 each and 90-day suspensions of their drivers' licenses were assessed against two motorists and a motorcycle operator today after they were found guilty of drunken driving by Provisional Police Judge Richard H. Hatton.

The defendants were Andrew Thompson, a chauffeur, 10525 Merf. road, Overland; Murrell G. Rodgers, a salesman, 5439 Cologne avenue, and Charles F. Wason, a chauffeur, 4103 West Pine boulevard, the motorcycle operator.

All three also were fined $25 each for careless driving while Watson drew an additional $25 penalty for peace disturbance and Rodgers a similar fine for leaving the scene of an accident. Watson appealed.

Country Doctor and Daughter Found Starving Amidst Wealth

She Ends Life, Taking Sleeping Pills as Officers Break Into Okawville Home.

The town people of Okawville, Ill., learned with surprise today of a long-secret tragedy in the life of Dr. Herman Schmidt, an old-fashioned country doctor who had served them more than 50 years.

His 45-year-old spinster daughter, Ruth, died yesterday in the Alton State Hospital of an overdose of sleeping pills, taken as authorities broke into their home Monday night and found them starving in the midst of wealth — $27,807 in Government bonds and cash. Both were suffering from malnutrition. Dr. Schmidt was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville, where he was found to be suffering from a kidney ailment. It was his moaning that attracted neighbors to the house and resulted in the breaking down of the door—which was fastened with three locks—over his daughter's violent protest.

Town Marshal Lee Hill led the way. Just as the door gave way, he said, Miss Schmidt swallowed a handful of sleeping pills. Stuffed in the front of her dress were $27,000 in $100 government bonds and $807 in cash.

The bonds and currency were in several packets, tied up in a soiled rag. There was hardly any food in the house, a five-room stucco building, and it was evident that the doctor had not been getting proper care. Neighbors had noticed that his daughter ordinarily bought groceries in the smallest amounts—sometimes nothing but two winners—but they had not known of the plight of the pair.

Dr. Schmidt, 82 years old, has been, in semi-retirement, but attended patients occasionally. His wife died last February after being an invalid for 10 years. The daughter seldom left the house and never had been treated in an institution.

She was regarded by townspeople as eccentric. She sometimes took a pet cat for a walk on a leash of string. Miss Schmidt and her father often dined at a restaurant a block from their home. While he waited in his automobile she would order one sandwich, one piece of pie and one portion of ice cream. Then she returned to the car and they shared the food.

The doctor's fees were always modest. He was not known to have come into any sudden wealth, and it was generally believed that the money had been accumulated gradually over many years.

He and his daughter had always been on friendly terms with their neighbors, although little was seen of them. She was believed to have been using sleeping pills for some time.

Okawville is 35 miles south-east of St. Louis with a population of about 850.

GIVES UP ONE POST AT ANHEUSER-BUSCH

Von Gontard Retires as Board Vice Chairman, Continues as Director.

Retirement of Adalbert von Gontard as vice chairman of the board of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., was announced by the brewery today. He will continue as a director.

Von Gontard is a grandson of co-founder Adolphus Busch, and he and his family have large holdings in the corporation. He is 83 years old.

He was director of sales and advertising from April 1951 until recently, when August A. Busch Jr., president, took over the responsibility for that department.

Sales reached a record high under von Gontard's direction in 1953, when Anheuser-Busch sold more beer than any other brewery in the world, the company noted today.

He was born in Germany, and joined the brewery in 1923 as assistant technical director, after graduating from the Institute of Technology at Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany. Three years later he became chief engineer and continued in that position until 1947, when he was made director of sales and production of the yeast, malt and corn products division.

He was elected to the board in 1933 and was made a vice president the following year. He has been vice chairman of the board and chairman of its executive committee since last April.

The retirement will be effective Oct. 1, exactly 32 years after the start of his career with the company.

Von Gontard has extensive civic interests, and plans to devote considerable time to them upon his retirement, the company said.

7TH CONVICT TO GO ON TRIAL FOR MURDER IN PRISON RIOT

Five other convicts have been sentenced to life terms for their part in the murder, and a sixth has been sentenced to death but has appealed to the State Supreme Court.

COPTER CARRYING INJURED U.S. SOLDIERS CRASH LANDS

LAUF, Germany, Sept. 8 (AP)—A United States Army helicopter rushing two injured American soldiers from the Grafenwoehr training grounds to a Nuernberg hospital was demolished in a forced landing here yesterday. The pilot, co-pilot and both soldiers—injured in a jeep accident on maneuvers—were cut and bruised in the crash.

The helicopter fell from a low altitude in an open field within the Lauf town limits.

PACT ON FREEING AMERICANS HELD IN CHINA NEAR

Announcement of Details May Come From U.S., Red Envoys at Geneva Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—The United States and Red China were reported at the point of final agreement today on the release of Americans held behind the Bamboo Curtain.

There are 25 Americans known to have been in Chinese Communist jails for several years and three persons under house arrest. In addition there are others whose status is uncertain.

An announcement on final agreement may come from Geneva when United States Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan meet tomorrow.

Diplomats said that barring some last minute hitch in plans there was a good chance the final details for release of the Americans would be worked out.

It is understood here that the agreement so far developed covers these basic points:

1. Red China's assurances that all Americans who wish to leave Chinese Communist jurisdiction will be permitted to do so "expeditiously," subject to Chinese Communist judicial processes.

This apparently means that those in jail will be subject to court action providing for parole, deportation or other action which would allow them to leave.

The final accord has been delayed while the United States sought to obtain a clearer idea of what the Chinese Reds mean by the release of the Americans "expeditiously."

2. United States assurances that Chinese in this country who wish to go to Red China are being permitted to do so. This has been the declared American policy for months. At issue are some Chinese students, sent here by Nationalist China, who have said they wish to go to the Red mainland but who have not left the United States.

3. Designation of the Indian Embassy to represent on a humanitarian basis the interest of any Chinese in the United States who might feel they could not get a fair break by making arrangements directly with American authorities for going to Red China.

4. Employment of the offices of the British Embassy in Red China to protect the interest of Americans there on a basis similar to that provided for the use of Indian Embassy services in the United States.

Once the issue of the release of the Americans is out of the way, the Geneva talks can proceed to item 2 that was agreed upon as a subject for discussion.

Item 2 was stated as "other practical matters at issue between the two sides."

The Chinese announced on Sept. 6 that exit permits would be issued to 12 detained Americans. This left 29 persons on a list under discussion at Geneva, including 28 who are detained and another whose status was unclear.

EGYPT WILLING TO RESUME GAZA BORDER PARLEY

To Consider Any Suggestion by U.N. Supervisor on Easing Tension.

CAIRO, Sept. 9 (AP)—A government spokesman said last night Egypt is willing under certain conditions to resume border talks aimed at settling the tension on the Gaza front.

"Egypt welcomes any suggestion that will help ease tension along the demarcation line," he said, "providing the suggestion comes from General Burns." (Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, United Nations truce supervisor in Palestine).

The spokesman said Egypt was not willing "to start negotiations that will be used by Israel for making political gains."

"Such talks will only be a vicious circle from which neither side will benefit," he said.

Resolution Adopted.

Meanwhile in New York the U.N. Security Council adopted unanimously late yesterday a Western power resolution favoring the effective separation of warring Egyptian and Israeli forces on the Gaza border. Barbed wire or some other barrier has been suggested.

The Council also agreed with a proposal by Gen. Burns to establish a demilitarized zone more than half-a-mile wide along the frontier.

Arkady A. Sobolev, Soviet delegate, voted with the other Council members.

Omar Loutfi of Egypt and Abba Eban of Israel told the Council their governments agreed on resuming discussions with Burns on measures to prevent further clashes. Loutfi further said Egypt long ago favored putting up barbed wire. Eban was silent on the nature of the barrier.

More than 50 soldiers and civilians have been killed on both sides of the Gaza line since a new burst of violence Aug. 22 halted efforts by Burns to achieve some calm and order.

The Council met in special session on the call of the United States, Britain and France.

Co-operation Wanted.

The Western delegates made it clear they expected Israel and Egypt to co-operate with Burns and demanded maintenance of a cease-fire. Noting Burns' report that Israelis had detained U.N. observers, they called for full freedom of movement by U.N. personnel.

The Western resolution endorsed Burns' view that a repetition of the incidents will be avoided only if the opposing forces are separated by an effective physical barrier and if, in addition, defensive positions and motorized patrols are kept out of the demilitarized zone he has proposed.

CITY OFFICIALS CALL TWA TO FOOD PLAN MEETING

A meeting between representatives of Trans World Airlines and city officials has been requested by Acting Mayor Donald Gunn to discuss the airline's decision to establish its own food service facilities at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Airlines operating from the field now obtain meals for flights from a caterer who pays the city a percentage of his receipts. It is estimated the TWA decision to furnish its own meals will cost the city about $37,500 annually from this source.

Gunn asked the airline to send representatives to meet with him next Monday at 2 p.m. to "re-examine" its position. He indicated he would ask the representatives to appear also before the Municipal Airport Commission, which will meet in his office at 3 p.m.

3 GERMAN WAR CRIMINALS FREED BY 4-NATION BOARD

BONN, Sept. 9 (AP)—The first German criminals to be released under the new four-nation review of war crimes sentences were freed today from the British prison at Werl.

Karl Buck, Karl Nussberger and Johannes Steenbock were released on order of the American-British-French-German board organized last month under the treaties restoring sovereignty to West Germany.

Buck and Nussberger were sentenced to death for the killing of Allied prisoners of war. Their sentences were commuted first to life and then to 21 years. Steenbock was sentenced to 20 years for the killing of interned Allied nationals.

The United States now holds 43 war criminals at Landsberg prison, the French 18 at Wittlich and the British 22 at Werl.

EXTRA REGISTRATION HOURS FOR OCT. 4 SPECIAL ELECTION

Headquarters of the Board of Election Commissioners, 208 South Twelfth street, will remain open until 9 p.m. today and 5 o'clock tomorrow to afford opportunity for new voters to register for the Oct. 4 special election.

Registered voters who have moved will have until tomorrow to transfer registration. Voters moving after that must appear in person before the board prior to Sept. 24 to transfer.

Two referendum measures are to be voted on at the statewide special election. They are a proposed 2-cent cigarette tax for school financing and a new plan of state assistance to elementary and high schools. A simple majority is required for passage.

PROHIBITIONIST CREATES SPLINTER GRASS ROOTS PARTY

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—A retired educator who bolted the 86-year-old Prohibition party predicted yesterday that its rank and file will follow him into a new party "with grass roots appeal."

The Pioneer party has set up headquarters in Chicago. Its chairman, Dr. Lowell H. Coate, said the party would retain the "dry" plank of the prohibitionists in its platform, but hoped to attract voters by taking stands on other current issues.

The party has asked Senator William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, to be its candidate for President in 1956. Coate, a retired supervisor of schools in Los Angeles, has been chairman of the Prohibition party for the last two years.

6 MORE RESERVE BANKS INCREASE DISCOUNT RATE

New Figure in Anti-Inflation Move Is 2 1/4 Pct. — Possible Tax Cut a Factor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Federal Reserve System, seeking to head off possible inflation, has screwed the lid tighter on rapidly swelling demand for credit.

Its success—or lack of success—in preventing inflation may have much to do with whether there is a tax cut next year.

The Reserve Board approved, effective today, a move by six additional reserve banks to boost their discount rate from 2 to 2 1/4 per cent. That is the rate at which they lend money to member commercial banks, which in turn lend to individuals.

The action was taken by the reserve banks of New York, Richmond, Chicago, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco. It made the 2 1/4 per cent rate effective in 10 of the 12 reserve districts. Only the Boston and Minneapolis reserve banks are still lending at 2 per cent.

Other Tax Cut Factors. Other factors, of course, will also help determine the chances of a tax cut. Among them are the political situation and the outlook for a balanced budget. But the steadiness of the nation's economy is a major consideration.

President Eisenhower's Administration has set as one of its major goals the prevention of inflation.

A tax cut itself tends to be inflationary, because it frees more money for spending. In a period of inflation and rising prices, the Administration might find it embarrassing if not impossible to recommend a tax cut that would increase buying power.

But if the threat of inflation has been beaten back by early next year, the Administration would find it much easier to recommend a tax cut.

The 2 1/4 per cent lending rate of the reserve banks is the highest level in 20 years, and is considered definitely a "restrictive" lending rate. A little more than a month ago, it was only 1 3/4 per cent.

What Higher Rate Does.

The reserve bank lending rate has widespread effect. A higher rate makes it more expensive for member commercial banks to borrow from the reserve system to expand their own business, consumer and personal loans. This results in loans becoming harder to get, or more expensive, at your bank.

The reserve system has embarked on what is now a definitely apparent effort to restrain credit expansion in the face of an enormous growth of debt of nearly all kinds in the last year.

And it has acted on the eve of the fall season when seasonal demand for loans annually pushes the debt total upward.

The reserve system has acted in step with general apprehension of Treasury and Federal Reserve leaders that the record-breaking economic expansion of the last eight months may take on inflationary characteristics, with rapidly increasing income resulting in buying power growing faster than production.

PILOT RELEASED BY CHINESE REDS SUES FOR DIVORCE

CLAYTON, N.Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Air Force Capt. Eugene J. Vaadi, freed July 31 after spending 30 months as a war prisoner of the Chinese Reds, has begun divorce proceedings. Attorney Arthur L. Cohen of Watertown said yesterday a summons and complaint had been served on Mrs. Elizabeth Weiler Vaadi. Cohen declined to comment on the nature of the complaint. The only ground for divorce in New York State is adultery.

The Vaadis were married in 1942, and have two daughters, Jean Ann, 12 years old, and Donna Faye, 9.

Vaadi, 34 years old, was one of 11 United States airmen sentenced by the Chinese Communists to long prison terms on trumped-up spy charges. He was the pilot of a B-29 shot down Jan. 12, 1953, over North Korea while it was on a leaflet-dropping mission.

When he arrived at Griffiss Air Force Base near Rome, N.Y., Vaadi spoke briefly with his wife and children, then rode away with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Vaadi of Lafargeville. But at "Vaadi day" here Aug. 21, the pilot appeared in the parade with his wife.

RITA HAYWORTH'S LAWYER, DICK HAYMES TO CONFER

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9 (AP)—Rita Hayworth's lawyer is here today from New York to confer with her estranged husband, Dick Haymes. The actress and the singer split up last week.

Bartley Crum, her lawyer, said she wants more time to consider whether she will sue for divorce or reconcile with Haymes.

"I think both parties have a lot of problems to iron out, and it is my guess this may take a while," Crum told reporters.

Crum is going to Reno, Nev., for a hearing next Wednesday on Moslem Prince Aly Khan's request that his daughter by Miss Hayworth, Yasmin, be allowed to visit him in Europe. The actress has had custody since her divorce from Aly.

BIG-STORE SALES IN DOLLARS RISE 14 PCT. FOR WEEK

St. Louis area department store sales rose 14 per cent in dollar volume last week compared with the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

For the four-week period ended last Saturday, St. Louis area department store sales increased 9 per cent over those of the corresponding week a year ago. Cumulative sales since Jan. 1 were up 7 per cent in dollar volume over the same 1954 period.

Dollar volume of sales rose 10 per cent in the Eighth Federal Reserve District as a whole last week over the similar period a year ago and was 8 per cent higher in the four weeks ending Saturday over a year ago.

Department stores nationally reported an 11 per cent increase last week and a 7 per cent increase in the four-week period ended Saturday, the Federal Reserve Board at Washington announced.

ADENAUER INSISTS
RUSSIA RELEASE
GERMAN P.O.W.S.

Hitlerite invaders" even today had not yet been completely eliminated. But he told Ade-nauer the Soviet people bore no ill will toward the Germans over World War II.
(He also said he hoped the current discussions would bring "fruitful results" in the way of improved trade and the establishment and development of scientific, technical and cultural co-operation between the two nations.)From the German-Russian negotiations, the West hoped to get a preview of the Soviet position on the key issue of German reunification at the Big Four ministers' meeting in Geneva next month.The doughty old West German leader, flanked by Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano and Deputy Foreign Minister Walter Hallstein, walked into the palace hall through one entrance just as Soviet Premier Bulganin came through a door at the other side.Bulganin was followed by Khrushchev and Molotov. They crossed over and Bulganin introduced Khrushchev, who had not been at the airport for the otherwise full-dress welcome given to Adenauer yesterday.As 50 photographers worked under the bright glare of flood-lights, the two delegations took seats across from each other at a long, white-covered oblong table.Adenauer, wearing a dark blue suit, and Bulganin, in light gray, were directly across from each other at the center of the table. They immediately began chatting through an interpreter.
Both men broke into laughter several times.On general policy statements by Adenauer and Bulganin were scheduled for today.
Tomorrow the two delegations will get down to bargaining.3 Germans, 6 Russians.
At the conference table, a first team of only three Germans faced six Russians. Ade-nauer was flanked by Von Brentano and Hallstein. The Russian order of seating was First Deputy Premier Mikhail Pervukhin, Khrushchev, Bulganin, Molotov, Foreign Trade Minister I. G. Kabanov, and Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Semenov.Twelve advisers sat behind each delegation.
Before the conference opening, Adenauer drove in his sleek black Mercedes limousine to the Soviet Foreign Ministry for a 20-minute courtesy call on Molotov. Then he sped to the Kremlin for a similar brief visit with Bulganin. Von Brentano, Hallstein and Hans Globeke accompanied him.As the talks opened, the German newspaper Izvestia published an editorial warning Adenauer against trying to negotiate from "positions of strength." The Communist party organ Pravda said the same thing just before the cancellor's arrival.Izvestia and Trud, organ of the Soviet trade unions, warned Adenauer that he was mistaken if he thought he was going to get reunification of Germany on his own terms.East German Interests.
Izvestia said the problem of German unity could not be solved "without taking into account the interests of the (East) German Democratic republic as well as the (West) German Federal Republic, nor by mechanically merging both parts of Germany. It would be best if the German problems were settled by the Germans themselves."Trud said "the most diverse public circles and newspapers in West Germany are demanding positive results from the Moscow talks in the interests of all the German people."In Berlin, Neues Deutschland, chief newspaper of the East German Communist party, said the East German government would continue its efforts "to settle finally and for all of Germany" the fate of German prisoners still in Russia. It said agreement to release "most" of the captive Germans had been reached Aug. 22 between Soviet and East German representatives.Westerners viewed the Neues Deutschland editorial as confirmation that the East German government hopes to take all credit for obtaining the prisoners' freedom. Some believed Adenauer might be told the prisoner question already was settled.(The West Berlin newspaper Der Abend reported that East German Premier Grotewohl was in Moscow to get first-hand information on the talks.)RUSSIAN CONCEDES NEED TO GUARD AGAINST ATTACK

tion is making a realistic approach to the disarmament discussions and may have come to grips with the all-important problem of guaranteeing against surprise attack. That does not mean the Soviet Union has hinted agreement on the Eisenhower plan or that it has withdrawn its own proposals which are still being studied.It was disclosed by the same American source that Sobolev directed some questions at Harold E. Stassen, presidential adviser on disarmament affairs.
Chiefly, the Russian representative wanted to know why the United States had placed "reservations" on arms reduction plans it had advanced before the summit meeting at Geneva in July.In reply, Stassen was said to have pointed out that the Kremlin had changed position on atomic matters, illustrating the desirability of a free approach due to fast-moving advances in the military sciences. He recalled that the Soviet Union first had declined to join in the atoms-for-peace program, but Premier Bulganin at Geneva lat-er said Russia would participate.
Stassen added that the most recent Soviet disarmament proposals demanded agreement that during the early stages of disarmament nations would not employ atom or hydrogen bombs except to repel aggression, with the stipulation that the U.N. Security Council would determine if an attack was unprovoked. That would extend the veto power in the U.N. Stassen said, which the United States opposed.Although Western spokesmen used the word "encouraged," in describing the Sobolev attitude on inspection, it was made clear by each that the term was intended to convey satisfaction that Russia had indicated a willingness to stress the subject of controls and inspection and seeming agreement that they were a fundamental requirement of disarmament.They were pleased, too, that the Soviet Union had not pursued the previous "take-it-or-leave-it" policy in presenting arms reduction proposals, and especially because Sobolev had not "foreclosed," thus far on the American request for aerial as well as ground inspection.Previously, Moscow spokesmen dismissed stipulations for air inspection as an attempt to create espionage apparatus.It was evident also that the talks were continued during the second week in the conciliatory "spirit of Geneva." Emerging first from the committee-room, Sobolev met reporters smilingly with: "Sorry, no comment, sorry."
His attitude was not unlike that of a Congressman silenced by a closed session but not wanting to offend newspaper men.Stassen told reporters as he hurried away: "It was a good post-Geneva session." Asked if Sobolev spoke, he replied, "Yes, and so did I."Anthony Nutting of Britain and Jules Moch of France each declined to comment on the proceedings but Nutting said: "We seem almost to have come to grips with controls and inspection."One reporter interjected: "But you look so unhappy, Mr. Nutting." To this the British delegate answered solemnly: "The reporter for the Manchester Guardian has just informed me that his account of my opening statement last week missed the first edition. I am unhappy."12 MORE RANSOM resulting from the investigation of the missing ransom.

Upon determining that the bills thus far found came from four packets, authorities believe that a minimum of $8000 in missing ransom probably is in circulation, or will be soon.The Seventh District Federal Reserve Bank here serves commercial banks in northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin and all of Indiana except the southern part. One of the theories advanced concerning the passing of the bills is that they are placed in circulation by carnival workers. Recently fairs have been held in Indianapolis and Des Moines.In addition to the bills found here, three turned up in the Federal Reserve Bank of St.

CUT PRODUCTION

tion to the administration's long-term program. It is not expected to have a significant impact on farm prices and income in 1956.Agriculture Department officials said the lease payments received by farmers next year would just about offset the additional income farmers have been earning by growing crops over a period of several years because it will trim annual food production and will make it possible to reduce the seven and half billion dollars worth of surplus commodities now hanging over the market.Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will delay making a final decision on the plan until after the next meeting of the 18-man National Agricultural Advisory Commission.The N.A.A.C. will meet here with Secretary Benson and other top Agriculture Department officials on Sept. 22 and Sept. 23.The N.A.A.C. is a bi-partisan group of farm leaders named by the President to advise the Secretary of Agriculture on broad farm policy problems.The major objection to the leasing plan is that it marks a step away from the Administration's avowed policy of seeking increasingly free farm markets.
Agriculture Department officials said the plan will work only if the prohibition against use of the diverted acres is enforced, requiring on-the-spot checks to make certain that participating farmers are complying.The officials added that the system can be used only if it is made mandatory, with the Government probably refusing to grant price support loans to farmers who do not take part in the program.Many Plans.
By the Associated Press.
An Agriculture Department spokesman said "many plans" are under consideration at all times."But there has been no crystallization of thought on any possible changes in the present program," he said.The official conceded that because of declining farm prices the department is under pressure from some Republican leaders for counteraction. He said this could possibly lead to some program of encouragement for farmers to reduce plantings. But he emphasized that Secretary Benson and his top aids are convinced present policies will restore farm prosperity if given time.PRESS INQUIRY INTO 'PAY-OFFS,' GRAND JURY SAYS

ence to vote any indictments.
The judge then inquired if the office of Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd had asked for any indictments in the matter.
"No," Carpenter said.The jury foreman later told the Post-Dispatch his comments on no indictments meant the evidence presented thus far was insufficient for a charge against any policeman.Reference to Memorandum.
At one phase of his talk to the departing grand jurors, Judge McLaughlin said: "You were selected on June 6. On June 6, 7 and 8, things happened that caused me to make a long memorandum which I did to protect the honor of this body (grand jury) and of this court.""I do not expect to use the memo until it becomes necessary."The judge did not disclose the contents of his memorandum. When asked by the Post-Dispatch if he would release it, he said: "If it becomes necessary, I will."It was believed that the memorandum may refer, at least in part, to a report that Nathaniel A. Sweets, a member of the grand jury, had talked to two high-ranking St. Louis police officers after the grand jury inquiry began.Sweets, Negro newspaper publisher, has denied to Judge McLaughlin and Circuit Attorney Dowd that he had talked to the policemen about the alleged pay-offs, and the judge has said there was nothing to substantiate the report.Comment on Police Morale.
Discussing morale in the Police Department, particularly in view of the current pay-off inquiry, the grand jury said in its final report:"The morale of the men would be greatly increased if the police board would assure the men that they would support them to the fullest extent as they perform their police duties in a fair and impartial manner.""The Police Department should not be influenced by outside groups who interfere with procedure of police in the districts." There was no explanation of this comment.Inquiry Began in June.
The pay-off inquiry, started last June, has been pursued intensively by the grand jury and the circuit attorney's office.The investigation was begun following the death last April 21 of Mrs. June Alma Lytz, operator of a disorderly house at 308A North Theresa avenue.
Mrs. Lytz was shot and killed on the street by a Negro man, who admitted several other shootings without a satisfactory explanation.Pauline Cloin, who worked for Mrs. Lytz, told police her former employer often complained of being forced to make pay-offs to certain St. Louis policemen in order to continue in operation without interference.Files Claim to $14,335.
Miss Cloin has filed a claim to the $14,335 in cash found in Mrs. Lytz's establishment after her death.The inquiry soon was broadened to include allegations ofpayoffs in other police districts and by other brothel operators besides Mrs. Lytz.The grand jury's final report today contained a recommendation that the Board of Aldermen enact new ordinances governing the issuance of licenses to massage parlors and bath houses.Provisions recommended by the grand jury for the new ordinances include: Rigid examination of applicants for licenses; inspection of establishments at the time of application, and periodic checks and inspections thereafter "to see that these establishments are not a subterfuge for disorderly houses and brothels."Record books kept by Mrs.
Lytz have figured prominently in the investigation, since they contained names identical with those of about 30 policemen,

Formosa Soldiers Get Pay Rise.
TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 9 (AP)—Nationalist Chinese soldiers got a pay increase July 1—the equivalent of 30 cents a month. Finance Minister P. Y. Hsu said it was the best the Nationalists could afford. He refused to disclose the pay of a buck private. With the increase, it is believed to be about 75 cents a month.

G.O.P. MAY ASK EISENHOWER TO REPLY TO LABOR

State Chairmen Indicate He Is One to Answer Attacks of Union Leaders.

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Republican state chairmen may ask President Eisenhower to call the signals for the G.O.P.'s reply to attacks by organized labor leaders on his Administration.

John Feikens, Michigan party chairman, brought the delicate labor issue before the Republican state chairmen in their political campaign school in Washington, said today he thinks only the President can decide what course the party should pursue in answering these attacks.

Feikens said he expects to bring the matter to the President's attention when the state chairmen, winding up their classes today, fly to Denver for a breakfast conference with Mr. Eisenhower tomorrow.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon told the state leaders yesterday that in spite of "certain talks over the Labor day weekend to the effect that the Republican party is not for the wage earner, the fact is that 65,000,000 workers are earning more, buying more and saving more than at any time in American history."

"I think that simple fact, repeated constantly, can outweigh all the arguments our opponents can dream up," he said.

Refers to Attacks.

Nixon obviously was referring to Labor day attacks on the Republicans by former President Truman and by James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer. Carey criticized what he called the "self-serving, greedy tactics" of the Administration, which he said is dominated by "big business and corporation thinking."

Feikens said in an interview, however, that he doesn't believe the activities he said some major unions are making in behalf of Democratic candidates can thus be ignored.

Feikens conceded some Republicans fear that retaliatory attacks on the union leaders would be resented by the rank and file members to whom the Republicans are appealing for support.

"I believe these attacks by the leaders must be met head on," he said. "You can't ignore the leaders' activities and hope they will go away. The best weapon we have is disclosure, telling the story of the leaders' activities in behalf of the Democrats in a way that won't alienate the rank and file."

State Chairman John T. Diederich of Kentucky and Wendell Wyatt of Oregon said they also favor direct attacks.

"We have got to work through individual union members to convince them that the Republican party has their interest at heart," Diederich said. Indiana President Will Rasmussen told the Republicans yesterday that close associates of the President are more optimistic that he will run again than they have been previously.

Some state chairmen said Nixon went further in a closed session to express confidence that the President again will be a candidate.

As an indication of how the state chairmen felt about the renomination of Nixon as Mr. Eisenhower's running mate, they approved unanimously a resolution praising the Vice President for bringing "greater dignity and importance" to his office than many of his predecessors.

The resolution said Nixon had "rendered effective, tireless and unselfish campaigning for the Republican party candidates on the issues confronting the country."

Nixon discussed most of the top issues in the campaign in an hour question-and-answer session with the chairmen yesterday.

He said the Administration is aware of the political effects of the decline in farm prices and is "going to devote every effort it can to disposal of surpluses and reversal of the trend toward lower prices which was in effect when we came into power."

He said he does not believe the Democrats will attempt to make Eisenhower foreign policies a campaign issue.

He said that although the Republicans had not yet been able to balance the budget, they had spent 36 billion dollars less in three years than the total projected by the Truman Administration. He said this added up to a saving in that period of $4000 per family.

Compton Optimistic on G.O.P. Chances in 2 Districts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Perry Compton, Missouri's Republican chairman, expressed belief yesterday that the G.O.P. has a "good chance" to win congressional elections next year in the state's Fourth, Sixth and Eleventh districts.

He said he believed the party would continue to hold seats from the Second and Seventh districts. Representatives Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves and Dewey Short of Galena now represent those respective districts.

Representative George H. Christopher (Dem.) defeated Representative Jeffrey Hillelson (Rep.) in the Fourth district last year; Representative William Hull (Dem.) won in the Sixth District and Representative Morgan Moulder (Dem.) was re-elected in the Eleventh District.

In reply to a reporter's questions, Compton said criticism by Democrats of changes in some Missouri agricultural conservation and stabilization county committees may have helped rather than hurt his party in the state.

HEALTH EDUCATION WORKERS APPOINTED BY TB SOCIETY

The tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis has appointed two persons as health education workers to help present information to school groups and other organizations in St. Louis and St. Louis county. It was announced yesterday.

Miss Patricia Devereux, 1121 Edward terrace, Richmond Heights, will work with parent-teacher organizations. Robert Roberge, 9063 Wrenwood lane, Brentwood, will work with industrial groups, service clubs and other community organizations. He formerly was a case worker with the St. Louis Department of Welfare.

HONORARY JOB FOR FARLEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—James A. Farley, former postmaster general, has become honorary national chairman of Muscular Dystrophy Association of America, Inc., which combats the baffling disease that affects 200,000 persons in the United States. Farley, who was Democratic national chairman from 1932 to 1940, is board chairman of the Coca-Cola Export Corp.

WOMAN OUTLIVES INSURANCE TABLE, COLLECTS $50,000

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Emma Glos has collected the $50,000 face value of a straight life insurance policy on herself.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America explained yesterday it paid of Mrs. Glos because, at 96, she has outlived the mortality table in effect when she took out the policy 20 years ago. In recent years, insurance companies generally have increased the mortality limit to 99 years.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Fri., Sept. 9, 1955 7A

Mrs. Glos also got a bouquet of flowers for having made company actuaries eat their calculations.

Actuaries figure that fewer than 1/2 of 1 per cent of persons born today can expect to live 96 years and that, when Mrs. Glos was born in 1859, the chances of such longevity were even more slight.

ONLY 14 OUT OF 100 'BLUE BABIES' DIE AFTER OPERATION

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (UP)—Only 14 of the first 100 children to undergo "blue baby" operations have died in the last eight years, a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association said today.

The operation provides a new and wider passage from the heart to the lungs, by-passing a constriction which prevents the blood from getting enough oxygen and gives a blue color to the skin of afflicted children.

The report was made by Dr. Willis J. Potts, who devised the operation in 1945, and other physicians among children operated on at Children's Memorial Hospital here.

It said that 68 of the living children were in good condition, 16 were fair, one was in poor condition, and one was unimproved.

WRITS TO BE SOUGHT TODAY TO END DOCK STRIKE

Union Ignores One Writ—Tie-Up Threatens to Spread Along Entire East Coast.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—Shipping firms and the New York-New Jersey Waterfront Commission seek permanent injunctions today to halt a costly dock strike which threatens to erupt along the entire East Coast.

The Independent International Longshoremen's Association already has ignored one temporary restraining order issued since some 25,000 men walked off the New York-New Jersey piers on Wednesday.

The employers, the 170-member New York Shipping Association, charge that since no labor dispute exists, the I.L.A. is trying to coerce them into fighting the avowed I.L.A. target: the bi-state agency set up two years ago to police the piers.

The association also goes to the supreme court today to ask for a contempt citation against the union which, if granted, could result in a heavy fine.

In walking out, the I.L.A. further defied an 18-month-old state court injunction barring a strike aimed against activities of the waterfront commission.

I.L.A. president William V. Bradley charged yesterday that the association and the commission have conspired to "break up our union and any union on the waterfront."

The union contends the two-member commission has used harsh and discriminatory measures against dock workers—including misuse of subpoena powers, harassing longshoremen with previous criminal records, and generally overstepping its authority.

The commission, in denying all the allegations, has accused union leadership of "lawlessness goons."

The walkout has spread to port Newark, Bayonne, Jersey City and Hoboken in New Jersey.

In New York, about 70 ship sailings were either canceled or delayed. No large passenger liners were seriously affected, with crewmen, passengers and shipping company supervisory personnel helping to take care of baggage. However, the British liner Britannic put to sea minus a scheduled 1700 tons of cargo.

Taft Act Considered.

Federal officials reportedly were considering invoking the Taft-Hartley Act to halt the walkout, which is costing shipping firms an estimated $1,000,000 a day.

But at President Eisenhower's vacation headquarters in Denver, Assistant Press Secretary Murray Snyder said yesterday he had "heard of no recommendation" that the President intervene in the waterfront dispute.

Union pleas for intervention in its dispute with the waterfront commission have been consistently turned down by both New York Gov. Averell Harriman and New Jersey Gov. Robert B. Meyner.

11 Locals Still to Vote on Westinghouse Strike.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 9 (AP)—With returns in from 17 locals, the 11 remaining locals of the CIO International Union of Electrical Workers prepared today to decide whether to authorize a nation-wide strike against the Westinghouse Electric Corp. at midnight Sunday.

The union claims that 13 of the 17 locals favor the walkout, which would make idle 43,000 CIO-IUE members who are Westinghouse employees. The company says 11 of the 17 locals favor the strike.

Two-thirds of the locals must authorize the strike before it can be called.

U.S. ACTS TO CRACK DOWN ON PUBLIC LAND PROMOTERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Department of the Interior disclosed yesterday it has moved to crack down on promoters who are raking in high fees for obtaining public domain land, which may be leased through the Government for moderate cost.

A spokesman said the department has asked the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission to investigate come-on advertisements placed by the promoters.

Department officials said the ads carry an offer by a promoter to "file" an application for a five-acre tract of desert land and obtain for the investor a "guaranteed Government receipt." What the investors aren't told, they continued, is that any citizen may file for such land directly with the Interior Department, which requires a $10 filing fee and $10 to $15 as the first year's rent.

According to the officials, the promoters are getting rich by paying the required $20 to $25 and pocketing the rest of $105. The investors also are not told, the Interior aids said, that if an application is accepted—and many are not—then they still have to pay the Government up to $2000 for title.

JOSEPH M. NESTER ESTATE IS ESTIMATED AT $175,000

An estate with an estimated value of $175,000 was left by Joseph M. Nester, president of Obear-Nester Glass Co. of East St. Louis, according to a will filed yesterday in St. Clair County Probate Court at Belleville.

The estimate was made by his father, Joseph F. Nester, executor of the estate. An inventory will be filed later.

Mr. Nester, who died Aug. 22, left half of his estate, consisting of cash, stocks and other personal property, to his wife. The remainder was left in trust for their infant daughter.

Convict Silent for 18 Years, Now Trying to Talk Self Into Parole

Killer Kept 1934 Vow Until 1952, When Told He Couldn't Keep Mum and Go Free.

McALESTER, Okla., Sept. 9 (AP)—From that moment in 1934 when John A. Cane pointed to the spot where he had buried his family, he vowed a life of silence. For 18 years as a life-term convict at Oklahoma State Penitentiary he kept his vow.

The story of the prisoner who wouldn't talk was revealed yesterday. He decided to talk in the hope of winning a parole. It was told by reporters for the Tulsa Tribune who said it agreed to keep the secret learned in June 1952.

Former Warden Jerome Waters said Cane was arrested a few days after his wife and three children disappeared from their home. After questioning, he broke down and admitted killing them and burying their bodies in shallow graves. He took officers to the spot.

From that moment on, he refused to say another word.

The 61-year-old convict said in an interview, "I made up my mind I'd never say another word and decided I'd play I couldn't hear."

The vow of silence was broken after Cane was told at a mental hospital where he was taken for a sanity hearing that he would not get a parole if he did not talk. He also was warned he would reach a stage when he wouldn't be able to talk.

Returning to prison, other inmates were told Cane had undergone surgery to restore his speech and hearing.

It was feared that Cane, considered a "dummy" by the other prisoners might be in danger if prisoners discovered he had been able to hear things they had said in his presence. But Cane, who consented to the interview, apparently was unworried on that score.

U.S. ECONOMIC AIDS IN EUROPE TO GET BRIEFING

Humphrey, Other High Officials to Meet With Group From 20 Countries.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey and other high officials will have a special meeting in Paris Sept. 19 with United States economic officers from 20 Western European countries.

The State Department, in announcing the meeting today, said its purpose was "to give United States field officers an opportunity to discuss current United States economic policies among themselves and with officials from Washington."

Among Washington officials attending the three-day session will be Joseph M. Dodge, chairman of President Eisenhower's council of foreign economic policy; W. Randolph Burgess, Treasury Under Secretary; Robert Murphy, deputy Under Secretary of State; Samuel Waugh, deputy Under Secretary for economic affairs; foreign aid chief John B. Hollister; C. Burke Elbrick, deputy Assistant Secretary for European affairs; and Adm. Walter S. DeLaney, deputy foreign aid chief in charge of East-West trade controls.

The State Department said each of the American diplomatic posts would send its chief economic officer and chief of its foreign aid section.

Economic specialists from American embassies in these countries will attend: Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia, Switzerland, Belgium, Denmark, Ireland, Finland, Portugal, Sweden, Austria, Luxembourg, Spain, Norway and Iceland.

PLEA TO BULGANIN BRINGS NEWS OF MISSING HUSBAND

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

PARIS, Sept. 9—A tragic love story has come out of the recent meeting of the Big Four in Geneva.

A young French woman, Yvonne Yafaroua, threw herself before Soviet Premier Bulganin's car. When it stopped she begged him for news of her Russian soldier husband who disappeared 10 years ago.

A few days ago, after 10 years of hoping and searching, she received a letter from the Soviet legation in Bern informing her that her husband was alive and living in a small Russian village.

Yvonne—whose small son has never seen his father—wrote a letter thanking Bulganin, and has asked Soviet authorities to allow her husband to visit his family in France.

DEMOCRAT THINKS MRS. LUCE SHOULD BE IN WHITE HOUSE

ROME, Sept. 9 (AP)—An Alabama Democratic Congressman said yesterday he thought Ambassador Clare Booth Luce, an ardent Republican, would make a good President.

Representative Boykin made his remark while addressing the American Club of Rome. He said the suggestion stemmed from an acquaintance of many years.

Boykin also had glowing praise for another Republican, President Eisenhower, saying he "must have been sent to us by the good Lord."

Mrs. Luce, honorary president, was not present at the luncheon.

Boykin is touring Europe with the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

JUDGE GIVES SICK WOMAN CITIZEN'S OATH AT HOME

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 9 (AP)—Illness three times had prevented Mrs. Ermina Clotti from becoming a citizen of the United States. Yesterday she was again scheduled to take the oath—and once again she was ill.

United States District Judge Thomas H. Madden, learning of Mrs. Clotti's plight, went to her home with other Government officials and administered the oath to the 77-year-old native of Rome who came to America about 40 years ago.

FORMER SECRETARY STEVENS GETS HONORARY ARMY JOB

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Army gave its former secretary, Robert T. B. Stevens, an honorary job yesterday.

Secretary Wilber M. Brucker appointed Stevens as a civilian aid-at-large to the secretary. The group of aids, first formed in 1942, provides liaison between the Secretary and the nation's citizens. There is no pay for the job.

Stevens, who resigned last July, had a long and stormy row with Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin).

Shift in Marine Commanders.

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 9 (AP)—Lt. Gen. William O. Price takes command of the Pacific fleet Marine force today. He relieves Lt. Gen. Robert H. Pepper, who goes to San Francisco where he will command the Marine department of the Pacific.

MITCHELL WON'T ANSWER TRUMAN ANTI-LABOR CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell refused yesterday to be drawn into a dispute with former President Truman over the Eisenhower Administration's labor policies. Asked to comment on Truman's Labor Day statement that the present Administration is anti-labor, Mitchell said: "I didn't hear Mr. Truman. I haven't read the speech and I'm not interested."

Mitchell also was asked at a press conference why no Administration official spoke to any labor group on the labor holiday.

"I was not invited," Mitchell said.

U.S. ACTS TO HALT VESSEL CARRYING ARMSTO RED CHINA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—American officials in Ceylon had orders today to take steps to halt a Greek-owned ship suspected of carrying arms destined for Red China.

State Department spokesmen said United States officials at Colombo were directed, at the request of the government of Panama, to pick up the Panamanian registry papers of the Katerina S.

The spokesmen said Panama canceled the ship's registry under a decree which prohibits Panamanian vessels from calling at Red Chinese, North Korean or nearby ports "for the purpose of transshipping cargo to Communist China."

Panama has no diplomatic representative in Ceylon, so the United States was asked to act for Panama in this case.

According to officials here, the Katerina S. loaded arms at a port in Communist Bulgaria and set out for Haiphong, chief port for North Viet Nam in the Communist-held section of Indochina. Goods unloaded at Haiphong could be sent overland into Red China.

Lifting the papers of the Katerina S. could prevent it from sailing from Colombo, where it was due today.

TEXTILE FIRM PLANS TO BUY ELY & WALKER

Burlington Industries, Greensboro and New York Concern, Offers $64,360,000.

Plans to sell Ely & Walker
Dry Goods Co. of St. Louis for a cash price of about $64,360,000 to Burlington Industries, Inc., of Greensboro, N.C., and New York City, were announced yesterday.

Under an agreement concluded late yesterday with E. P.
Cave, chairman of the board of Ely & Walker, and its president,
M. Weldon Rogers, Burlington would buy all of the stock held by them and their associates for a price of $45 a common share.
Price for the first preferred would be $31 a share and for the second preferred, $27 a share.

The same offer will be made to all other stockholders of Ely & Walker, the purchase agreement being contingent on tenders of acceptance of the offer by the holders of at least 75 per cent of all voting stock not later than the close of business Sept. 19. The tenders are to be submitted to St. Louis Union Trust Co.

Founded in 1878.

Ely & Walker, established in 1878 and with headquarters at 1520 Washington avenue, is one of the largest dry goods distributing organizations in the nation. It also operates textile mills and garment plants in the South and Middle West.

Purpose of its acquisition would be to give Burlington, a principal manufacturer of textiles, wider channels for distribution of its products.

Ely & Walker has approximately 1,338,000 shares of common stock outstanding. There are also 75,185 shares of first preferred and 69,749 shares of second preferred.

Its balanced assets for the fiscal year ending last Nov. 30 came to $82,052,995 and its sales for the year, excluding intercompany transactions, were $117,377,671.

Burlington Industries, with assets at the close of its fiscal year last September of $382, 496,000, had total sales in that year of $347,494,000.

Ely & Walker common has been quoted recently on the over-the-counter market at 34 bid and 37 asked. The bid yesterday was 37 but it was not known whether any was sold at that price.

Rogers said that Ely & Walker would continue to operate under its present management if the sale is consummated. He is expected to remain as president and Cave as board chairman.

EX-SOLDIER MUST FACE ARMY BOARD, PARENTS ARE RED

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 9 (UP)— Karl F. Davis, 22 years old, honorable discharged as an Army reservist last August, said today the Army has started proceedings against him because his father and mother were were Communists.

Davis said he would fight the proceedings before a military board Monday. If he is given an undesirable charge, he said, he may take the case to the civil courts.

Davis, whose father is an avowed Communist, said he was informed of the proceedings against him by a letter from the Army Adjutant General's office.
He said he was given three choices: to sign an undesirable discharge, to appear before a military board or to answer the letter in writing and let Army authorities pass on it.

The letter did not ask whether he continued to associate with his parents or whether they are Communists, he said.

His father, Samuel Davis, said meanwhile that he has been an open member of the Communist party for years.

Davis would lose all veterans benefits if he is given an undesirable discharge.

BOY KILLED BY PISTOL, FATHER'S PHONING UNHEARD

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 9 (UP)—Police today ruled as accidental the fatal shooting of a 4-year-old boy whose father had called home from work three times to tell his wife he had forgotten to lock up a pistol he owned.

The young victim, Dennis Henderson, found his father's 32-caliber revolver in playing Thursday while his mother was washing clothes in the basement. The mother, Mrs. Virginia Henderson, said she heard a shot and rushed upstairs to find the boy wounded in the chest. He died in her arms.

The youngster's father, O. D.
Henderson, told police he bought the gun in 1931 as protection against prowlers. He said he kept it out during the night but locked it in a trunk each morning. Thursday, he said, he remembered when he reached work that he had forgotten to lock up the pistol. He said he called home three times, but his wife apparently failed to hear the telephone ring because of the noise of the washing machine in the basement.

Baby Bites Dog, Dog Bites Baby.
CINCINNATI, Sept. 9 (AP)— Fifteen-month-old Dorothy Hartman bit the nose of a collie dog while visiting at a Cincinnati home yesterday. The dog bit right back, however, and the infant had to receive treatment at St. Francis Hospital for lacerations on her right cheek and

ALCOHOL AGENTS FIND STILL IN RAID ON CONFECTIONERY

James A. Simmons, a confectionery operator, was arrested yesterday by agents of the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit in a raid at his confectionery in the 1400 block of South J street, East St. Louis.

The agents reported finding a 50-gallon still, 300 gallons of mash and two gallons of moonshine whisky. Simmons, a Negro, said he had been selling the whisky for $8 a gallon.
He was charged with operating an illegal still and posses-ing untaxed liquor in warrants issued yesterday by United States Commissioner Elvira Fellner at East St. Louis.

TWO FIRES STILL RAGING THROUGH SEQUOIA FOREST

Break Over Fire Lines as Wind Shifts — Other Blazes Are Under Control.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9 (AP)—Grimed and tired firemen battled two breakthroughs in Sequoia national forest today, but elsewhere they started to get the upper hand on blazes that have charred more than 200 square miles of California woodland.

A wind shift caused added trouble in Sequoia forest 50 miles east of Fresno in the Sierra Nevada mountains. Gusts up to 30 miles an hour caused a fire to break over a fire line on the northern boundary of King's Canyon national park. Threatened was the Boole tree, third largest of California's sequoias (redwoods).

The other break was four miles west in the Sampson creek and Mill Flat creek area. Fire grenades were dropped by helicopter in backfiring operations.

Timber and brush fires in California and Oregon have taken eight lives and injured 11 persons. Damage was estimated in California at more than $12,000,000 in a little more than a week.

Places where foresters began to get control were:

Near Eureka in Humboldt county where 36,000 acres of timber were blackened.

In Mendocino county where 5000 acres of slash and pine burned.

Near Yreka where a haystack fire covered 70,000 acres and for a time threatened the town. At Lassen national forest in northeastern California where 19,200 acres burned.

Near Santa Barbara where a brush blaze was stopped by backfires just short of the city's outskirts.

Heavy loss of wildlife was reported in northern California. Deer were reported wandering aimlessly about near the edge of the burned-out area of forest southwest of Yreka.

Rattlesnakes fleeing from the fires posed such a menace to firefighters that 3,000 snake bite kits were rushed by truck from Berkeley to Redding.

CEREBRAL PALSY CENTER OPENS DRIVE WITH PARADE

A 16-unit parade through downtown St. Louis last night opened Alhambra Grotto's Humanitarian Fund drive for the support of its cerebral palsy center at the Grotto, 2626 South Grand boulevard.

Boy Scouts and fraternal and civic organizations marched in the parade which started at Fourteenth street and Washington avenue and went east on Washington to Broadway, south on Broadway to Locust street, west on Locust to Thirteenth street and south on Thirteenth to Soldiers' Memorial, where it disbanded.

Several bands and the East St. Louis Shriners' drum and bugle corps provided marching music. Patients at the center rode in convertibles interspersed among the units.

Solicitation of funds for the center, which cares for 100 children, will be made today and tomorrow.

LAS VEGAS HOTEL SUES MARIO LANZA FOR $124,970

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9 (AP)—Singer Mario Lanza was sued for $124,970.56 yesterday for his failure to appear in a show at the opening of the New Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., last April.

The hotel said it lost $100,000 in good will and profits by Lanza's failure to appear under his $50,000-a-week contract. At the time Lanza complained that he was suffering from laryngitis.

The hotel suit, filed in United States District court, also asks for $14,900 for the expenses of advertising and orchestra rehearsals. In addition, the hotel seeks to collect $10,121, saying it paid this amount on a promissory note Lanza had given a bank at Monette, Ark.

LONDON EXPERT FIGHTS CHICAGO TRAFFIC—IT WINS

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—A London traffic expert took the wheel of a Chicago taxicab yesterday and:

Ran one red light; drove over a pedestrian safety island; backed gently into a policeman on a motorcycle; frightened several hundred pedestrians, and came within inches of smashing into a truck.

No grief came to Alexander Samuels, a former cab driver and present chairman of London's Traffic Advisory Committee. One of his passengers was Capt. Michael Ahern, Chicago's traffic chief. Another was Col. Arthur Young, London police chief.

Samuels' comment on the 10 minute drive in downtown Chicago: "It's rather like a bombing raid."

But he said he thought Chicago's traffic flow was smoother than London's.

CHICAGO COUNCIL TO HOLD POLICE-GAMBLING INQUIRY

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—The City Council crime committee has scheduled public hearings this month in its investigation of a possible link between Chicago gambling and policemen. Alderman P. J. Cullerton, committee chairman, said yesterday hearings will be held Sept.

15-16 and Sept. 20-23 inclusive. He said about 45 gamblers and alleged racketeers and about 12 police officials are expected to testify.

Cullerton said police would be asked "detailed questions" regarding their finances.

Red China's Grain Output Up. TOKYO, Sept. 9 (AP)—Peiping radio today estimated Red China's grain production for 1955 at 180,400,000 tons—10-

COUNTLESS, 160 DOGS MOVE, NEIGHBORS CAN SLEEP NOW

CAPRI, Italy, Sept. 9 (AP)—Countess de Lazara and her 160 dogs have moved from this isle to a new home on the Italian Riviera at Bordighera.

Sleepy-eyed neighbors had made many complaints against her pets and conducted a long court fight that went up to Italy's Council of State. Its decision was that 160 dogs were too many, so the countess left.

FIREMAN ACCUSED OF BEATING YOUTH

Warrant Charges Assault in Incident at Maplewood Police Station.

Fireman Raymond Heidbrier of Maplewood, a former Maplewood police officer, was charged with assaulting Kenneth O. Buercklin Jr., a University of Missouri sophomore, in a warrant issued yesterday at Clayton.

Buercklin, who lives at 491 Hawthorne avenue, Webster Groves, told the Post-Dispatch the assault occurred Aug. 27 when he was in the Maplewood police station about 2 a.m., arrested in an automobile accident.

Heidbrier, who was a police officer until two months ago and still holds a special police commission, demanded to know what Buercklin was doing in the station, the youth said. He was alleged to have become incensed when Buercklin replied, "It is none of your business why I am here."

The fireman began beating him, Buercklin said, and, when he resisted, a police officer and a dispatcher came to Heidbrier's assistance. They held Buercklin, the youth charged, while Heidbrier continued to strike him.

Buercklin was then arrested. About 45 minutes later, Heidbrier came to a cell where he was being held, Buercklin said. He is alleged to have called Buercklin a name and struck him again. Buercklin suffered a broken nose and dislocated jaw.

Heidbrier told the Post-Dispatch today he was standing outside the fire department's sleeping quarters, which adjoins the police station, when he first saw Buercklin. He said he asked Buercklin what he was doing there and Buercklin, saying it was none of Heidbrier's business, grabbed the fireman by the neck.

"The desk officer and dispatcher came to my assistance," he said, "and pulled Buercklin off me. After I made a fire run I went back to where Buercklin was being held and asked him why he had jumped me. He cursed me and I slapped him."

Buercklin, 22-year-old son of a dentist, was charged with peace disturbance. His case is scheduled to be heard in Maplewood police court Sept. 20. The warrant charging Heidbrier with assault was issued by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis, who set trial of the case for Sept. 29. Heidbrier lives at 2537 Big Bend boulevard.

WAITER DIES, SERVED FAMOUS PEOPLE 50 YEARS

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—Hugo Schemke, who served many of the world's notables in his 50 years as a waiter at Luchow's Restaurant, died yesterday. He was 75 years old.

Not only was Schemke the favorite waiter of many writers, actors and diplomatic and society figures, he also corresponded with many of them after they left New York. Those he corresponded with included Henry L. Mencken.

Other regular customers of Schemke in bygone years were Victor Herbert, Thomas Wolfe, Ignace Jan Paderewski, "Diamond Jim" Brady, Enrico Caruso and Florenz Ziegfeld.

More recently he was the favorite of Helen Hayes, Rosalind Russell, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Billy Rose and George Jean Nathan. Schemke's own favorite was Carl Sandburg, whom he considered the most famous person he ever served.

"A good waiter," Schemke said in an interview three years ago, "knows better what a customer wants than the customer does himself."

HELICOPTER LANDING PLAN FOR HOSPITAL ROOF REVISED

A revised plan for a proposed helicopter landing area on the roof of Lutheran Hospital was formulated yesterday at a meeting of hospital and city officials and air travel administrators in the St. Louis area. The proposed facility would enable helicopters to transport seriously injured persons to the hospital for immediate treatment.

The new plan calls for a 50-by-50-foot structural steel platform to be constructed approximately 15 feet above the roof with additional facilities for removing patients to the hospital interior and parking helicopters on either side of the platform. The revised plan was advanced by Edwin B. Schaeffer, Civil Aeronautics Administrator here, who indicated the first plan, which provided a 28-by-42-foot platform, was considered inadequate by the CAA.

It was agreed at the meeting, also attended by Building Commissioner Albert H. Baum and Director of Public Utilities Conway B. Briscoe, that there was no city ordinance covering such a project, but both added a building permit would be required. Estimated cost of the revised plan is $50,000. Hospital directors have withheld final approval pending an investigation into possible means of obtaining the money.

MRS. EUGENE BARLOW, mother of the girls.

NON-ROADS SUBCOMMITTEE ON COUNTY BONDS MEETS

One of a series of fact-finding meetings preliminary to a report to the St. Louis County Bond Issue Executive Campaign Committee was held yesterday by its non-roads subcommittee.

Another meeting, to discuss auxiliary airport, hospital and civil defense proposals, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce building, 8003 Forsyth boulevard, Clayton.

Discussion of proposed programs affecting parks, welfare plans, and county buildings comprised yesterday's meeting attended by representatives familiar with the various programs.

BOY, 4, KILLED BY TRUCK DRIVEN BY HIS FATHER

Child Was in Driveway
—Two Men Hurt by Runaway Auto in Another Accident.

Larry Curtis Green, 4 years old, was killed yesterday when a small truck driven by his father, Napoleon Green, backed over him in the driveway of their home at 920 Cook avenue, East St. Louis.

The father, a Negro, told East St. Louis police he was watching from the left window as he backed. He stopped the machine when he heard one of his children cry out that Larry had been run over.

The right rear wheel of the truck had knocked Larry down. An inquest will be held in the boy's death.

Two men sitting in front of a confectionary at 1826 North Grand boulevard were injured last night when an automobile driven by Mrs. Mary Nell Gordon, 3927 Page boulevard, went out of control and ran onto the sidewalk.

The injured, who were taken to City Hospital, were Ralph Frederick, 52, proprietor of the confectionary, who suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, and James Lucas, 50, who suffered a laceration of the right hand. Both live in quarters at the confectionary.

Mrs. Gordon, a Negro, told police she was driving east in Garfield avenue and stopped the automobile when she reached Grand. As she prepared to turn into Grand, she said, her 10-year-old son, James Thomas, who had been sleeping on the seat beside her, awoke and stood up.

He stepped on her right foot, which was on the gas pedal, she said. This caused the motor to race and Mrs. Gordon, alarmed, released the clutch. The machine lurched across Grand and struck the men on the sidewalk.

HUMORIST P. C. WODEHOUSE SEEKS U.S. CITIZENSHIP

RIVERHEAD, N.Y., Sept. 9 (UP)—P. G. Wodehouse, 73-year-old British author of "Jeeves," sought today to become an American citizen. The creator of the world famous "gentleman's gentleman" has been living in Remsenburg, N.Y., for three years.

Wodehouse was captured in the German invasion of France at his Le Touquet Villa in May, 1940. He was interned by the Nazis for a year. He created ill feeling among the Allied nations with broadcasts he made over the German radio.

Arrested by the French as a collaborator in November, 1944, the humorist called the wartime broadcasts a "terrible mistake." He denied that they were anything but a description of his experiences. He was released from "preventive detention" by the French in March 1945.

MAN, 79, SERIOUSLY HURT IN 25-FOOT FALL FROM TREE

Albert Atamenchek, who is 79 years old, suffered a ruptured spleen, several fractured ribs and a fractured collarbone yesterday when he fell from a tree in the yard of his home at 2253 Indiana avenue.

Police reported Atamenchek fell about 25 feet to the ground when a limb on which he was standing gave way. He was trimming the tree when he fell. He was taken to City Hospital.

MYSTERY MAN SAYS REDS HELD HIM AS U.S. SPY

BERLIN, Sept. 9 (UP)—The mystery man released to American authorities by Russia said yesterday he was sentenced to 25 years imprisonment by the Reds on charges of being a spy from Jersey City, N.J.

He contended the Russians insisted he was an American named Charles Hopkins even though he produced his German identity card issued to Klaus Friedrich Glaubitz.

The Russians surrendered Glaubitz to American authorities with two United States soldiers last week.

A United States Army announcement said Glaubitz told interrogators he never had been in the United States. He said he came from the West German city of Hamburg and learned his "Good English" in a German army school during World War II.

The announcement said Glaubitz claimed he got drunk in the West German border city of Luebeck July 13, 1947, with an acquaintance who drugged him and took him across the border into the Soviet zone.

Glaubitz told the interrogators that since the Russians sentenced him as an American, he decided to assume that nationality and the name of Hopkins after his trial.

3 MORE GROUPS HERE REFUSE TO JOIN UNITED FUND

Heart Association, Cancer and Muscular Dystrophy Units to Solicit Individually.

The St. Louis Heart Association, St. Louis Chapter of the American Cancer Society and Muscular Dystrophy Association's St. Louis Chapter have refused invitations to join the United Fund—an organization in which many fund-raising campaigns will be consolidated into one. It is being tried here this year for the first time.

Previously the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis had declined to drop its March of Dimes and come into the United Fund.

Action of the latest three was announced yesterday by Donald Danforth, president of the United Fund. He said the national policy of all of them prevented their co-operation.

The 102 agencies of the old Community Chest are included in the new organization, which will have its campaign from Oct. 20 through Nov. 22, with 25,000 volunteer workers needed to do the job.

As for the four who rejected the one-drive idea, Danforth said: "We strongly believe that enough voices have been raised in our community expressing disapproval of the chaos of multiple campaigns to make it evident that any organization electing this course is knowingly disregarding the wishes of the people from whom it is seeking support."

"The individual giver can himself decide what his answer to this situation will be. This is a direct challenge to givers to make their support of the United Fund single gift idea so resoundingly clear that it will leave no doubt in the governing minds of any soliciting organization that St. Louis wants to do its giving the United Fund way."

He added that "the door will remain open" if any of the four outside agencies decide to join in.

No Hunting in Morocco.

RABAT, Morocco, Sept. 9 (UP)—The residency general of strife-torn Morocco has postponed the opening of the hunting season, it was announced today.

FLOOD INSURANCE MUST REST ON U.S., COLE SAYS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Housing Commissioner Alfred M. Cole indicated after meeting with representatives of the insurance business yesterday that any program of flood insurance would have to be underwritten by the Government.

The meeting in Cole's office was private, and Cole declined to tell reporters what attitude the insurance representatives took or what, if any, recommendations they made.

He said, however, that "it seems very doubtful to me that any program could be carried out by private industry."

Cole added that he favored some program to protect the public against flood catastrophes.

He said there was general discussion at the meeting of insurance problems related to all types of wide-scale catastrophes, including atomic warfare, but that there was no discussion of any possible disaster insurance program other than flood insurance.

Cole said he felt certain that some recommendation would go to Congress early next year, but declined to discuss what alternatives he has in mind.

KARSTEN HITS AT QUESTION ON RELIGION IN AID FORMS

A request that the state revise its practice of inquiring into religious affiliations of persons seeking public assistance was directed to Gov. Phil M. Donnelly by United States Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem., Missouri). It was learned yesterday Karsten said he had received many complaints about the practice.

Karsten indicated, in a letter to the Governor, that religious inquiries "might be" an infringement of the First Amendment which provides freedom of worship. He said that, if no satisfactory revision is made, he would recommend the matter be investigated by a Senate subcommittee, headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., investigating violations of the Bill of Rights.

Accompanying the letter was a copy of a questionnaire used by the State Department of Public Health and Welfare which asks "religion" be included in investigations of applicants seeking public assistance. Robert D. Rippeto, director of the state office here, said the question is optional and the form is not completed by applicants, but by his office on information from personal interviews. He said the information is used by religious groups in cases where no state aid is available or where additional assistance may be required.

WOUNDS OFFICER, SHOOTS SELF IN VIEW OF 20,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (UP)—A fugitive burglar died early today a few hours after wounding a policeman and firing a bullet into his own head in view of 20,000 spectators at Yonkers Raceway.

Edward Dabdaub, 32 years old, Bergenfield, N.J., died at a hospital. He was sought by police for burglaries in Bergen county.

Several hours earlier Dabdaub was cashing in a ticket at the winner's window when he was spotted by off-duty policeman Anthony Scipino, 33, Teaneck, N.J. The policeman and the fugitive were former schoolmates. Dabdaub recognized the patrolman and fled.

Scipino chased him and shouted to Pinkerton men for help. He caught the fugitive in front of the grandstand and knocked him to the ground. Dabdaub pulled out a .22-caliber automatic and shot the policeman in the shoulder. Then he shot himself in the head.

ELECTRIC POWER MERGER INQUIRY WILL OPEN SEPT. 19

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Senator Harley Kilgore (Dem.), West Virginia, chairman of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, announced yesterday the opening on Sept. 19 of a series of hearings on electric power industry mergers.

Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, a subcommittee member, will preside. Kilgore explained he would be in Europe on a different study.

Democratic strategists on Capitol hill have made it clear they hope and expect the investigation will turn up ammunition useful in the 1956 campaign.

Two Killers Die in Chair. OSSINING, N.Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Two New York city hold-up murderers died in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison last night. Clarence M. Reed, 32 years old, and Edward J. Nichols, 28, were electrocuted for the shooting of Arville A. Davis, 66, in a $200 card game holdup in New York City May 9, 1954.

WEATHER CUTS CROP PROSPECTS SLIGHTLY

Year's Total Still Expected to Be Second Highest in History.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that drought, hot weather and hurricanes cut crop production prospects somewhat during August. But the total volume is still expected to be the second highest of record.

Yields of corn, soybeans and grain sorghums in the western corn belt and central Great Plains were reduced by dry hot weather.

Storms and floods also caused losses to tobacco, vegetables and other crops in limited eastern areas.

The department estimated the corn crop at 3,113,000,000 bushels—down 364,000,000 from a forecast of a month ago. Nevertheless, there will be ample supplies of this major livestock feed grain because of surplus supplies from past big crops.

The soybean prospects were reduced about a twelfth during August, but the indicated crop still exceeds the previous record by a seventh.

U.S. TO LIFT EXPORT BAR ON SOME ATOM EQUIPMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced today that export controls on some types of atomic equipment will be lifted Sept. 26.

After Sept. 26, it said, manufacturers will be permitted for the first time to export such items as radiation instruments, mass spectrometers and spectrographs, vacuum diffusion pumps and certain kinds of electronic machines.

The action is part of this country's atom-for-peace program. It also is a move to help American manufacturers to get into the world market.

ARMY IMITATION CHECKS USED AS LURE BACKFIRE

DETROIT, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Michigan military district suffered a 62,000-fold headache today as a result of a campaign to spur inactive reservists into participation in Army Reserve units.

Imitation checks, showing the amount an individual would have received had he been active in the Reserves for a year, were mailed to 62,000 veterans. The Army learned that several checks had been cashed.

The district has warned merchants to be cautious in their check-cashing.

6 TO 10 SATELLITES IN 1957-58 GIVEN AS U.S. OBJECTIVE

BRUSSELS, Sept. 9 (AP)—An American scientist said today the United States will be launching from six to 10 artificial space satellites during the 1957-1958 International Geophysical Year.

Prof. Homer E. Newell Jr. of the United States Naval Research Laboratory made the statement in an address to the special committee of the International Geophysical Year meeting in Brussels.

The White House announced last July 29 that the United States planned to launch history's first man-made, earth-orbiting satellites by the end of 1958.

That announcement said the satellites, still not perfected, were envisaged by Government scientists as small globes, about the size of basketballs, which would be launched by rockets, circle the earth once every 90 minutes at a height of 200 or 300 miles.

They would be expected to provide information of practical value to mankind—for instance in the improvement of weather forecasting and radio transmission.

Display of Old Autos.

Twenty old automobiles from the years 1897 to 1922 will be displayed by the Antique Automobile Club of St. Louis Sunday between 2 and 5 p.m. at the Museum of Transport, Barrett Station road, west of Kirkwood, it was announced today.

WESTINGHOUSE GETS JOB BRITISH BID FOR

Army Awards Generator Contract to U.S. Firm as Ordered by Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—The Army, in a long-standing controversy, yesterday awarded a contract for six generators at the Chief Joseph Dam in the Columbia river basin to Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Low bidder for the generators was the English Electric Export and Trading Co., Ltd., but Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson last month ordered the Army to reject the British bid.

The Defense Department explained that the lower foreign bid was thrown out "in order to place the procurement in a domestic area of substantial unemployment."

The Army said Westinghouse will produce most of the items for the generators in the Pittsburgh area. This has been declared an area of substantial unemployment by the Labor Department.

Westinghouse was the low United States bidder at $6,338,491. The firm said it will furnish the generators at a guaranteed efficiency of 98.40 per cent. The Army had called for a guarantee of 98.15 per cent.

The Army said, "This has an added value to the Department of the Army of approximately $446,250 at no increase in cost."

BRITISH UNIONS DEMAND CUT IN DRAFT PERIOD

SOUTHPORT, England, Sept. 9 (UP)—Britain's Trades Union Congress demanded a cut in the military draft period today to ease industry's manpower problems.

Delegates to the annual convention roared approval of a resolution calling for a 12-month reduction in the current two-year draft period as a step toward eventual abolition of national service.

Albert Packwood of the United Pattern Makers Association told the delegates, who represent 8,000,000 workers, that the draft was "having a serious effect on the industrial and economic life of the country." The delegates rejected a motion opposing the rearming of Germany.

NAVY FIGHTING ICE TO SUPPLY ARCTIC RADAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—The Navy is battling time and the treacherous Arctic icepack in an effort to land 500,000 tons of supplies and equipment at America's northern-most defense outpost.

The supplies must be landed before the short Arctic summer is over. The operation, about two-thirds completed, is complicated by the "shifting and threatening Arctic ice-pack," the Navy said. So far, about two-thirds of the projects has been completed.

It said V. Adm. Francis C. Denebrink has flown to Point Barrow to take personal charge of the operation, described as "the greatest seaborne assault ever made on the Arctic."

Some 123 ships, led by ice breakers, are trying to land equipment to build Arctic outposts in the new Distant Early Warning radar system. The radar centers would warn of any attack on this country over the great northern routes.

REPLY TO SUIT ATTACKING INVESTMENT FIRMS' MERGER

A suit for $6,000,000 damages against American Investment Co. of Illinois and for an injunction against its merger with Domestic Finance Corp., filed Wednesday at Springfield, Ill., was termed a "flimsy and transparent attempt to harass the great majority of shareholders of both companies" in a statement issued yesterday.

Donald L. Barnes, president of American Investment, said his company now owns 80 per cent of the Domestic common stock and that the overwhelming majority of the remaining stockholders who have sent in proxies were in favor of the merger.

He said that as far back as 1951, American had cleared with the Federal Trade Commission in Washington its plans to acquire control of Domestic. He also denied the merger would tend to lessen competition in the consumer finance industry since the combined operations of the merged company would represent less than one per cent of the total volume done by the entire industry.

AIRLINES URGED TO LIMIT SALE OF LIQUOR ALOFT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Their trade association proposed to the scheduled airlines today that they limit the sale of liquor aloft and bar or remove drunks from airplanes.

The suggestions were drawn up as the Civil Aeronautics Board hinted it might take "corrective steps," saying public protests against drinking aboard airliners are "becoming more pronounced."

Under the tentatively-proposed rules, no alcoholic beverages would be served aboard planes on Sundays or national election days, or to minors or intoxicated persons. Sales would be limited also to flights of more than two hours, and to the hours between noon and midnight. Passengers who became drunk and noisy en route would be "deplaned" at the first stop.

The proposal was mailed by Harold L. Pearson, president of the Air Transport Association, to the 35 airlines that are A.T.A. members.

SUMNER, Miss., Sept. 9 (AP)—Two white men will go on trial Sept. 19 on indictments charging that they murdered Emmett Louis Till, 14-year-old Chicago Negro. Circuit Judge Curtis Swango set the date this morning.

The two, Roy Bryant, 24 years old, of Money, and his half-brother, J. W. Milam, 36, Glendora, admit abducting Till from the farm of his uncle, but deny killing him.

FAKE CUT CHARGED IN MILITARY BUDGET

Senator Douglas Says Credit Was Claimed Twice for Single Item.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem., Illinois), today accused the Administration of submitting a "fake" military budget last January and of now trying to take credit twice for military savings.

Douglas said last January's budget was a "fake" because the Administration itemized military expenditures totaling $3,750,000,000 but claimed that $1,750,000,000 "would be saved" from unspecified sources.

Douglas said in an interview, however, that the Administration has waited until now to make good on its savings pledge and is trying to "claim credit twice for one set of savings."

Douglas's charge was prompted by reports from defense officials that the Treasury Department has pressured them to cut spending to help wipe out the predicted $1,700,000,000 federal deficit for this fiscal year.

Douglas said that by "postponing a decision until now" where it wanted the $1,750,000,000 in military savings made, the Administration is "weakening our national defense."

Senator A. Willis Robertson (Dem., Virginia), a member of the committee, expressed doubt that the military budget can be cut sufficiently to achieve the Administration's objective of a balanced budget this fiscal year. "Pointing out that defense officials claimed they were presenting a tight budget last January, Robertson said he did not see how any further cuts could be made without slicing into the muscle of the national defense.

"They had better not make any cuts and then come back before the committee in January," Robertson said.

Reuben B. Robertson Jr., deputy secretary of defense, asserted Wednesday night that the Administration planned no "drastic" cuts in defense spending just to achieve a balanced budget.

He said the Defense Department was aiming at a spending total "in the neighborhood of $4 billion"—a level which, he said, the Defense Department indicated it hoped to achieve in submitting the budget in January.

Flashes of Life

Reunion.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A little more than six years ago, Mrs. Lee Steorts and Mrs. Aaron F. Skolnick shared the same room in the maternity ward of a Salt Lake City hospital. Both had sons, born four days apart—Bruce Skolnick and Scott Steorts. This week, the two mothers met again for the first time since their 1948 meeting. Each was taking her son to register in the first grade. Both boys were assigned to the same classroom.

Strong Arm Stuff. OMAHA, Nebr. (AP)—Henry

Geil went to his police files to get a man's record. He pulled at the file drawer. No action. He yanked at the drawer. It popped out. Geil picked himself off the floor with a sprained back.

This Is Not Baloney.

DETROIT (AP)—Anthony Mangiapane wrapped $800 in brown paper and put the package by the cash register in his butcher shop. A woman walked in and he waited on her before placing the money in a safe.

"She pays me, she leaves, then I think of the money," he said. "I grab the package. It's not firm like money... I open it... it's her sausage." He added, "Maybe in a few days when the lady takes it out of the ice box to eat, she'll bring back the $800. Freezing won't hurt it."

Truman Blasts Administration For Lowering Defenses, Warns Reds Must Be Faced by Strength

Don't Let Budget Cutters Dismantle 'Shield Against Aggression,' He Says—Calls Security 'More Important Than Income Tax Rate.'

By EDWARD F. WOODS

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.

HARRY S. TRUMAN today blasted the Eisenhower Administration's lowering of the nation's defenses and warned that in the current peace negotiations with the Communists they must be faced with "armed strength and not armed weakness."

In a "non-political" address before the Executive Club here, the former President said that he did not want to throw a damper on the hopes that have been raised for progress toward peace.

"On the other hand," he said, "I would not have us forget the lessons of the past. I would not have us take an easy road that leads to disaster. That is why I have raised this note of caution here today."

"Do not expect too much too fast. Do not be too impatient. Do not clamor for the dismantling of our armed forces. Don't let the budget cutters dismantle them either. Remember our Armed Forces are still our shield against disaster. Remember too that any nation which values its freedom in this interdependent world must be concerned with the needs and the well-being of other nations. And remember this, we are talking about something much more important than your income tax rate."

Won't Change Overnight. The international picture, he said, is not going to change from black to white overnight, adding that "anyone who tells you it can or will is either badly misinformed or guilty of fraud."

The former President made no direct reference to President Eisenhower or others in his Administration but there was no mistaking what he had in mind in the light of current remarks from persons high in the Administration that because of the "easing of tensions" resulting from the President's talks with the Russians in Geneva in July it would be possible to cut back on defense spending and thus open the way to a balanced budget and reduction of income taxes.

Truman noted that the balance of power in "this troubled world" rests not on arms alone but also on people as well. He said, therefore, that the United States must bear in mind during the peace negotiations that there must be no relaxation "in our efforts to remove the blight of poverty, disease and ignorance which cause people yearning for a free and better life to yield to the blandishments of totalitarian ideas."

Slap at Aid Opponents. In a direct slap at those who would reduce economic aid to underdeveloped countries, the former President said:

"Let us not forget that Communism got its start and its hold in Russia and China because those countries were cut off from the main streams of political and economic progress in the last century. It is our responsibility and our interest to see that neglected people in underdeveloped areas do not lose their faith in freedom and fall prey to subversion and tyranny."

It will cost money to keep America free, a great deal of money, and it will take sacrifices that money cannot buy, but it will be worth every bit of the cost, he said.

Truman developed a major theme that in the first place in the talks with the Communists the United States should maintain an attitude of considerable skepticism as to their promises, because they have broken promises before, and that the United States should keep up the strength and readiness of its defense forces and increase that strength and readiness in those areas where the nation has not achieved the levels which, he said, the maintenance of world peace requires.

"The build-up of the armed forces which was begun during my administration has given us a very powerful military establishment," Truman said. "The present Administration has seen fit to cut it down below the goals which we had established, but it still represents a very great military strength."

Reds Respect Strength. "I think that strength has had much to do with bringing about the attitude of apparent reasonableness on the part of the Communists and thus is achieving the result we hoped it would."

This is further proof of a fact that has been demonstrated many times—the Communists do respect strength. If we value peace and freedom, we must be strong."

The United States cannot be complacent about the military forces it now has, Truman said. Recent disclosures, he said, concerning Soviet aircraft and development "raise very serious questions concerning the adequacy of our own forces."

"Responsible authorities," he continued, "tell us that we are losing ground to the Soviet Union in airpower. Both in terms of their power to defend themselves against attack and their power to strike blows of annihilation against our cities, they are making enormous gains. We are losing the margin of leadership we held a few years ago. The implications of these facts are enormous and dreadful."

He said there is nothing in the world today, so far as he

Adenauer Visit To Have Effect On Big 4 Talks

If He Extracts Concessions, It Augurs Well for Geneva.

By JACK TAIT

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.

AMERICAN diplomatic experts believe that if West German Chancellor Adenauer wins hard concessions from Soviet leaders in Moscow that the Geneva conference of the Big Four foreign ministers beginning next month will have a good chance of success.

The German-Russian talks are regarded here solely as a step in a long campaign for a general European settlement. Washington officials do not expect Adenauer to make progress on the question of German reunification, but they do expect him to keep the question in the forefront of the discussions.

The United States has suggested to the chancellor that he hammer away at German reunification to help convince the Russians that the West is adamant on this point.

At the same time the United States has made it clear in Bonn that it supports fully the Adenauer position on the two Germanies concept, that it would back the chancellor in any refusal to do business with Moscow on the basis of recognizing the status quo—a divided Germany.

With obvious qualifications, officials here see a parallel between the present German visit and the visit of Austrian leaders to Moscow last spring. It is true the Soviet Union obtained from the Austrians agreement for the neutralization of their country but this was satisfactory to the Vienna delegation and to the West.

More importantly, it was pointed out here, the Austrian-Russian talks led to the Geneva summit conference of last July and some improvement at least in East-West relations.

Therefore, it was said, it could be a happy augury for the forthcoming Geneva meeting of foreign ministers in October if substantial progress is achieved in Moscow in the next few days.

If the Russians agree to release German prisoners and if they prove tractable on matters of diplomatic relations between the two countries, trade and cultural exchange.

Time for Solution. If this pleasant prospect comes to pass, one diplomat said, it will be assumed by the West that the Soviet Union "thinks it is time for a satisfactory solution of the entire European problem."

"If the Russians do not think the time is ripe to discuss a broad settlement with western Europe and the United States," the diplomat said, "then I would expect them to give little in a concrete way and to try to sell the idea of two Germanies to Adenauer."

The diplomat said Adenauer went to Moscow with "no illusions that all the republic's troubles would end there."

"Adenauer went to Moscow," he said, "to find out exactly what the Russians have in mind. And not a single German in the government is overly optimistic. Very few top Germans say that reunification is a matter to be worked out between Bonn and Moscow. They recognize these problems as problems concerning the Western powers and the Soviet Union."

But to maintain his political position in West Germany, one official pointed out, Adenauer must be able to come back from Moscow and tell his people: "I fought down the line for reunification, but they opposed me all the way."

Midwest next year. "I don't think there's anything they can do to remedy it," he said, referring to the Republican Administration.

Told that Republicans were blaming the situation on his Administration, Truman said "They did that in the past and they'll do it in the future."

Truman also reaffirmed his support of Adlai E. Stevenson for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination. He told reporters that Stevenson telephoned him from New York this morning to express his regret at not being here for Truman's foreign policy speech before the Executive Club of Chicago.

The former President said the subject of politics came up and "I told him if he announced for President I would be for him."

Asked how he felt about Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams as a presidential candidate, Truman said Williams was among about 10 Democratic governors who would make good Presidents.

When a reporter asked if this included Texas Gov. Allan Shivers, who bolted the party to support President Eisenhower in 1952, Truman replied "He's no Democrat."

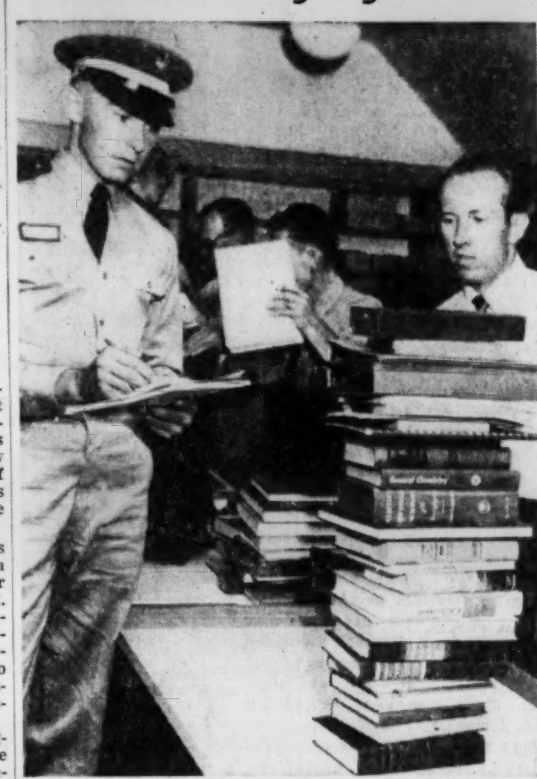

"What would you call him?" a reporter asked.

"A Shivercrat," Truman answered.

Truman said he still takes regular walks and had strolled for two miles on Michigan boulevard early today. He said he doesn't play golf, unlike President Eisenhower.

"I never had enough money to play golf," he said.

U.S. Reported Building Good Will at Fairs

Eisenhower Tells Congress of Benefits of $5,000,000 Program.

DENVER, Sept. 9 (AP).

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER today sent Congress a report saying the United States is winning friends throughout the world with a $5,000,000 program showing off United States wares and cultural arts.

The report deals with this country's participation in international trade fairs in Europe and Japan, and with the appearance abroad of such American attractions as the Philadelphia Orchestra, the New York City Ballet, and the stage production "Oklahoma!"

The summary, dispatched to Washington from the President's vacation headquarters here, covers activities for the period April 1 through June 30. It was prepared for Mr. Eisenhower under direction of Theodore C. Streibler, chief of the United States Information Agency.

"This has been the most active period to date, not only in the number of projects presented but also in the creation of favorable climates of opinion throughout the world," the report says.

It was sent to the Senate and House Appropriations Committees.

The new survey reports on 11 trade fairs—10 in Europe and one in Japan—and notes that three others were held earlier in Europe and one in Thailand. "Since the program started, some 2,500,000 people have visited United States central exhibits in 15 fairs," the report says. "More than 25,000 trade inquiries by foreign business men have been made at United States trade information centers at these fairs."

"Over 800 American firms have patriotically contributed their products for display at the United States Government exhibits to demonstrate American industrial quality, progress and power."

The report adds that further benefit derived from the fairs "has been the direct contrast stimulated in the minds of the spectators between the nature of the goods produced in a free society and those produced under a totalitarian economy."

His Wife and Son Lead Faction Urging Him Not to Run Again—Health Seems Only Factor Which Could Keep Him Off Ticket.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

IN THE SECRET DRAMA that has been unfolding in the White House for many months, it is pretty clear that what may be called the faction of the anties has sustained a heavy setback.

In other words, President Eisenhower is acting much more like a candidate to succeed himself than he would be called on to act, if he merely wished to control the Republican convention and to dictate the choice of his own successor. On this head, the goings-on in Denver speak for themselves.

Probably this outcome was always inevitable. The most experienced of all observers of the American political scene, Frank R. Kent, has long held that it was an immutable law of American politics that first-term Presidents cannot possibly resist the forces driving them to run again. In this case, the problem was more interesting than it usually is, because of the character of the faction of the anties.

Mrs. Eisenhower Opposed. The leader of the anties has been Mrs. Eisenhower. It has often been rumored that the President's wife disliked the idea of his running again. It can now be stated on undoubted testimony that the rumors underrepresented the real situation. Mrs. Eisenhower has not merely disliked the idea of a second term. She has strongly and consistently used her very great influence against it. Furthermore, it can also be revealed that the influence of Mrs. Eisenhower has been powerfully seconded by the influence of Maj. John Eisenhower, which is also very great.

The combination of a man's wife and only son would be pretty formidable in most families and it is especially formidable in the Eisenhower family. In addition, Mrs. Eisenhower and Maj. Eisenhower had formidable arguments—that the presidency was too heavy a burden to be taken on a second time at the President's time of life; that the President had done his duty and could gracefully retire, and that this was the moment for the President to escape to the Gettysburg life he loves.

However transitory and even dangerously deceptive the other Geneva results may prove, there is no doubt whatever about one result. Single-handed, with no lever but his smile, the President raised the reputation of this country abroad from somewhere very near the depths.

The feat itself quite naturally exhilarated the President, giving him a sense of achievement that he has not always had in the White House. Furthermore, the very fact of this feat at once gave a heaven-sent argument to those who wanted him to run again. In our domestic politics, they said, it may be that no man is indispensable; but it has now been proved that at this critical juncture, the President is the

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Blocking Clayton Traffic

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The widening of Clayton road at Big Bend, the cancellation of a traffic study by Clayton and the present miserable condition of traffic flow in St. Louis county should bring the authorities to sober thought before the bond issue goes before the voters.

If there is to be no better management than is evidenced at the present, all the millions for expressways will not help improve a rotten situation.

Every possible means at the command of the authorities has been used to delay, hold, stop and hinder traffic. From the Red Feather highway west to Brentwood boulevard a six-lane highway manages to move two single lines of traffic each way at a snail's pace, but not all of the way.

Walk lights stand at Skinker to permit possibly ten pedestrians a day a little help across the highway. Left turns are permitted at all crossings, unmarked, narrowed by but-tons in the center lane.

Right turns are permitted at all times for one car to turn east into Clayton from Big Bend, just enough to block the eastbound traffic of hundreds of cars. And so, on and on!

Now for the main hindrance at all the main intersections. The operation of the lights! They are too fast for peak traffic, piling cars up by the hundreds in every direction and they are left that way all day, even though nine-tenths of all the traffic, outside of one hour in the morning and possibly an hour and a half in the afternoon, is either going east in the morning, or west in the afternoon.

Is there any excuse to hold hundreds of cars every day every morning going east while one or two cars use the rest of the light interval? Or, hold them up going west all afternoon?

Let the authorities make a study and the high school kids run the traffic and we won't spend half our driving day in this 10-block area. The devil with the expressways! Let's have a little common sense applied to what we have.

COUNTY VOTER.

Looking for Work

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You have millions of Americans wondering with you whether the spontaneous and gracious plug Vice President Nixon gave a well known hotel enterprise is part of the job of being Vice President of the United States.

Such backslapping seems to be second nature with Mr. Nixon, and the latest incident is no exception in his political and public service career. He may be looking to 1957, and to a public relations job with some leading organization. At least a lot of Democrats think he will be available for private employment.

JOSEPH BRODERICK.

Do Citizens Need It?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

May we have editorial comment on the advent of the "community steward" program by the teamsters' union? I wasn't aware that citizens needed an intermediary to handle their dealings with their elected officials.

STUART THOMPSON.

A Use for Garbage

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was very grateful to see that the Post-Dispatch has the vision to see what a catastrophe could be caused by polluting the Mississippi river. In a report by the Bi-State Agency, we were advised to take steps to guard against pollution of the river.

The City of St. Louis is now grinding garbage and putting it in the river. A little over a year ago, we suggested to the city that garbage be converted into fertilizer. Also the sewage can be made into fertilizer. Since the bond issued passed, the Board of Aldermen voted to contract a new garbage grinding plant for $275,000. Why not invest in the matter of making fertilizer out of this ground garbage, instead of pouring it into the river?

WILLIAM H. BENERT.

'Don't Blame Stan'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In answer to Reader William C. Schuch, who seems to think that the amount on the face of Stan Musial's paycheck determines the Cardinals' position in the won and lost column: When a team is as heart-breaking as the Cardinals, it is inevitable that someone should blame the only real star on the team, a star who plays his heart out each day, no matter how lopsided the score.

Please don't blame Stan. One man cannot lose a ball game—just one man alone cannot possibly win.

SHIRLEY J. WHITE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Does Reader Koch think Stan has always received $80,000? I'm sure he started at a rookie salary—just as many as any other player. Anyway, how else would you arrive at a player's salary, other than by past performance?

Baseball is strictly business and I don't believe any player receives one cent more than he's worthy to the club. Stan has well earned every cent of his salary. It would take more than dividing Stan's pay among the rookies to correct everything that ails the club.

P. J. MHNEMEYER.

Germany's Hard Test

There is a temptation to find an omen in the contrast between West German Chancellor Adenauer's reception in Moscow on Thursday and in Washington last June. The Russians rolled out their best red carpet and their top men were at the airport. In Washington the Chancellor was greeted by Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. while President Eisenhower was at Gettysburg and Secretary of State Dulles was in Indiana to receive an honorary degree.

Since Dr. Adenauer talked to the President and Secretary of State at length, it would be foolish to make much of this. Yet it serves, in a way, to call attention to the responsibility of the Western powers—and the United States especially—for the dilemma in which Dr. Adenauer finds himself in the Kremlin conversations.

The big point which he insisted on adding to the agenda when accepting the Russian invitation was the reunification of Germany. In doing so, he was responding not only to the demands of almost every German political faction, but he was acting also on assurances from the West. Washington especially urged German rearmament and NATO membership as essential to the "position of strength" from which Bonn could insist on reunification.

Yet after Geneva it is doubtful whether any Western nation would sacrifice a general easing of tensions for the sake of putting Germany together again.

Thus the present state of Germany is likened by Melvin Lasky, editor of Berlin's American-sponsored Der Monat, to that Wagnerian midpoint at which the Nordic saga suddenly appears confused and complicated, the plot seems suddenly to have come to a standstill, and the shadowy figures of the gods, heroes, and villains lose themselves in the flickering of strange lights and the rumble of stage machinery.

More specifically, the editorial writers of the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung are asking whether the policy so far followed by Bonn has been a mistake. They are evenly divided, and each is writing separate and signed articles. Thus one of Germany's most famous moulders of opinion is fragmented. It seems typical of a post-Geneva Germany full of talk about another Korea and another Indochina.

But present policy cannot be based on what might have been. As Dr. Herman Heimpel, Brunswick political leader, is telling his fellow-Germans: "Let no one think that there is something written in the stars which proclaims a natural right of national unity." He reminds his countrymen of the days when there was a King of Prussia and a King of Bavaria. He cites the German section of Switzerland and all of Austria as areas long accepted as outside a national Germany.

The goal of reunification certainly need not be given up, but as Munich's Sueddeutsche Zeitung says, "Germans must learn to live with unsolved problems." The great virtues now are patience and perseverance.

The most unfavorable aspect of the present German situation perhaps is the strident way in which some politicians, members of the Adenauer coalition, harp on reunification. These men are motivated by German pride and a sense of German power and destiny. They are not neo-Nazis, but they worry Dr. Adenauer. Will a nation which has twice taken the wrong turn in this century, follow such men to a third disaster?

It is to be doubted. The Chancellor may not come back from Moscow altogether empty-handed. And his refusal to be weaned from the West may establish a realistic foundation for future discussions. Even stalemate may be only a harsh name for peace.

What is important for the West, meanwhile, is a clear recognition of its part in this German drama and a firm resolve not to abandon it. Such a stand need not violate the spirit of Geneva. Indeed it could show that this spirit demands that no nation shall live with unsolved problems forever.

Condolences to Mexico

Nicolo Impastato, the Kansas City gangster who served time for making a living by illegal sale of narcotics, has left the United States voluntarily under an order of deportation. Instead of returning to his native Italy he has taken up residence in Mexico. That is indeed a misfortune for Mexico. It is too bad that he went to a neighbor of ours rather than as far away as possible. A good watch should be kept upon his activities in Mexico since the border is busy territory for narcotics smugglers.

As to Toughening the Draft

The Defense Department is up against a tough problem in the training of military personnel so as to offer maximum resistance to brainwashing and other tactics employed against prisoners in time of war.

Uncle Sam reaches into a home, takes a youth and attempts in short order to make a soldier or sailor or flyer of him. Then it may expose him to the hazards of the battlefield, including capture. He may be put through a long forced march by a brutal enemy. He may be questioned for days on end. He may be tortured. If he breaks under this pressure and goes over to the side of the enemy, as a few did in the Korean war, then he may be convicted, upon release, and punished by imprisonment. He can argue that his disgrace stems from military service which he did not seek in the first place and which did not prepare him for the ordeal that lay in store for him.

In response in part to criticism along this line, the Army, the Air Force, the Marines and the Navy have been giving some of their personnel training for possible experience as prisoners of war. Attention is centering currently on Stead Air Force Base, near Reno, Nev., where volunteers are subjected to "realistic and rough" tactics by "captors" who thus indicate what might be expected at the hands of battlefield enemies.

There can be no quarrel with the intention behind such training. That every one who enters military service should be told what might happen on capture is not open to question. And within reasonable limits, it is desirable for verbal instruction to be accompanied by example and illustration. The best training program is the one that knows how far to go and where to stop.

Recently some St. Louis Marine pilots went through a simulated prisoner experience at the Marine Base at El Toro, Calif. One of the officers walked five miles barefooted on rocks and sand in near 100-degree heat. His feet were blistered and it was two days before he could stand comfortably.

There are enough risks in military service, in handling and operating guns, in troop movements and otherwise, without inviting injury as in the instance just described. Blisters have caused infections and infections have caused death.

Actually the number of prisoners has never been proportionately large and the number of prisoners who go over to the enemy and give assistance is of course far smaller. The Defense Department needs to take this into full account in its training program. It would be foolish to overtrain in a field of hazards which could not anticipate all the devices of the enemy anyway. No amount of "training" short of starvation itself would show how dissimilar youths would react to forced hunger.

If lives are to be endangered in the armed forces in resistance training, it is not too much to ask that the President personally be acquainted in detail with the procedures. As a career soldier, Dwight D. Eisenhower ought to want to know just what the 1955 draftee is exposed to in the name of toughening him up.

A Blank on Sewers

J. M. Bogdanor, St. Louis county, chairman. William W. Martin, St. Louis, vice chairman. Joseph L. Doran, St. Louis county, member. J. E. Williams Jr., St. Louis county, member. William C. E. Becker, St. Louis, member. George C. Willson, St. Louis, member.

These six men are the Trustees of the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District, a new governmental agency which the people of city and county created in February 1954 to solve their common sewer problems.

The plain facts of nature and geography in the St. Louis area dictate this approach. There is just no other way. Water flows down hill, and most of St. Louis county is on high ground that drains through St. Louis and thence into the Mississippi river. The natural watersheds through which this flow channels itself ignore political boundaries; so do flies, mosquitoes and other disease carriers. A single agency must control an entire watershed or there will be no control at all.

But to date, almost 18 months after the District's creation, the Trustees have not built a single foot of sewer nor have they taken over operation of a single sewer. In short, the record of the Trustees, while it may be excused in part because of the unprecedented legal and other problems with which they have been faced, nevertheless is a blank.

One important thing the Trustees have done is to create—legally and on paper—a subdistrict in the Maline Creek watershed, an area of some 25 square miles in the northwest part of the county. But having taken that preliminary step, they seem unable to move ahead and clear the other hurdles necessary to putting in a trunk sewer to lick the Maline Creek menace.

First, their executive director, L. E. Ordeheide, announces it has been decided to make a "fresh start" on engineering plans for the Maline Creek sewer. If this is not a bland confession that the District has made no plans for this watershed, then what is it? What has Mr. Ordeheide been doing these last few months?

On top of all that the Trustees now announce they will issue no bonds for new sewer construction until after they have assurance of regular revenue for operations. The Trustees have been unable to solve their revenue problem, and they give no assurances of being able to do so. Thus they are telling the people of Maline Creek that even if the "fresh start" on the engineering studies produces results soon there still may be no action.

This is intolerable. The Trustees, three from the city and three from the county, were appointed under terms of the District's charter by Mayor Tucker and Supervisor Matthews. These two officials will perform a public service if they can build a fire under their appointees and thereby stimulate them to make the agency function. An agency that does nothing is the same as no agency at all.

A Reporter and the FBI

Attorney General Brownell describes as "routine" the FBI investigation of two news stories appearing in The Washington Post and Times Herald. We hope it stays that way. An investigation into the sources of news which went very far beyond the "routine" stage might get close to official intimidation of the press.

Two FBI men called on Chalmers Roberts, The Post's State Department correspondent, and asked him to tell where he got two stories.

One story, on Nov. 5, 1954, reported that the United States was negotiating a mutual security pact with Nationalist China. The other, on Nov. 8, 1954, reported that Secretary Dulles and three of the four members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff had recommended an American air attack on the China mainland if necessary to hold Quemoy and Matsu, but that President Eisenhower had refused to accept their views.

The common element in these stories, both of which proved to be accurate, was that they purported to deal with what went on at a meeting of the National Security Council on Sept. 13, 1954. It seems fairly obvious that somebody at that meeting broke the rules by telling part at least of what went on.

The Department of Justice naturally wants to know who breached the official secrecy, but in our opinion Mr. Roberts was fully justified in refusing to disclose the source of his stories. He told the FBI that he had seen no secret documents, violated no law and broken no secret code to get the news, but he declined to tell just how he did get it.

This stand was justified because no question of security or military secrecy was involved in Mr. Roberts' reporting. On the contrary he performed a public service of the highest value when he let the country know what it had every right to know at the time of tension over the China coastal islands.

That the Secretary of State and the majority of the military leaders in September 1954 were urging American air support of Chiang Kai-shek at the risk of all-out Asia war, and that President Eisenhower was rejecting their advice—this was news that should have been published as it was published. Mr. Roberts is entitled to praise rather than any official reprisals for publishing it.

If Mr. Brownell wants to know who told the reporter let him ask the members of the Security Council. One of them should know.

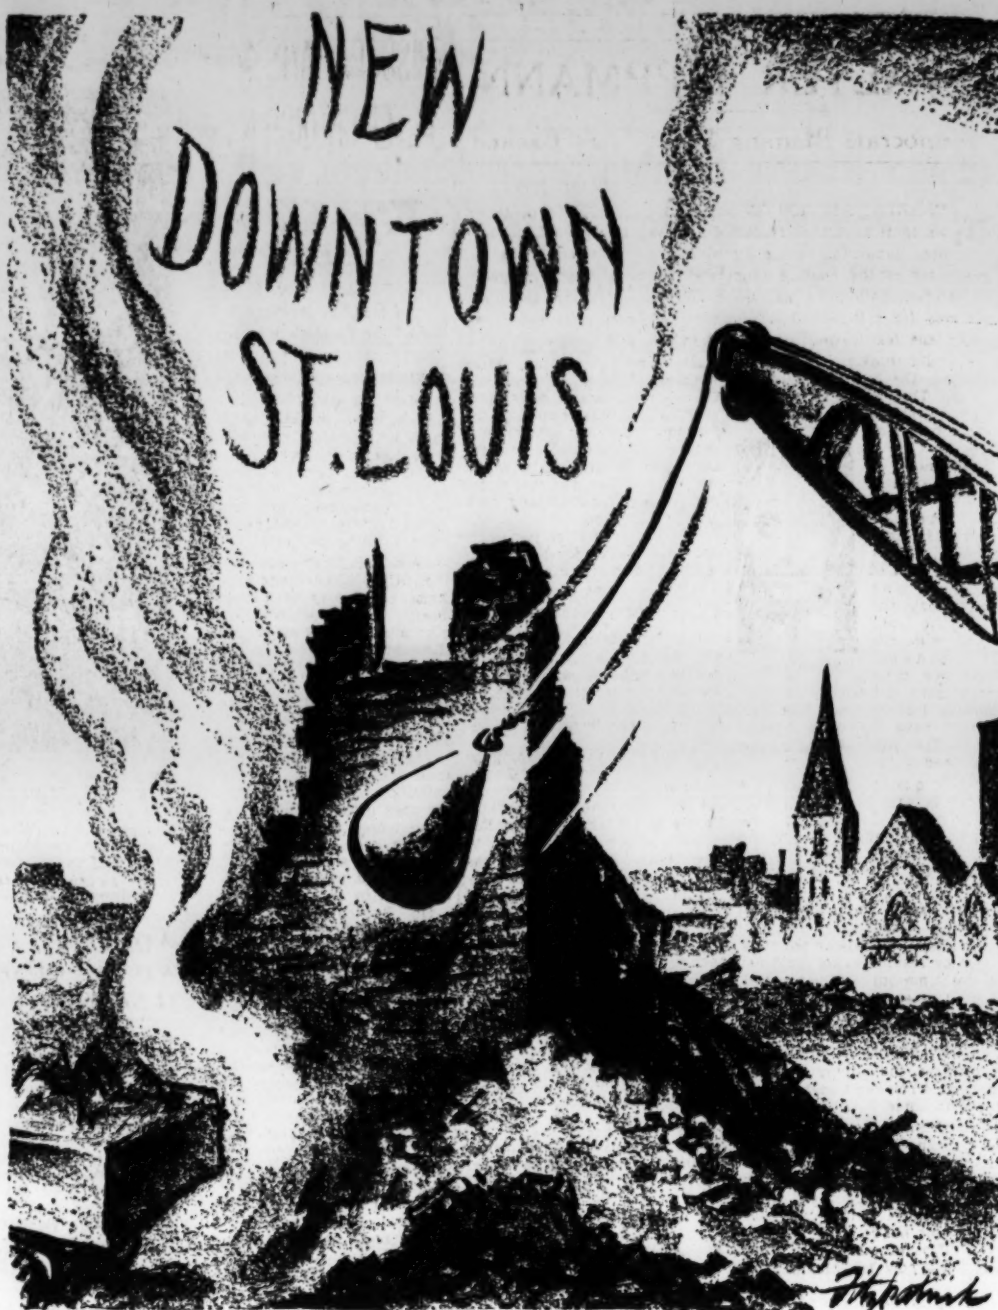

One and the Same Man

The case of Joseph Gaherman seems even more baffling than other recent mysteries disclosed in the Government's security program.

Gaherman's lawyer says a civilian loyalty board found that Gaherman was a security risk as a civilian Navy employee, so Gaherman was discharged as a naval psychologist. But later a military board, hearing some of the same evidence, ruled that Gaherman could keep his commission as a lieutenant in the naval reserve.

Among the charges against Gaherman was one that his father had been a Communist. Recently the nation has learned of several security cases in which men were judged for what their fathers, mothers or even former professors allegedly had done. The Gaherman case adds a new element. For how could he be more "risky" as a civilian than as a naval officer? Why should Psychologist Gaherman be considered as different from Lt. Gaherman?

Somebody in Government ought to explain whether the split personality belongs to Gaherman, or to the workings of the security program.

LAST BIT OF DUST FLIES

The Harry Cain Mutiny

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Right-wing Republican's revolt against Administration security program has Washington a-dither; Westerner explains he just knows more now; to hell with the merits, White House Aid Sherman Adams said in demanding team play, Cain claims.

L. Edgar Prina in Collier's

When former Senator Harry Pulliam Cain took the oath as a member of the Subversive Activities Control Board two years ago, no one—including himself—could have predicted the astonishing change in his thinking on security matters that would follow.

Here was a right-wing, pro-McCarthy Republican before he left the Senate, a defeated one-term, in January, 1953. Here was a die-hard supporter of the late Robert A. Taft's presidential ambitions, the vigorous and articulate "G. O. P. man" who had been a vocal opponent of the Eisenhower Administration.

A bookmaker on politics would have given heavy odds that the vigorous and articulate "G. O. P. man" who had been a vocal opponent of the Eisenhower Administration, one of the few politicians who did not jump on Ike's band wagon even after it was thrown.

Turning toward the White House, would have diligently attended to his new $15,000-a-year job and done nothing to irritate persons in higher authority.

Salvo Delivered in Spokane

The bookmaker, as everyone knows by now, would have lost a bundle. Last Jan. 15, Cain spoke to the archconservative Fifth Congressional District Republican Club in Spokane in his home state of Washington. This turned out to be the opening salvo in what has become known as the Harry Cain Mutiny.

Harry Cain, the man who had used Communism as a personal political weapon in the campaign that vaulted him into the Senate in 1946 and then used it again to block confirmation of Mon C. Wallgren, a nominee of President Truman, had now delivered a scorching attack on the Administration's employee security program.

He called it unfair, too severe and a threat to the rights of American citizens. He demanded reforms.

If there were some who didn't believe what they read, Cain banished all doubts on March 18 in a speech in Washington, D.C., before the National Civil Liberties Clearing House. This time he blasted the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations and called for its prompt liquidation.

Three members of the United States Supreme Court have voiced approval of Cain's crusade: Chief Justice Warren and Justices Frankfurter and Burton.

There were other persons, however, who were less than enchanted by Cain's outspokenness.

Adams Gives Cain 'Unshirtd Hell'

When the SABC member returned to the capital after his Spokane speech, he received two telephone calls from the White House. One was from Maxwell Rabb, the President's adviser on minority group problems. "Harry, why didn't you let us screen that speech?" Rabb asked.

"Max, because I wanted to give it," came the unabashed reply.

The other call was from Sherman Adams, the Assistant to the President. "He gave me unshirtd hell," the 49-year-old Washingtonian asserted. "I tried to explain the merits of my criticism of the security program, but he snorted: 'To hell with the merits. You understand this problem better than I do, but this is a team and you're expected to play on it.'"

If Cain has been an irritant to some of the White House entourage, he has been unadulterated poison to the Justice Department. One high official there, when asked to comment on the former Senator's Spokane speech, said that Cain is speaking outside his field of responsibility.

The official went on to explain what many persons do not understand about our complicated internal security system—that is, that members of the Subversive Activities Control Board do not hear employee security risk cases. Cain's job on the board is to help determine whether the Attorney General is correct in alleging that an organization is a Communist front.

Brownell reportedly informed a group of Republican leaders in Seattle that Cain did not have the foggiest notion of what the security program was all about and that he was one of the most disruptive influences in the Administration. The former Senator, who himself is not insensitive to criticism, thought the matter over for a few days and then wrote a 10-page letter to Brownell. It is doubtful whether the Cabinet officer has ever been spoken to more bluntly.

Brownell Takes New Tack

"I am not convinced you appreciate the vast difference between your public pronouncements and the lack of achievement (in combating Communism) that follows," he declared. Cain said he had not been on the board long when "it became distressingly apparent that something was organically wrong in your department." He continued:

"The threat of Communist subversion and infiltration is either real, as you constantly say it is publicly, or it is more fanciful than real, as this board's workload might indicate."

A new tack was taken by Brownell in the wake of the Cain letter. He directed Assistant Attorney General William F. Tompkins to meet his severest critic for a series of basic discussions on the security program. When the talks were concluded May 10, Cain felt confident that he had convinced Tompkins that at least two important improvements should be adopted at the earliest time.

The first proposal was one that Tompkins already had been considering: to allow department heads to keep an employee on the job at least until his case has been heard. At present, the employee must be suspended without pay before he may be granted a hearing. The second was that the Government should provide counsel for its civilian jobholders in security cases, just as it does for its men in uniform in courts-martial.

A Setup 'Fair as Well as Firm'

Cain was hoping to get a reply from Tompkins on what the Justice Department planned to do. Cain still is waiting. Because of a certain amount of misunderstanding, Cain likes to make two things clear:

He has not become, in his own words, a "liberal." His switch is confined to the one issue of internal security and individual liberties.

He does not favor a weaker security setup. He wants the present one to be "fair as well as firm."

"If a security officer has charges that can stand up, then I'm on his side," he says. "I am still as anti-Communist as I have always been—only I know a little bit more about it now."

While neither Jenner nor McCarthy suggested that Cain might be motivated by visions of a return to the Senate, some Administration officials say privately they believe that's it.

They believe, however, that his prospects for winning the Senate nomination in a battle with popular Gov. Arthur E. Langlie, an "early Eisenhower man," would be slim.

On his own part, Cain continues to deny he plans to run for any office.

Between Book Ends

From Capital to Liability

CITY DIVIDED: BERLIN 1955, by Ewan Butler. (Frederick A. Praeger, 167 pp., $3.75.)

Americans visiting Germany for the first time would be appalled by the visible destruction and desolation there as a result of World War II. Nothing in the United States could prepare the visitor for sights of wholesale ruins in battle-scarred Germany, although 10 years have elapsed since the end of the war.

Principally hit by Allied bombs and artillery were large industrial cities such as Berlin, the once proud capital of a powerful nation inflamed with a lust for conquest. Their city torn, politically divided and often times misunderstood, Berliners have been subjected to an ordeal for the last 10 years which is a more subtle challenge than any they faced during the war.

Ewan Butler, author of three novels and several other works on the war and Germany, has presented facts and figures showing that in the years immediately following World War II Berlin became a liability to the German Federal Republic after having been one of the cornerstones of culture and economics in Europe.

In 1950, Berlin's exports paid for little more than 33 per cent of her imports, but by 1952 the city was paying her own way from day to day to the extent of 70 per cent. Today, a small gap exists, but it is closing fast.

Mr. Butler's conviction that West Berlin's recovery is a story of determination, hard work and faith in the future of circumstances far more daunting than those which West Germany was called on to face, has been borne out by other writers and statesmen. Economically, the Eastern section remains no more than a "relatively unimportant point in the Soviet bloc," he states.

Written with an understanding of his subject, Mr. Butler shows West Berliners as non-militarists, yet not minimizing their guilt. "Because they suffered more than any other of their countrymen, they are more conscious of their own responsibility than their compatriots who live in the relative security of the Federal Republic," he said.

Although there is no foreseeable prospect of relief from suppression of liberty and free speech in East Berlin, West Berliners are opposed to the system of government which controls the countryside all about them and they are cut off by the system from the West to which they belong spiritually and in every other way.

Mr. Butler, who has lived in Berlin up to completion of this book, has presented a picture of life in Berlin which can be readily understood by anyone who has spent time in Germany. He does not whitewash the city, but shows that inequities of espionage, smuggling and kidnapping and other evils persist. Above all, he has presented Berlin as it is.

Hawthorne's Daughter

ON WINGS OF FAITH, by Marguerite Vance. (Dutton, 145 pp., $2.75.)

There could be no more appreciative audience for this story of Nathaniel Hawthorne's youngest daughter, Rose, than girls in their early teens. This is a life parallel to their own. In Rose the great urge was toward creativity, though each form of art to which she turned her hand seemed to fulfill only the mechanical requirements. That her search ended in religious conversion and the founding of the Dominican Order of St. Rose of Lima is, in a sense, more important as a creative step than as a religious one. That Rose Hawthorne Lathrop became Mother Alphonsa is virtually as important storywise because of the hitherto unattempted work of her Order as for her conversion to Catholicism, and the ensuing personal changes. Within this story itself there is enough power and movement to be highly effective without superimposing moral teaching.

Democrats Blaming What They Backed

WASHINGTON. M. R. ADLAI STEVENSON has an article in Look magazine which is severely critical of the way foreign affairs have been conducted by the Eisenhower Administration. As Mr. Stevenson is the leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, we may ask ourselves not whether there are grounds for criticism, but whether the Democratic party can take issue legitimately with the Administration.

I would think that as of now at least the Democrats cannot do it. That is not because the Eisenhower-Dulles record is above criticism. Far from it. It is because by their support and by their silence the Democrats have forfeited the chance, and with it one might say the right, to take issue with the President. Things may look very differently a year hence. But as of now the Democrats have no quarrel with what the Administration has managed to do.

Stevenson.

No Horse of Their Own.

As the Democrats do not criticize the results, as they did not at the time oppose the method, they have as the opposition party no record of their own to oppose to the Eisenhower record.

And as the saying goes in politics, "You can't beat a horse with no horse."

As of now, we are, one might say, in the last act of a melodrama. The heroine has passed through a series of hair-raising escapes. Will she then marry the handsome young man who sat on his hands when she was in peril because he has much to say about how hair-raising it all was?

There is no doubt, I think, that the President has made a great, a unique, and a necessary contribution to reducing the probability of a third world war. He has done this by maintaining our military power and alliances and also and not less by clarifying our fundamental policy in the Far East.

This is not, I realize, the official line which holds, or at least used to hold, that having incorporated West Germany and its 12 promised divisions in NATO, the Soviet Union was being compelled to retire and to retreat.

Unleashed and Unreleased.

If we pay attention not to what the Administration has said but to what it has been doing, we can say that it has pulled back from positions of weakness, where we were overextended, to positions which the United States and its allies are strong enough and willing enough to hold.

This is how, after the alarms of war, the truce which prevails in the Far East was brought about. The President planted himself in Formosa and in South Korea, which can be defended by the retaliatory power of the United States.

EPISCOPALIANS MAY ALTER CHURCH NAME

Convention Considers Dropping 'Protestant' From Designation.

HONOLULU, Sept. 9 (AP)—The fifty-eighth general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, having made several moves to soften attacks made by delegates on the Roman Catholic Church in South America, today turned its attention to a proposal to change the church name.

There has been a move to drop the word "Protestant" from the name. The matter normally develops sharp debate, one convention source said.

Less than three hours before the Right Rev. Egmont M. Krichke, Bishop of Southwest Brazil, was to address a foreign mission meeting last night, the church's public relations office announced there would be several revisions in his prepared text because of "an unfortunate choice of words which gave a false impression."

The revisions deleted all reference by name to the Roman Catholic Church and toned down the speech to some extent. But as delivered it charged "Latin peoples are religiously undernourished," and said "their illiteracy and credulity have been exploited in an appalling way."

On Tuesday the Episcopal bishop from Central Brazil, the Right Rev. Louis C. Melcher, made several critical references to the Roman Catholic Church in a convention speech.

His remarks prompted the Most Rev. John J. Scanlan, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Honolulu, to say the speech was "regrettable, ill becoming and in bad taste."

The Right Rev. Harry S. Kennedy, Episcopal bishop of Honolulu, also made an effort yesterday to smooth over ruffled relations with the Roman Catholic Church.

He said in a statement, "I can say that the relationship of the Episcopal Church and the Roman Catholic Church in Hawaii has been most friendly and cordial. We are all grateful for the contribution the Roman Catholic Church has made to the spiritual life of Hawaii."

"The general convention is a democratic body. Individuals may speak and not in any sense spokesmen for the Episcopal Church, nor express the feeling of or attitude of the church."

The House of Bishops yesterday passed an amendment that the presiding bishop "with the advice and consent of the National Council" may change the convention site if there is sufficient cause. This year's convention was moved from Houston, Tex., because of racial segregation there.

A resolution adopted by the bishops and House of Deputies ordered a tighter control on the kind of music that can be played in church. It gave the clergymen the "final authority" on what music can be played.

One clergyman said the resolution is "aimed primarily at marriages."

"Some people," he said, "want to have played what they consider is their song and it could be something like 'I Met a Million-Dollar Baby in the Five-and-Ten-Cent Store.'"

EISENHOWER LIKELY TO RUN ON GENEVA RECORD

indispensable man on the world political scene. According to persuasive reports, it was this new argument introduced at Geneva that rather decisively turned the White House debate in favor of a second term.

Many Things Can Happen. All sorts of things can of course happen between now and the Republican convention. It is more and more likely, for instance, that the free half of the world will suffer disastrous defeats in the Far East in the next six to eight months. What this may do to the President's post-Geneva glow is anyone's guess.

Again, the President's state of health is obviously magnificent. Yet no man of his years can be absolutely guaranteed against the kind of little upset which would be trivial for most men, but in the situation in the White House would give much greater force to the pleas of the President's wife and son. For these and other obvious reasons, Mr. Eisenhower's course cannot be absolutely forecast. But on one point, one may now be quite certain.

The President's power of choice in this matter has been invisibly but rapidly diminished. He no longer has the option of saying that he will not run because he does not choose to. His moral commitment to the Republican party is now too great. He cannot possibly escape running, unless he is willing to shield himself squarely behind an opinion from his doctors that he ought to do so. That is the only argument which is not sure to be shouted down.

ST. LOUIS CATHEDRAL TO BE COMPLETED

$1,780,000 Expansion, Modernizing Project to Take Seven Years.

Plans for completing and modernizing St. Louis Cathedral at an estimated cost of $1,780,000 were announced today by Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter. The work is expected to take several years.

The huge Byzantine-style Mother Church of the Archdiocese of St. Louis was begun in 1807 when the late Cardinal John Glennon was archbishop. It was opened for services in 1914 and consecrated in 1926, but never finished because of heavy construction costs.

Plans announced by Archbishop Ritter include construction of a sacristy wing, installation of lighting for both the interior and exterior of the building and completion of mosaic work on all interior arches and domes, now only half done.

"With the tremendous growth through the years of the population of the archdiocese and of the Cathedral parish itself, it is altogether fitting that we now undertake completion of the Mother Church of St. Louis," Archbishop Ritter said.

Construction of a sacristy, a vesting room for priests, was proposed originally, but was dropped to fit costs. Plans call for building a 41-foot wing extending into present parking area at the rear of the church. The contract for the work, estimated cost of which is $250,000, has been awarded to Maguolo-Quick Architects.

Present overloaded and obsolete lighting equipment within the church is to be replaced. The new lighting system, installation of which will cost an estimated $260,000, envisions also artistic illumination of the finished mosaics and exterior floodlighting of the dome, entrance and towers. Contract for the work has been awarded to S. C. Sachs Co., Inc. The work, already started, is expected to be completed by fall of 1956.

Cost of completing the mosaic work in the church is estimated at $870,000. The contract for the work has been awarded to the Ravenna Co. of St. Louis and its associate, Ravenna Co. of Berlin, Germany. The German company will design and fabricate the mosaics and the local company will install them.

About 3000 square feet of mosaics are in the process of fabrication and will be installed in small domes on the main floor of the Cathedral after Jan. 1. The remaining mosaic work, some 3000 square feet, is to be done in the large main dome and smaller domes in the sanctuary and nave.

Completion of the Cathedral could not be accomplished in recent years because major repair work was required on the exterior of the structure before

Three color TV systems will be set up. One, at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, will be used in research, teaching and consultation services. Another, at Walter Reed Hospital, will be used primarily for teaching and demonstrating surgical procedures. The third, at the Army Medical Service Graduate School, will make camera pickups, in operating rooms and classrooms and project demonstrations to other classrooms.

DR. ROBERT A. MOORE NAMED TO NATIONAL CANCER GROUP

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Public Health Service today named Dr. Robert A. Moore of Pittsburgh, Pa., to the National Advisory Cancer Council. Dr. Moore was formerly dean of Washington University School of Medicine at St. Louis.

Announcement also was made of the appointment of Dr. Lucien A. Baretta, Los Angeles, as a visiting scientist in the National Institute of Dental Research.

Dr. Moore is vice chancellor of the schools of the health professions at the University of Pittsburgh. Dr. Baretta is professor of biophysics and nutrition in the School of Dentistry at the University of Southern California.

The interior work could be considered. This task was accomplished in steps during the last four years at a cost of $400,000. The work included a new tile roof, cleaning, tuckpointing and installation of new gutters.

REAPPOINTED TO BAR GROUP

Harry Gershenson, former president of the Bar Association of St. Louis, has been reappointed to an American Bar Association committee which is reviewing the Hoover report, it was announced today.

86,034 ENROLLED IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Total Is 2402 or 2.87 Pct. Above Year Ago—More Due Later.

Opening-day registration in St. Louis public schools yesterday totaled 86,034, an increase of 2402, or 2.87 per cent above last year's first-day figure.

By the end of next week, registration is expected to be complete, with 90,000 pupils anticipated, compared with last year's 88,410. The rise is being led by the elementary schools, where registration reached 67,758 yesterday. Last year's corresponding figure was 65,794.

Only division to show a decline was general high schools, with 13,755, compared with 13,865 in 1954. This drop was more than made up, however, by a gain from 3045 to 3545 in the technical high schools, only division where racial integration is incomplete.

Lack of desegregation in upper grades of the technical high schools is due to a delay in construction of the new O'Fallon Technical High School.

Because of desegregation and population shifts, a sharp reduction in cost of elementary pupils' transportation by bus from crowded districts is in prospect. Twenty-six buses will be required, compared with 36 used last year. From 60 to 70 children are carried in each bus.

Arrangements for bus transportation were under way today in St. Louis county, where opening-day registration increases were reported yesterday and where some districts' schools have yet to open their doors for the academic term.

About 150 fifth- and sixth-grade students in Ritenour district are being carried by bus from two crowded schools to buildings with more room. Superintendent Arthur A. Hoech reported. Ritenour reported a first-day registration of 8674 compared with 8058 in 1954.

Gain in Normandy. Total registration in the Normandy district, where schools opened yesterday, was 6990, a gain of about 150 pupils. In the Kirkwood-R-7 district, the increase was 505, from 6088 to 6593.

Opening-day registration at Harris Teachers' College, operated by the St. Louis Board of Education, totaled 976, compared with 928 in 1954.

Collins Hits Two Homers for Yanks Against White Sox

Larsen Is New York Pitcher

Yankees-White Sox

CHICAGO (At New York)
0000003
NEW YORK
0003011

Managers: Chicago—Donovan and Lollar; New York—Larsen and Berra.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (UP)—Joe Collins hit two homers for the New York Yankees against the Chicago White Sox here this afternoon. His first blast, in the fourth inning, came with two mates on base, and his second, in the sixth, with nobody aboard.

Casey Stengel's Bronx Bombers took the field half a game behind the league-leading Cleveland Indians, scheduled for a night game at Boston, while third-place Chicago was two and a half games from the pace.

Don Larsen, former Brownie right-hander and a Yankee mainstay since his recall from military service, was trying for his seventh victory of the year. The White Sox starter was Dick Donovan, who previously had won three of four games against the Yankees.

Earlier Single by Collins. Donovan and Larsen dueled through the first three innings without yielding a run. The only Yankee hit was a second-inning single by Joe Collins. The White Sox put at least one man on base in each of the first three innings but they threatened only in the first, when Nellie Fox scratched a single off Larsen's glove and Minnie Minoso followed with a walk. However, Jim Rivera and Bob Kennedy flied out to end the threat.

Collins gave the Yankees a 3-0 lead in the fourth when he slapped his tenth homer of the year into the right field stands. Gil McDougald opened the inning by beating out a bunt and Yogi Berra followed with a walk. Donovan fired a called third strike past Mantle, but Collins pulled a 3-2 pitch just inside the right field foul pole for his circuit blow.

With two out, Billy Martin singled to center and Larsen was credited with an infield hit when he beat out Chico Carrasquel's throw to first base. Rizzuto then hit into an inning-ending force out.

Collins' second home run was almost identical to his first, landing in the right field stands near the foul line. Larsen, meanwhile, had allowed only four hits through the first six innings. Kennedy touched him for a one-out double in the fourth, but Walt Drope struck out and after Sherman Lollar was purposely walked, Jim Busby flied out to end the inning.

INDIANS SHADE ORIOLES IN 10TH

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (INS)—The Cleveland Indians won Thursday games and the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox were defeated.

The White Sox lost the fifth game of their last seven yesterday as the bullpen began to show the impact of a long, tense pennant battle. The 4-4 defeat at Washington dropped the White Sox 2½ games behind Cleveland.

The Indians continued to roll along with a half-game lead over New York by topping Baltimore, 5-3, in 10 innings. The Yankees, blasted Kansas City, 13-0, a 5-4 loss to Detroit pushed the Boston Red Sox four games behind.

The White Sox had what seemed a routine victory in the making with a 4-1 in the sixth inning. But when starter Virgil Trucks tired, yielding a two-run homer to Mickey Vernon, the bullpen couldn't protect it. The Nats slammed two more across in the seventh with Morrie Martin the victim. Trucks hadn't lost to the Senators since 1933.

Quick Kick

In the opinion of Oklahoma's BUD WILKINSON, Iowa State might be a first-division sleeper in the Big Seven this year. Leaning heavily on the sophomores he recruited, second-season Coach VINCE DI FRANCESCO reportedly has held extremely rough scrimmages for the Ames opener with Denver's Skyline champions.

Key player WADE MITCHELL, Split-T quarterback and safety man at Georgia Tech, is extremely tall for a back, 6-4. He weighs 195 pounds. SAM SALERNO, Big Seven heavyweight wrestling champion, is a definite threat to Oklahoma's monopoly on All-America line-man honors, maintains SKIPPER PATRICK of The Associated Press. Salerno, 225-pound guard, is 15 heavier than a year ago.

Is it possible that Maryland, an unforgettable 74-13 victor over Missouri last Thanksgiving day at College Park, might lose to Maryland this time in the opener at Columbia because of the Terps' Sept. 24 battle with U.C.L.A.? In an unbeaten season last year the Terps needed good fortune to nip Jim Tatum's team in Los Angeles, 12-7, but will travel to Maryland this time.

Both The Associated Press and International News Service tabbed U.C.L.A. as national champions this fall while FRANCES WALLACE, writing in Collier's, named Oklahoma first.

Haddix Tries Screwball On Giants; It Helps But Mates Fall Shy on Runs

Nobody ever asks the easy question, "What's right with the Cardinals?" This is a crime against efficiency, as it prevents short answers and thereby wastes time.

Short, printable answers still are available in the Cardinal clubhouse. Harvey Haddix had some last night. He stood before his locker, a sight to make Brooks Brothers proud of its merchandise. He had been able to make himself natty earlier than others, because the New York Giants in the sixth inning wore his pitches well.

It became a 6-to-2 New York victory, and Haddix's fifteenth defeat. Arithmetic thereby shook off what small element of suspense remained to Haddix in this year's baseball. He has won 12, and the Cardinals have 16 games to play. Unless luck claps him to its bosom after all these months of story disarray, Haddix will have an under-500 season for the first time in his career, minor league or major league.

He Could Use Some Runs. Reasons for this have been suggested to him. He was hanging a curve ball, and he was delighting the batters with moves that indicated what pitch was coming. Corrections followed suggestions, but victories haven't. One refrain returns, then: Is there anything physically wrong?

"Nothing," said Haddix. "I've never felt better playing baseball." He Could Use Some Runs. There is one reason why he never should have felt worse. The Cardinals in the 15 games he has lost, have averaged 2.33 runs per game. In one Haddix defeat, they scored five. In one Haddix defeat, they scored four. In all others, they scored three or less.

This doesn't establish a one-way villainy, however. Haddix's earned-run average is more than double the 2.33 that the Redbirds, unable to see the forage for the chicken feed, have scratched up for him. He observed the no-comment niceties, at no great cost. The morale-building advantages of early runs, sometimes known as a lead, are popularly accepted. 2.33 average doesn't provide many.

Against the Giants, Haddix tried his final cure of the season. He threw a screwball. He has done it before, but this time he did it with something like confidence. Returns varied. He struck out six and home-run pitched Bill Gardner. This seldom happens to Gardner.

"It wasn't a screwball I threw," said Haddix. "But I'd throw him a screwball the pitch before."

Nothing was much help to him in the sixth inning last night. He still had a 2-1 lead, after Gardner's homer. Then all Hoffman broke loose. Hoffman led off the sixth with a double. Three successive hits were made after that. Haddix tried throwing to third, for a pickoff, and it solved less than his throws to the plate. A run scored, and another man moved to third, as the would-be pickoff went into his wild way into the hinterlands. Haddix was removed after the fourth hit, a double by Wayne Terwilliger.

It gave him time to dress, and to count his change, before the athletes entered in the silence that is the uniform of the day. Haddix held a nickel, slumming with a fistful of pennies. "Lucky pennies," he said, and dumped them. One stuck to his hand. Next year's pennies? Haddix shook his head. Nothing will carry over, he said, and hurled the penny away. He used his right arm to do it, though, proving he still has solid left-handed thinking about the future.

Home for Grammas. The Cardinals had their brief fling against McCall, a 2-1 lead after four innings, on singles by Stan Musial, Bill Virdon and Bill Sarni in the fourth, and a home run by Alex Grammas in the third. It was light-hitting Grammas's third homer. He explained his recent rash of power: "Me and Ruth—we always hit a lot of them in September."

Cardinal officials talk about it as if uncertain whether they're torturing themselves or drawing fresh hope, but 15 of their 19 farm clubs finished in the first division. The only first-place clubs were Fresno, Class C, and Hamilton and Paducah, Class D.—J. R.

Dodger Regulars to Get Brief Rests, Alston Says

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 9 (AP)—"There'll be no letup if I can help it. We'll win as many as we can from here on in."

So said Walter (Smokey) Alston after his Brooklyn Dodgers squelched the Milwaukee Braves, 10-2, and clinched the National League pennant yesterday on the earliest date in the history of the circuit. "I'll rest Reese, Robinson, Campanella and Furillo from time to time for a game or two," he said. "No longer. We'll try to operate at full strength right down to the wire."

"We're as set on pitching right now as we were when the season started," Alston said happily. Two of his biggest hill question marks of the last two months—Billy Loes and Karl Spooner—showed to advantage in the two-game set with the second-place Braves. Both have been troubled with sore arms.

Spooner in Superb Form. Loes went all the way to handout the Braves, 3-1, on six hits Wednesday night. Spooner, a strikeout sensation at the close of the 1954 season, pitched five and two-thirds innings of hitless relief and fanned nine of the 19 batters he faced to help salt away the flag yesterday.

The bullet-throwing left-hander came on in relief of Roger Craig, who gave up both Braves' runs in the third after the Bums had taken a four-run lead in the first.

The Braves kicked up another putting together a single a wild pitch and another single to threaten again. Spooner took over and fanned pinch-hitter Bob Roselli and Danny O'Connell to shut the door. The Dodgers put the game and the pennant well out of reach of the Braves with another four-run spurge in the fifth. Gil Hodges and Jackie Robinson were the hitting stars. Gil got three of the 11 Brooklyn safeties and drove in three runs. Robinson also accounted for three RBIs, two on a home run. Thus the Dodgers finished up the year against the Braves—their chief "competition"—on the long end of a 15-7 count.

Seventeen games in front with 16 to play, the Brooks clinched the '55 flag on the earliest date in the 79-year history of the league. The "Dodger Express" bettered by four days the old speed record for the National League course here Sept. 12, 1953. The New York Yankees hold major league honors in the "early-bird" department, having staked down the American League pennant in 1941 on Sept. 4.

Giants Were Even Quicker. On a games-played basis, however, the Dodgers fell short of the 1904 New York Giants, who wrapped up the pennant that year in their 137th game. Yesterday's game was the Dodgers' 338th.

This marked the eleventh consecutive season and the sixteenth time in 17 years that the Dodgers have finished third or higher. In 1946 and 1951 they wound up tied for first, but lost in playoffs to the Cardinals and the Giants, respectively. The Brooks left little doubt as to their target from the opening run, ticking off winning streaks of 10 and 11 games and leading by nine and one-half lengths after their first 24 games. They went into a slump in August, losing 12 of 18, but none of the other clubs could capitalize on it, and the Brooklyn bulge grew to 16½ games.

Braves Kicked Up Another Putting together a single a wild pitch and another single to threaten again. Spooner took over and fanned pinch-hitter Bob Roselli and Danny O'Connell to shut the door. The Dodgers put the game and the pennant well out of reach of the Braves with another four-run spurge in the fifth. Gil Hodges and Jackie Robinson were the hitting stars. Gil got three of the 11 Brooklyn safeties and drove in three runs. Robinson also accounted for three RBIs, two on a home run. Soldier Mizell Hurls No-Hitter And Fans 22

CAMP BENNING, Ga., Sept. 9 (AP)—Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, the Cardinals' lefty now in service, pitched a no-hitter and struck out 22 for the Braves at Camp Benning, Ga., in a 3-0 victory over Fort Bragg, N.C., yesterday in the Third Army baseball tournament.

Patty Berg Gets Down to Business, Opens Fire With 68

Veteran Leads by 3 Strokes

The Toledo Tells. LITTLE things make a difference, said Mary Lena Faulk, now going strong again in her first year as a professional woman golfer.

Little things, including three-quarters of an ounce less in the weight of her woods.

On the pro tour, where every stroke counts, the Thomasville (Ga.) star became the victim of overweight wood clubs right in the midst of a spectacular start as a money player.

She told the story at Norwood Hills where the St. Louis Women's Open is in progress. It not only explained a dip in her tournament performance earlier this year, but it also indicated that before long she could get her first, tour triumph.

"Could be," she said with a smile, but then she went out and shot a first-round 76 that put her eight strokes off the pace and not in very good position.

Mary Lena, 29, once a National Amateur champion and one of Georgia's top golfing products, turned pro for the St. Petersburg tournament in February.

She broke into the money immediately, finished in a tie for second in her fourth pro start, then was only two strokes behind the winning Patty Berg and second again in the titleholders tournament.

Then began a series of tournaments in which ninth, eleventh, twelfth, seventeenth and nineteenth places were her lot. These are pretty far down in women's golf.

Something's Wrong. "I WASN'T too happy," she related. "I took my woods and went back to the Spalding factory and one of the experts put them on a scale."

"Land sakes," he said. "You weren't trying to swing these clubs were you? I told him about my back trouble and how everybody thought I was getting tired on the tour. I knew I wasn't tired but I just couldn't get the clubhead through."

"Well, it turned out the woods were three quarters of an ounce too heavy—about like a medium weight man's club. So I got a new set, made while I sat there and watched, and the man at the factory said they'd never and me another set of woods without having them carefully checked."

Result was Mary Lena went back to the tour, finished ninth in the Women's Western Open, second in the National Open, somewhat lower in three more events, but then only a stroke back of Patty Berg when Patty won the "World" at Tam O'Shanter.

"I was one stroke back going into the last round of the National Open, but then I lost a few. I was two strokes back in the titleholders and was leading by one after the fourth hole of the final round, but I didn't know it at the time. At Tam I led by three going into the last round but then I took 79 to Patty's 75."

"I need a little more experience. I didn't feel the pressure at Tam. But on the last round I pushed my first tee shot a bit and got in trouble and took a 6. I did the same at Battle Creek. I've done that too often. Several of my good rounds have come at the start—my first round as a pro was 69 and I've never equaled it since. But then I always seem to come up with a double bogey and I'm learning that you can't get away with that and win. You've really got to keep a tight rein on yourself. A tee shot early in a round can be just as important as any other shot. I always think well on shots around and on the green but I have had to learn that every other shot is just as important."

The Life Agrees With Her. TEN pounds heavier (at 130) than when she won the Westborough Round Robin women's division last year, Mary Lena is happy in her new pro career.

She said she would have to go to work and quit playing amateur golf on papa's pocketbook and her own earnings as a bookkeeper.

"I didn't have it in mind to turn pro then," she said, "but I like it now that I have. I'm independent, making my own way. My tournament earnings are around $8000 and even though I'm still surprised at the high cost of living, and wonder how the family man supports his family, I'm doing all right. I paid back the $300 my mother loaned me at the start, paid it back within two months."

Now all she needs is a victory—and even if that is not forthcoming here, she'll be satisfied for the present.

"I'm more philosophical about the game now," the new pro said. "As an amateur I thought I had to win everything. But now as a pro I know I can't win 'em all. However, there's the room for everybody and I'll slip in there sometime."

Patty Berg Gets Down to Business, Opens Fire With 68

Veteran Leads by 3 Strokes

By John J. Archibald

Patty Berg, who can be a chunky, freckled clown a few hours before a tournament begins, also knows there is a time to be businesslike. Patty let the humor take care of itself yesterday as she plodded off to a seven-under-par 68 and a three-stroke lead in the St. Louis Open Golf Tournament at Norwood Hills Country Club.

Only another remarkable score, a 71 by Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., kept the tournament from taking on the appearance of the runaway that last year's open became when Betsy Rawls caught fire. On the first day last year Miss Rawls shot a 67 and led with a comfortable margin all the way. She had a par 75 yesterday.

The four-day tournament resumes this afternoon for the pros. Miss Berg will be paired with Betty Jameson, who had a third-place 73, at 1:03 p.m.

Three women are tied for fourth with 75s. They are Gloria Armstrong, Oakland, Calif.; Betty Bush, Detroit, and the defending champion, Miss Rawls.

Just for a Laugh. Miss Berg, who had the crowd at Wednesday's clinic in stitches with her hamming-up of the shot demonstrations, showed the folks the right way to do things yesterday. She had one eagle, five birdies and 12 pars—no bogeys. She was three under with a 33 on the front nine, then returned with a four-under 35.

"It was my irons," said Patty after the round. "Of course I wasn't doing anything very hard today, but I was able to make it easy for myself with good iron shots."

Patty had a fine chance to equal the 67 that Miss Rawls shot last year when the meet was held at Glen Echo, but she missed a 16-foot putt on the eighteenth hole. It would have given her a birdie, but instead the ball veered away from the cup just as it seemed about to go in.

The eagle was on the 403-yard No. 16 hole. Patty was on in two, then sank a 15-foot putt. She needed only 30 putts for the 18 holes.

Briefly in Lead. Miss Suggs, who is second to Miss Berg in both season earnings ($14,390 to $12,431) and season average (74.50 to 74.93), led the tournament for about five minutes. She was in the two-hole ahead of Patty, and her 71 knocked Miss Jameson out of the lead.

Miss Suggs had one bogey, on No. 12, but then three of her five birdies during the last four holes.

There were vivid memories of last year when Miss Rawls got a birdie on the first hole. Her hopes and her gallery were quickly dashed, however, when she got bogeys on Nos. 2 and 4. Betsy was two over with a 38 after nine holes, but got back to par with an eagle three on the tenth hole. It was a 409-yard affair, and Miss Rawls was on in two, close enough for a seven-foot putt.

Her putting failed her several times during the remainder of the afternoon, however, and she was just able to equal par with a pair of bogeys to go with two more birdies.

Tourney Notes. The best score of an amateur was a 71-41-76 by Nan Berry, of Quincy, Ill. Nan will attend the University of Missouri this year.

Gloria Fecht, who displays her mink-covered clubs at many of the women's tournaments around the nation, was second among the amateurs with an 81. She is from Los Angeles.

Bonnie Randolph, the Columbus (O.) girl who endured the humorous "lesson" with Patty Berg on Tuesday, showed real heart as she opened with a double-bogey six on No. 1, then came back to finish with a 76, just one over par.

The only last-minute change involved Judy Scott, who was scheduled to represent Crystal Lake Country Club. Judy is a scholarship winner at Washington University, however, and had to be at school today. Mrs. E. I. McBride replaced her.

Leading scorers in the first round: Patty Berg, 68; Louise Suggs, 71; Betty Jameson, 73; Betsy Rawls, 75; Gloria Armstrong, 75; Betty Bush, 75; Mary Lena Faulk, 76; Bonnie Randolph, 76; Judy Scott, 76; Fay Crocker, 76; Monique, Uruguay, 76; Betty Hicks, 77; Beverly Hanson, 77; Indio, Calif., 77; Mickey Wright, 77; La Jolla, Calif., 77; Nan Berry, Quincy, Ill., 78; Joyce Ziske, Waterloo, Wis., 78; Alice Bauer, Sarasota, Fla., 78; Dione Garrett, Houston, Tex., 78; Gloria Fecht, Los Angeles, 78; Mrs. Ray Diefenbach, Forest Park, 78; Martina Smith, Wichita, Kans., 78; Mrs. Ray Schwartz, Westborough, 78; St. Louis C.C., 78; Peggy Klair, Mich., 78; Mrs. Peggy Harshbarger Ludlow, Crest Court, 78; Mrs. John McCloskey, Indiana, 78; Doris Phillips, 78; Mrs. Russ Schenck, 78; Mrs. Fawcett, Norwood, 78; Kathie Beckwith, 78; Mrs. James McArt, 78; Mrs. A. Miss Breit Defeats Mrs. Fleitz In U.S. Tennis Semifinals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Barbara Breit of Hollywood, Calif., upset third-seeded Beverly Baker Fleitz today to gain the women's semi-finals in the national tennis championships. The score was 8-6, 4-6, 6-0.

The blonde, businesslike junior Miss, 1954 National Girls' champion, overwhelmed her favored rival with steadiness. Mrs. Fleitz, mother of a daughter and runnerup at Wimbledon this summer, was a favorite for the title despite her No. 3 seeding.

However, her usually strong backcourt game enforced by ambidextrous stroking was thrown completely off by Miss Breit's tenacious retrieving.

Miss Breit didn't try to slug it out with Beverly. Instead she sought to keep the ball in play and wait for errors. The strategy worked. Of the 36 points made by Miss Breit in the first set, 24 were Fleitz errors.

At intermission Miss Breit was counseled by Maureen Connolly, former court queen now retired, and she went out and made a rout of the final set. Mrs. Fleitz got only one earned point in the set.

Miss Breit's semi-final opponent tomorrow will be Pat Ward of England, who eliminated the little giant-killer from Ft. Meade, Md., Belmar Gunderson, 9-7, 6-0.

Miss Gunderson, who scored a startling third round upset over Wimbledon champion Louise Brough, was far below her earlier form.

She rolled up a 4-2 and 5-3 lead on the English girl but Miss Ward took command with a stronger game. Miss Gunderson tried to softball her way to victory and resorted to drop shots which provided the English girl with easy kills.

Top-seeded Tony Trabert and Lew Hoad of Australia were overwhelming favorites to sweep into the semi-finals and set the stage for another slug-fest match between them on Saturday.

Trabert, the 25-year-old Wimbledon champion from Cincinnati, was matched against dogged Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., and it was Hoad against 21-year-old Sammy Giammalva of Houston, Tex., in a pair of tests to fill out the last two brackets in the semi-finals.

Defending Champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and canny little Ken Rosewall of Australia made the semi-final right on schedule yesterday and they'll meet in the upper bracket match on Saturday—probably leading off as they did on the opening day of the Davis Cup challenge round on which Rosewall racked up Vic and Hoad and tripped Trabert.

Seixas tuned up yesterday by

National Boxing Code Planned In Washington

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (UP)—A council of state government subcommittee will attempt to draft a national uniform boxing code during the next year.

The three-man committee headed by deputy Attorney General Harrington Adams of Pennsylvania will center its preliminary study on Pennsylvania's new model boxing code.

But, the committee plans to look into all boxing codes in states where major bouts are held.

The council named the committee after Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania recommended that his state's code be used as a national model.

The council spokesman called the Pennsylvania code "one of the most carefully drawn" in the nation.

Wimbledon Dates Set. WIMBLEDON, England, Sept. 9 (AP)—The 1956 Wimbledon tennis tournament will be played between June 25 and July 7. Lt. Col. Duncan Macaulay, director of the All-England club, said.

Curley Lost to Mizzou Eleven Indefinitely. COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 9 (AP)—The University of Missouri lost another halfback candidate for an indefinite period yesterday.

Bill Curley suffered a dislocated shoulder in tackling practice. Curley's injury was similar to that suffered by John Powell, another halfback, several days ago. Both injuries were recurrences.

Coach Don Faurot ordered a slower practice after he decided his squad looked weary following a rough morning drill.

The Tigers will have a full dress scrimmage Saturday.

Andrade and Zulueta In TV Bout Tonight. NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (UP)—Lightweight contenders Cisco Andrade and Orlando Zulueta, hoping for a winter shot at the title, will fight tonight in a TV-radio 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden. (The fight will be televised by KSD-TV starting time at 9 o'clock.)

Boxer-puncher Andrade of Compton, Calif., is favored at 8-5 over the speedy Cuban left-jab specialist, although Andrade is making his Garden debut and is rated four notches below fifth-ranking Zulueta.

Blocking Stressed in Illinois Grid Drill. CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 9 (AP)—Coach Ray Eliot limited contact work yesterday for the Illinois football squad.

The stress was placed on blocking in individual drills. Scrimmage was skipped for the first time this week in expectation of a long session at it on Saturday.

Guard Dick Miller, who has an injured shoulder, and tackle Rudy Sierrert, who has a cleat wound in a leg, resumed light workouts.

Middlecoff and Littler Take Lead in Tourney

SCOTCH PLAINS, N.Y., Sept. 9 (UP)—Gene Littler of Palm Springs, Calif., and Cary Middlecoff of Klamath Lake, N.Y., shot par 70s in the second round today to take the lead in the $50,000 Cavalcade of Golf tournament with 141s.

About one-third of the field, including first round leaders Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., and Walker Inman of Augusta, Ga., still were out on the course.

George Fazio of Philadelphia and Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., hit the halfway mark in the 72-hole tournament, a stroke behind Littler and Middlecoff. Fazio shot a three-under-par 67 and Bolt a par 70 for 142s.

Sam Sneed of White Sulphur Springs, Ga., had trouble with his putter. He missed six putts of five feet or less for a total 72 and a total of 143. Herman Baron of White Plains, N.Y., and Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N.Y., also had 143's after shooting 70 and 71, respectively.

Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N.Y., had a 68 for a 144. His second round was second only to that of Fazio among the early finishers.

The "name" players grumbled about the fast greens and tough pin placements after yesterday's first round. Doug Ford, the newly-crowned P. G. A. champion, shot a nine-over-par 79 in the first round and was in danger of being ousted when the field is cut after today's 18 holes.

Ed Furgol and Dutch Harrison, St. Louis representatives in the event, were down the line. Furgol shot 37-37-74 and Harrison 38-37-75.

Castellani to Box Jones. CLEVELAND, Sept. 9 (AP)—Rocky Castellani and Ralph (Tiger) Jones have signed for a 10-round middleweight bout, Sept. 29, at the Cleveland Arena.

Don't Miss Anne Morrow Lindbergh's 'Gift From the Sea'---Starting Sunday

SURVIVAL LESSON

Off balance and with hands tied behind his back, a trainee at Stead Air Force Base stands with face pressed against the wall in one phase of the program of "calculated cruelty" being given at the base at Reno, Nev. Air Force officials said the course, which includes rigorous brainwashing classes in addition to physical ordeals, is to teach men to survive as prisoners of war. It is designed, they said, to remove fear, "so that a man can fly over any country, confident he can get back." Air Force picture was supplied by Newsweek magazine.

BEHIND MOTHER'S BACK

Britain's Prince Charles enlivens the occasion with a swaggering bit of hornpipe as he leaves the royal yacht Britannia following its arrival at Aberdeen, Scotland, Wednesday. Queen Elizabeth is serenely unaware of her son's antics.

BOATING A BIG ONE

Tuna that weighed 585 pounds is hauled aboard by members of United States team competing in the twelfth annual international tuna tournament off Wedgeport, Nova Scotia. A. M. Whisnant Jr. (right foreground) of New York City caught the fish. He is aided by a teammate, William K. Carpenter (checked jacket) of Wilmington, Del. Catch, on Wednesday, put the United States ahead in the tournament as 40 of the world's best fishermen went without a catch yesterday.

CRASH SURVIVOR

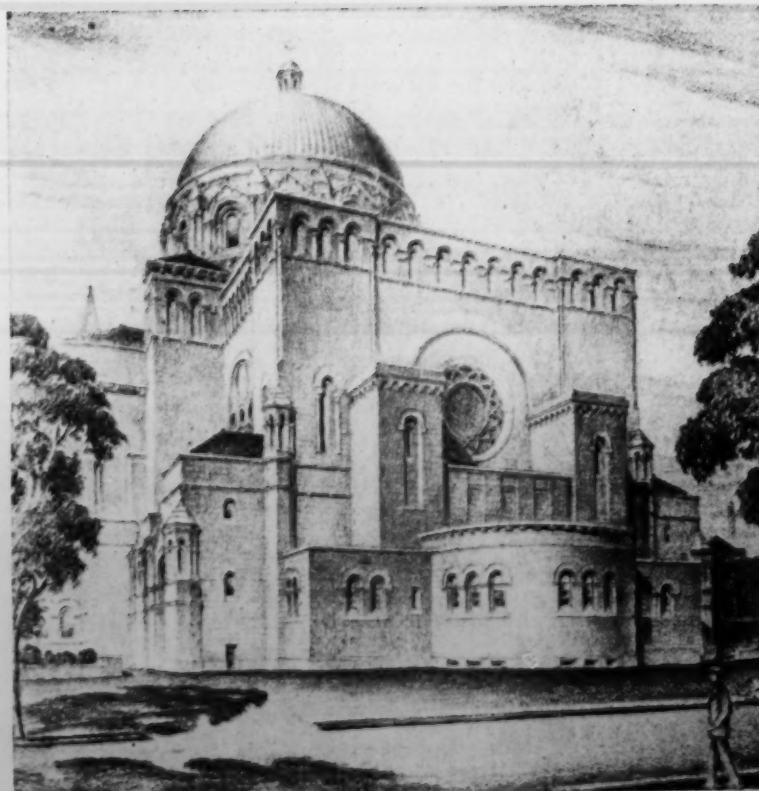

Stunned by the events of the preceding few minutes, 6-year-old Linda Simon of Oakland, Calif., sits in dreamy state on stretcher carrying her mother, Mrs. Carmela Simon, into St. Joseph's Hospital at Burbank, Calif., yesterday. They were rushed to hospital after being removed from airliner which crashed at Lockheed Air Terminal. Neither was injured seriously. Two crew members and a ground technician were killed as the airliner slammed into a parked plane and a hangar when it attempted to land after running into trouble on the takeoff.

CATHEDRAL TO BE MODERNIZED

Aerial view (above) of St. Louis Cathedral, Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue, which is being modernized and completed in a $1,870,000 project. At right is an architect's drawing of the sacristy wing and organ chambers which will be added to the rear of the cathedral, which is now parking space. In addition to the sacristy wing and a major renovation of the lighting system, about 30,000 square feet of mosaics will be installed. Program, announced today by Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter, will take several years to complete and is a continuation of the work in which the church's tile roof was replaced recently.

Possum Trot Farm

Hunting Days Ahead
For a Young Setter

By Leonard Hall

NATURE is such a mercurial creature that she can change the landscape almost overnight. A month ago, although we were short on rain, we didn't complain too much about it for we were in the midst of haying when hot sun and dry days are handy things to have. At that time, pastures were lush and green. Fields that had been mowed early were giving promise of a heavy growth of lespedeza which might warrant a second cutting. And we were predicting cheerfully that, as in other years of normal rainfall, our cattle would be out on pasture until Christmas. Today all this is changed. Much of the lespedeza made only stunted growth, while grass has burned to a crisp and stopped putting out new green shoots. Now whenever a cow or steer eats a bite—that is one bite gone, with no new growth to follow it. Fields are baked so hard it is impossible to hold a plow in the ground—and the deadline for sowing small grain and seeding pastures is almost on us. No later than today I heard neighboring farmers wondering how long the grass and water will hold out. Springs are drying up and the creeks are almost as low as at the peak of last year's drought. Thus in the short space of a month, Nature's smile has changed to a surly scowl and there's nothing to do but make the best of it.

DESPITE NOT GETTING the most vital fall work done, we're never at a loss to keep busy. Right now we're fitting a pair of young purebred bulls for the October sale of our South-Central Missouri Hereford Breeders' Association over at Farmington. These youngsters are sons of our old Rufus, whose registered name is ECF Super Return, and are named for their grand-daddy, ECF Super Domino Return, one of the famous Edg Cliff sires. Although we haven't learned to pamper our animals as the fancy breeders do, keeping them on Holstein "milk cows" and not weaning them until they're full grown, we are pleased with the way these calves are shaping up. And most important to the breeders who acquire them, their sire has turned out some 240 fine normal calves for us right here at Possum Trot. In the words of the cattleman, he's been a real "breeding bull," and so have his sons that we've been able to keep track of.

ANOTHER MEMBER of the Possum Trot family who's rounding out in fine shape is young Tiger Kilkelly of Windy Hill. When it comes to gauging the potential quality of a bird dog, you can be pretty sure of a pointer by the time he's a year old. Either he is going to be a bird dog or he isn't and you know it. With a setter—especially an Irish setter—it takes considerably longer. Yet what you're out in the field a lot with your dog—even though you aren't hunting or training—you come to know his qualities. You find out whether he likes to "go" and if he has real stamina. Then as you watch him, you gradually come to know whether he has hunting instinct and enjoys the sport. He starts hunting out his fields, quartering back and forth against the wind with head held high. And finally, if he's a "natural," he begins to point and—with a little encouragement—to hold his birds.

YOUNG TIGER has offered some problems. He's tremendously anxious to please and never comes to you without some offering in his mouth—a small stick or a chunk of cordwood, a leaf or bit of grass, an old glove or piece of rope. A little training should make him a wonderful retriever. At the same time, the pup is so full of the joy of life and of affection for his folks that his invariable impulse is to put his arms around your neck. No amount of stepping on his feet seems to break him of this, yet he is of such a sensitive nature that harsher measures are dangerous. For to my mind, a cowed dog is worse than no dog at all; while a dog that's bold yet obedient is not only the best companion but the best hunter.

DESPITE THESE PROBLEMS and the fact that Tiger spends half his time clowning, as a pup should, he shows sure signs of making a bird dog. Just this morning I hiked down into the bluff field to check the little pond there and see whether it had enough water so we could turn stock into the field for a few days. Unfortunately, it didn't. But as we went down through a patch of heavily grazed sudan grass, I suddenly saw Tiger freeze. His long body was bent into a tight circle, so that with his nose he was pointing something under the end of his tail. And he held the point while we watched him—held it until I walked slowly up and flushed the birds. It was a covey of little "peepers" just able to fly and they fluttered all around Tiger like a swarm of bees. But he kept pointing and finally the mother bird rose and flew into the multiflora hedge, from whence she soon began to whistle her flock together again. Fortunately all our birds aren't as young as these, although with another 60 days to go, even this covey will be mature long before cold weather.

WE'VE BEEN WORRIED that old Mike wouldn't make it through another season and there's no doubt he has as many creaky joints as his master. Yet it seems hot weather bothers him more than anything else. Now that the mornings are consistently cool he prances like a colt, and I wouldn't be surprised to see the old fellow out with the rest of us on Nov. 10, giving Tiger the lessons that he needs. It is always a bit sad to watch a good dog grow old. Yet there's one thing about a bird dog which makes the breed a pleasure to own. If he's a real hunter and keeps his health, he will keep going until the very end—doing the thing he loves best to do, working at the job for which he is created. For my part it has always seemed the kindest thing to let an old dog hunt—without ever pushing him—until his last hunting day is over and he quits of his own accord.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

ROBERT HARRIS, known to millions for his TV characterization in "The Goldbergs," once played a season in support of the Yiddish star, Maurice Schwartz. Harris played the part of Schwartz's attorney. One scene called for him to sit down at a table and breathe a heavy sigh. Opening night he sighed so heavily he blew out eight candles on the table. As the curtain dropped, Schwartz whispered angrily, "Stop padding your part!"

FORMER BOXING CHAMPION Maxie Rosenbloom, now a real comedian, failed to go over with a tough audience at one stop on his latest tour. Exiting to almost silent applause, Maxie did not exactly win the house manager's heart when he stopped to assure the folks out front, "If you think I stink, wait till you see the feature picture!"

LAUREN BACALL, the beautiful and talented wife of Humphrey Bogart, made her TV debut in an exacting role in Robert Sherwood's "The Petrified Forest." Was she scared? Lauren confesses, "I was more petrified than the forest!"

Former Veiled Prophet Maid in Africa

St. Louis Bride Home After Two Years There With Writer Husband

By Clarissa Start

JULIA LAWNIN GORDON MARTIN attended Mary Institute and Bennett Junior College, headed the procession of maids of honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball, belonged to the Junior League, and was preceded by 11 bridesmaids in American Beauty red taffeta when she married Peter B. Martin. None of this exactly fitted her for hiking along a deserted road in the heart of the Belgian Congo, seeking help for a stranded automobile, attempting to communicate with servants in simplified Zulu, or otherwise keeping house somewhere south of the Sahara.

However, Julie Martin, a pretty blonde with a lively sense of humor, survived admirably two years of sightseeing and home-making in southern Africa, and even found there were some compensations in life there.

"In St. Louis we lived in a seven-room apartment and I had no servants," she says. "In Johannesburg we paid $15 a month for a cook and janitor who did everything, and as you went farther north the pay became less. In Salisbury we paid $8 a month for a cook, $4 a month for a garden boy."

The Martins went to Africa to live in June 1953, six months after their marriage, when Pete Martin, a former Post-Dispatch reporter and son of an associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post, received a Ford Foundation Fellowship, administered by the Institute on Current World Affairs, for two years of study of world affairs and political science in southern Africa. Their travels took them to the Union of South Africa, Central Africa, the Belgian Congo, French Equatorial Africa, the Gold Coast, Southern and Northern Rhodesia, Uganda and Mozambique.

Africa was not precisely as Julie Martin expected it to be. "I thought there'd be a lot more snakes and a lot of snakes," she says. "I didn't see any snakes except a few dead ones, no boa constrictors dangling from trees waiting to crush you to death. We took a 10-day trip down the Congo in a boat that had been built for the Mississippi river in 1928 and sold when they started using Diesels. We went through a lot of rain forest with tropical flowers, past native villages. We saw a lot of monkeys, every now and then a hippopotamus. No crocodiles although we were told there were some."

"THERE WERE a few natives in dugout canoes, not canoes as we know them, just tree trunks hollowed out. But nothing like what you'd think of as jungle—no Tarzans swinging from the vines."

In Johannesburg life was extremely civilized, except that two food staples of every American bride—tuna fish and chili—could not be purchased. Julie wondered briefly how she'd cook without the tuna fish casserole but managed somehow. And most of the time she had a cook. Their abodes, ranging from apartments to large homes, were well staffed with servants.

PETER B. MARTIN AND JULIA GORDON MARTIN... TWO LIONS WERE KILLED NEAR WHERE THEY SPENT THE NIGHT IN THEIR BROKEN-DOWN CAR.

"In our first apartment in Johannesburg, a man came in early in the morning to clean everything, then a woman came to cook meals and wash dishes," Julie says. "I cooked the evening meal but left the dishes for her to wash in the morning. I felt awfully lazy."

"Generally the cooks were good, although of course, you couldn't just hand them. 'The Joy of Cooking' and tell them to follow a recipe. Most housewives learn to speak 'Kitchen Kaffir' which is a simplified form of Zulu so that you can say, 'Wash dishes' or 'Wash windows' and they'll understand."

Social life in Johannesburg was plentiful and gay with bowling clubs, bridge clubs, "sundowner" or cocktail parties, and a large colony of Americans. As they went further to go back to the Union of South Africa, I wouldn't mind traveling through the Belgian Congo, but I never want to see the Gold Coast again."

"It was while they were driving through the Belgian Congo, 'miles from nowhere' that a rock bounced up under their bright red MG two seater and cracked the oil pan. 'We caught the oil in a double boiler,' Pete tells the story, 'and then I set about loosening bolts to get the pan out.' 'Thirty-six bolts,' his wife prompts."

"It was the rainy season and I worked in the pouring rain," Pete said, "shivering with cold, from two in the afternoon until about six. Then we gave up and spent the night in the car. I kept going to sleep and Julie kept waking me up, asking how I could sleep. We didn't think there was any danger but the next day a farmer told us they'd shot two lions in the neighborhood."

By 10 the next morning, no one had come along the road and Pete set about to patch the oil pan from the outside temporarily. Julie started down the road to the next town which they believed to be 10 miles away. She came across some natives but could get nothing from them except that they were amazed that a white person was without a car. The Martins emphasized that there is little to fear from natives in the wilderness.

"They have a tremendous tradition of hospitality and respect for tribal law," Pete says. "You never hear of anyone being robbed or attacked in the wilds. It's after they get to civilization that they learn those things."

Fortunately, Pete got the car partially patched in time to catch up with Julie after eight miles. Fortunately because the next town, Kapona, turned out to be 24 miles away, and at that, only a mining company rest camp with no repair facilities. Someone suggested having the car hauled 175 miles at a cost of $100. Then someone else suggested painting the crack with nail polish.

"So we filled the crack with string, gave it three coats of polish and drove 100 miles," Pete said.

After two years in Africa, the young Martins took a two-month vacation in Europe and then came home. Julie is still getting caught up on hamburgers, chicken sandwiches, and vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce.

Martin will go from here to Time magazine's Foreign News department in mid-September, but his wife will remain at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fitzhugh Gordon, 38 Westmoreland place, for a few more months. The young Martins figure that after two years in Africa they have a lot to tell their children and the first one is expected in November.

The Small Bedroom

By Elizabeth Hillyer

THE problem faced oftenest in most home furnishing and decorating careers—is how to make the best use of a small bedroom wall with one window in it. The answer is to put every inch of space to work, and here's an excellent way to do it. Choose chests that include plenty of drawer space and are as long as they can be to go on the footage at each side of the window. Cover the wall above the chests with mirror, to help with primping, but also to make the room look larger and brighter.

A simple window treatment is best, perhaps a two-tier style on traverse rods; or easily adjusted cafe curtains, so both tiers can be opened, or just the top tier to let the light while the closed lower tier gives privacy. Make the curtains still length so there's room below for a bench. The bench is handy as a slipper chair, and, placed this way, it takes up no extra room.

Find out what's wrong with the room before you change it. Check it over with the help of Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet "What's Wrong With The Room?" which not only spots weak points, but tells how to correct them. Send 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please, with your booklet request addressed to Miss Hillyer at the Post Dispatch.

Postcard A Club Is Born

By Stan Delaplane

STAN DELAPLANE

THE REDWOOD TERRACE CLUB meets at the foot of my driveway. People backing out should be careful not to run over the members.

The way it got its name was like this: We were poking around down the canyon and ran into four beautifully sawed redwood logs. Each was about two feet high.

It was perfectly obvious (to everybody but the honorary member, a rich but dull-witted fellow) that here was the making of a store. You simply set the logs on end, stretched a couple of planks between them and set out your merchandise.

The honorary member was dispatched forthwith to find two planks. When he returned, the store had grown into a club. Since he kept hanging around, there was nothing to do but vote him in.

The first meeting was called to order by the president before she was elected president. When it became obvious she was going to be elected, she put on a distressingly false show of modesty. However, she accepted the post.

THE MEMBERS THEN WENT DOWNHILL to the store to purchase the supplies. They were somewhat late returning, having found and adopted a lost kitten. The honorary member was appointed to de-flea the new cat.

The honorary member then rose and said: "Madame President. When the Redwood Terrace Club raises money from selling Kool-Aid, what will be done with the money?"

The members then went into regular member session. When they came out, they informed the honorary member as follows:

"When we get a lot of money, about $5000, we will give it to charity like maybe an orphanage."

The honorary member then revealed to the membership that he, himself, was an orphan and a worthy target of charity. He suggested that they give him the first $5.

The suggestion was howled down without being put to formal vote.

The honorary member then pointed out that the Kool-Aid stand was at the end of a one-block, dead-end street. That there were few likely customers except himself and other parents.

It was voted that the honorary member should construct street signs reading, "This Way to the Redwood Terrace Club. Kool-Aid 10 cents." He was further advised to place these signs at regular intervals on all main intersections.

The honorary member then withdrew in a sulk and went in the house and began to read his old book, the meanie.

THE REDWOOD TERRACE CLUB opened its annual Kool-Aid sale at 7:30 p.m., the regular opening having been postponed by charity work for a lost kitten. Only two lost cars came up the dead-end street and no sales were made.

It then being time for dinner, the membership voted to let the honorary member purchase what was left. Which was about half, the rest having been drunk by the membership.

The honorary member agreed on condition he did not have to drink it. The membership voted to drink the remainder tomorrow and the meeting was adjourned.

At the Movies

By Edward Kosmal

"HOUSE OF BAMBOO" at the FOX is an unfortunate repetition of the often told story of a mediocre tale submerged in CinemaScope color—but with a novel twist or two. The film is a run-of-the-mill gangster story that was transplanted to the Far East to bask in the colorful Oriental environment as novel twist No. 1. And Photographic Director Joe MacDonald performs a laudable job as he focuses his camera lenses on points of beauty in Tokyo: "The Ginza," the city's elite shopping center; Anakusa, the theatrical district; and the approaches to the Imperial palace, along with a visual description of "ant city," a community of human wreckage along the banks of the Sumida river.

Two renegade G.I.s, Robert Ryan and Cameron Mitchell, are the leaders of a gang of Americans in the Japanese capital. The United States military get into the story after an American soldier is slain. Enter hero Robert Stack, a plain-clothes Army sergeant who becomes a member of the mob. In the process of completing his assignment, Stack comes up with novel twist No. 2. For lack of a better phrase, call it platonic cohabitation. Even with this handicap, Shirley Yamaguchi, pretty Japanese film star, comes up with a good portrayal. Ryan, Stack and Cameron give their roles the old college try, but score only a negligible number of first downs.

Too bad it's not the number of bullets expended in a film that determines quality. Under this criterion, the picture—with slugs ricocheting all over the wide screen in several scenes—would be a bull's eye hit. But under other standards the story has to be classed as a misfire.

A murder mystery, "LIFE IN BALANCE," starring Ricardo Montalban, completes the program.

AS A SPONSOR you will have to swear in court that you have known your friend at least five years, that she has never been in any difficulties with the law, etc. The questions are usually brief and relatively simple. You must be a citizen yourself, and if you are a naturalized one you must bring your papers with you.

Ex-Spear Carrier Coming Home a Star

Acting Bug Bit Louis Calhern as a Youth in St. Louis, Now He Will Premiere Play Here

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.

FORTY-FOUR years ago a St. Louis youngster by the name of Carl Henry Vogt came down with a violent case of foot-light fever. He never recovered. Hired along with several teammates of his high school football team as supers by a traveling Shakespearean company because their husky legs looked good in tights, Carl was sunk from the night he carried his first spear.

The other day over a late breakfast of scrambled eggs and dry toast in the dining room of New York's old and famous Algonquin Hotel the erstwhile spear carrier, who as Louis Calhern was to become one of America's most distinguished stage and screen actors, did a bit of reminiscing. He also did considerable enlisting over his new play, "The Wooden Dish," which will have its premiere at the American Theater in St. Louis Sept. 19.

"I thought the play was so good that I wanted a year's leave of absence from my Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract to do it," Calhern, who is not only playing the leading role but also directing the play, explained. "And I'm delighted that we can premiere it in St. Louis. It's a good city in which to try out a play. You're likely to get honest reactions, which you can't get from the jaded audiences of the East. Then, too, a man always takes delight in returning to his old home town."

In "The Wooden Dish" which deals with family relationships, Calhern plays an 85-year-old grandfather who lives with his son and daughter-in-law.

"Because I wanted to play the old man thin, I've just taken off 30 pounds," he grimaced at his meager breakfast. "Almost down to my old football weight."

The mention of football recalled Calhern's days at old Central High in St. Louis, where he did some fine forward passing but just limped along in Latin.

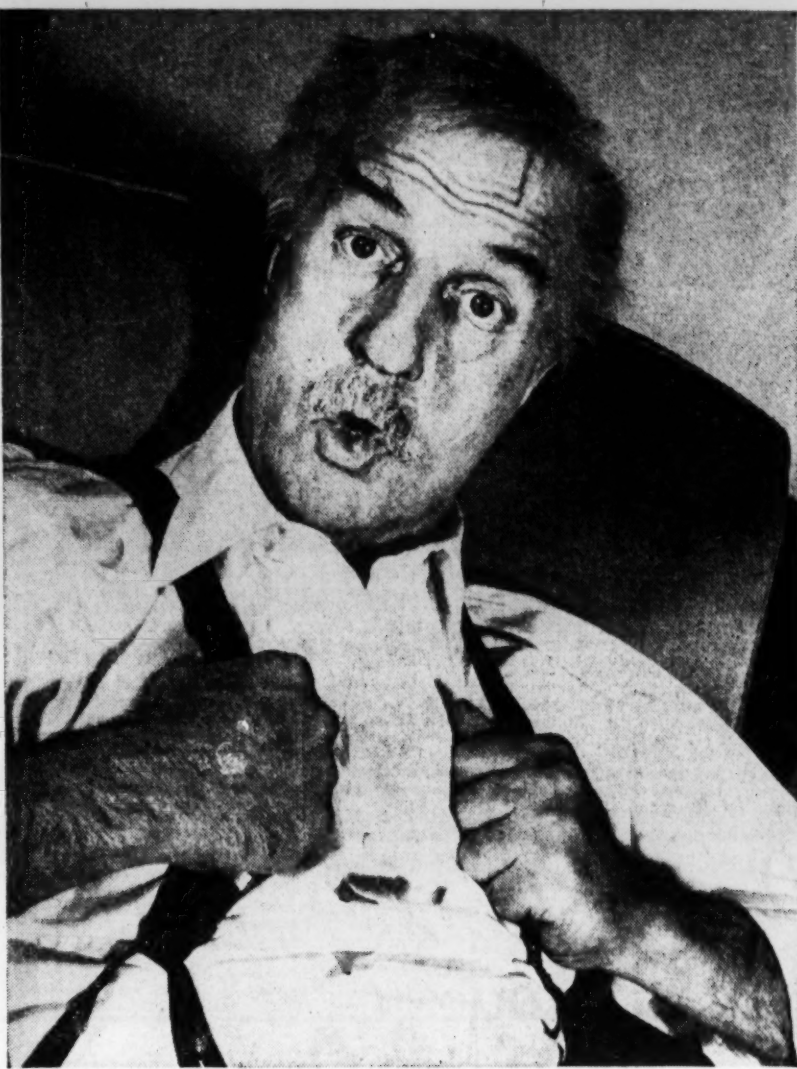

"After my sturdy legs made their debut in tights with George in 'Much Ado About Nothing' at the old Olympic Theater in St. Louis, I was hopelessly smitten with the idea of going on the stage for good."

Calhern, who is hovering around 60, but looks a handsome 50, laughed. "Luckily for me, my father was sympathetic. While the family tobacco business kept him busy, he really wanted to be a great writer. So when I appealed to his artistic side for $100 to come to New York to go on the stage, I got it."

SO without finishing Central High, Carl Henry Vogt enrolled for New York. One of his first problems was changing his name. The change was made on the demand of an uncle, who considered acting the lowest form of human endeavor and informed young Carl Henry that the proud Vogt name should never be connected with anything so shameful as show business.

Contracting Carl Henry into Calhern and taking the Louis from his home town for a first name, Carl Henry Vogt became Louis Calhern.

For the next eight years Calhern was the typical struggling actor, but along the route he acquired a priceless theatrical education in road-show stock companies, vaudeville, carnival and burlesque. World War I interrupted his career when he enlisted in the Army and served two years in France with the Fortieth Division's horse artillery.

LOUIS CALHERN AS HE WILL APPEAR IN HIS PORTRAYAL OF AN 85-YEAR-OLD MAN IN THE PLAY, "THE WOODEN DISH," WHICH HE IS ALSO DIRECTING.

Discharged from the Army on the West Coast, Calhern went briefly back into vaudeville and then in 1921 made his initial screen bow. After only two of the old silent pictures, he made his debut on Broadway and remained faithful to the legitimate theater for 10 years until 1931, when he returned to Hollywood after sound brought theater-trained voices into greater demand.

In his earlier movie days Calhern refused to be discouraged by the fact that he was almost invariably cast as a big-shot gangster, despite the fact that in his stock company days he had portrayed more characters than most movie stars essay in a lifetime. It took years of waiting and the shooting of dozens of second-rate movies before he began to be recognized as an actor who could handle any character role that might come his way.

It took "The Magnificent Yankee" which Calhern did on both stage and screen to really put him in the acting big league. In "The Magnificent Yankee," Calhern portrayed the late Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes with a depth that caused critics to hail him as a superb talent. On the heels of this triumph he further startled those who had insisted on regarding him as a sort of emancipated burlesque show song-and-dance man by breaking the world's record with his continuous run in his "King Lear." His Broadway Lear had the critics ranking his performance with those of the great tragedians, Sir Henry Irving and Edwin Booth.

"Lear is the toughest part in all dramatic literature," Calhern says. "It nearly killed me."

CALHERN has never kept a scrap book and he says he has no idea of how many movies he has made or how many road and Broadway productions he has appeared in. But the records would indicate he has made some 65 movies. His favorites are "Julius Caesar" and of course "The Magnificent Yankee."

While his "King Lear" on Broadway was breaking records, a critic did a little research and discovered that Calhern had spent the previous 18 months "preparing" for the role by playing in the movies such varied roles as a sadistic Russian colonel, a notorious criminal lawyer, a grandfather with a song-and-dance routine, a band leader, Jane Powell's father, and the celebrated jurist, Justice Holmes.

While "King Lear" and "The Magnificent Yankee" are his favorites among his roles on the stage, he scored a notable success in "The Song and Dance Man" with George M. Cohan as long as 30 years ago; "The Love Duel" and "The Tyrant" with Ethel Barrymore around 1930; and in the more recent "Life With Father," and "Jacobowsky and the Colonel."

CONVINCED in 1950 that in Calhern they had an actor who could do anything, MGM moguls signed him to a long term contract and immediately cast him in the role of Buffalo Bill in "Annie Get Your Gun." Calhern didn't let them down. He rode his white Arabian stallion as though born to the saddle. Since then he has made 22 pictures in such varied roles as the pagan high priest in "The Prodigal," a Wall Street broker in "Executive Suite," the king in "The Student Prince," and an American schoolteacher in "Blackboard Jungle." His next movie will be "Teahouse of the August Moon" with Marlon Brando and Glenn Ford.

Dapper and dynamic, Calhern admits that he has worked harder in his combined role of star and director of "The Wooden Dish" than he has ever worked before. It is his first fling at directing for a Broadway production—the play's eventual destination after the St. Louis premiere.

Once known as an accomplished playboy and bosom companion of the late John Barrymore, Calhern admits to having completely settled down. In his Hollywood home where he lives in solitary splendor, he spends his spare time painting tiles "for such things as patio tables." Previously married to actress Natalie Schafer, Calhern is married to actress and author Ilka Chase; Julia Hoyt, Erie Railroad heiress; and actress Marianne Stewart. Calhern says with a twinkle in his eye that he has no present matrimonial plans.

Six feet, two inches tall, Calhern is addicted to buttonhole carnations and drapes his trim and athletic body in Wall-street-banker suits. He has two dislikes—people who live on past glories and contracts that run more than three pages long. Says long contracts let in too many loopholes.

Although born in Brooklyn, Calhern regards St. Louis as "the old home town" since he was taken there at the age of six. And when he returns this time he hopes to be accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Tina Vogt, who encouraged her son through the years, from his debut at Central High carrying a spear to his Broadway triumph in "King Lear."

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

A PLAYER is extremely lucky if he has the chance to bid an ironclad grand slam once in every 20 to 25 rubbers; hence, when the opportunity does come along he must take considerable pains to see that it doesn't get away. Consider this case:

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
North-South 80 on score.

NORTH				EAST
♠A386				♠K108
♥A965				♥A32
♦Q1083				♦107
♣9				♣864
SOUTH				WEST
♠KQ973				♠A642
♥Q532				♥K108
♦A				♦A32
♣KQ973				♣A32

It is a curious fact that possession of a part-score often has an unfavorable effect on a partnership's bidding, and this applies to experts as well as run-of-the-mill players. If North-South had not had the 80 points below the line it is highly likely that they would have reached seven spades or seven clubs, but this was the actual bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	5♠	Pass
5♠	Pass	6♠	Pass

As may be seen, the auction started off logically enough. North's one-club opening, South's one-spade response, and North's chance-giving spade raise were uniformly right and reasonable, and South continued the good work when he bid three diamonds on the second round, showing that control and simultaneously announcing slam aspirations.

North's return to spades at this point was rather too non-committal but no harm should have come from this action, under the circumstances. If South's holding had been different, and a little weaker, the three-spade bid (sounding like the isolated application of brakes) might have been fatally discouraging, but South actually had every reason for going on and none for stopping. His club raise at this juncture was all right, but when North then announced second-round diamond control by bidding four diamonds, South had only one logical call available—to bid four hearts, showing that control too. Beyond question, North would have been happy to bid seven spades over the heart cue bid, but when South elected instead to bid six spades, North had no option but to pass.

The Little Woman A Crisis Wins Out Over Draperies

By Clarissa Start

Clarissa Start.

THE best laid plans of mice and men have nothing on the best laid plans of mothers. According to the experts, the little woman at home can schedule her days and the working mother can use her nights as efficiently as her office hours.

Trouble is, schedules and plans never seem to take into account those unexpected events which pop up, especially where children are concerned. The familiar crisis-a-day occurs and the time budgeting routines go astray or "gang agley," to follow the original simile.

Take, for instance, the night we were going to sew on the draperies. There are 24 windows in our new old house, from 90 to 128 inches in length.

Ready mades are out of the question unless they were ready made for Buckingham Palace, so we roll our own hems with the help of the sewing machine. The living room is curtained, the parlor almost. We had one pair to go and Thursday night seemed the logical time. Neither telephone, talk nor TV could dissuade us, we decided.

THEN BOBBY'S MOTHER and Jessiann's mother called. We worked out an after-dinner meeting for our trio on our playground. But that was still all right, we reasoned. By 8:30 the children would be on their way to bed, ours included. Plenty of time for draperies. Came the crisis. We arrived home to find the almost-four-year-old who has been playing tree surgeon ever since he saw one in action, suffering from an occupational disease, a piece of bark in his eye.

We couldn't tell if speck or scratch was bothering him but the eye was swollen and inflamed and watering. "Make the tears go away," he sobbed. A call was made to the doctor who takes care of all our family ills, great and small. He was delivering a baby. We considered an eye specialist we'd consulted, remembered it took three months to get an appointment and an hour in the waiting room. We abandoned the idea.

Dinner came and went. No one ate much, the boy nothing, an unheard-of occurrence. Finally he held still for an examination which proved nothing. Mother demonstrated how bravely one submits to eye drops but blinked at the crucial moment. He submitted, also blinked.

THE GUESTS ARRIVED, and, child-like, he wasn't too incapacitated to enjoy their company. But the eye still looked bad. To compound the confusion, father had to go out on business. At 8 we found the doctor was on his way home and one of the guests drove us to his house.

We never fail to be amazed at the small child's respect for authority. His fond parents couldn't get within 10 feet of the eye without dramatics but with the doctor he was docile. The "operation" was performed on the glass-top dinette table. A quick swab with cotton, one terrified scream, and the speck was out.

The doctor, who'd been up since 6 a.m. and delivered two babies, sat down at 9 p.m. to the steak his wife had saved. The boy, ever one to enter into the spirit of the occasion, ate the rest of his dinner, including three pineapple fritters. Father arrived; we all ate ice cream. Socialized medicine has no advantage over this set-up, we pointed out.

Finally, sleeping boy in arms, we arrived home. On our way to bed, we passed the drapery material, folded neatly on the sewing machine. We looked at the clock. Past 11. Oh well, maybe some other night.

Two Coming-Out Parties Today for Miss Woods

By Karin Hayward

MISS SUSANNE MANTER WOODS will be presented to society today at a tea and a garden dance to be given at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Woods, 48 Picardy lane, Ladue.

MISS WOODS TO BE PRESENTED TODAY.

At her first party, the debutante, her mother and her sister, Mrs. Henry C. Sharp Jr., will receive their guests in the living room before the fireplace which is banked with huckleberry greens. Arrangements of pink roses and white spider chrysanthemums adorn the mantel. Miss Woods, who will hold a bouquet of pink aristocrat roses and white stephanotis, will wear for the tea a long white embroidered organdy gown. Over pleated tulle, the dress features an off-shoulder neckline, outlined with a bertha, and an organdy overskirt short in front and reaching the hemline in back. A white taffeta sash will encircle her waistline.

Mrs. Woods will be in a honey-colored lace gown with short sleeves and a wide waist-length skirt. An underdress of taffeta sparkles with sequins. She will wear a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Sharp will be in a simply designed burgundy taffeta gown and will have a corsage of gardenias. Pink roses and white spider chrysanthemums, spilling from a silver and crystal epergne, will provide decoration for the tea table where a group of debutantes will assist. They are Miss Jean Alexander, Miss Joan Asche, Miss Molly Goodson, Miss Barbara Burton, Miss Marie Garesche, Miss Terry McIlvane, Miss Carolyn Haffner, Miss Sarah Lund, Miss Ann Nooney, Miss Judy Olin, Miss Joan Pranger and Miss Barbara Von Hoffmann.

At her second party Miss Woods, her parents and Miss Dorothy Dalenz of Greenwich, Conn., the debutante's roommate at Mount Vernon Junior College, Washington, will receive guests.

For the dance Miss Woods will wear a terrace-length white embroidered organdy gown over pink taffeta. Strapless, the dress is fashioned with a bouffant skirt and tied with a pink taffeta sash forming a bow in back. Miss Dalenz will be in white organdy trimmed with red velvet ribbon around the neckline and on the tiers of the skirt. She will carry red roses.

Guests will dance under a gold and white marquee on a floor encircled with supper tables centered with hurricane lamps and yellow and white blossoms. The buffet table is adorned with yellow and white spider chrysanthemums and a background for the orchestra has been created with a white trellis entwined with huckleberry foliage. A hard maple tree growing in the Woods garden is covered by the marquee. A white wrought iron bench surrounding the tree has lights beneath it which, thrown upward, illuminate the leaves.

Buffet Supper Tonight for Two Debutantes.

MR. AND MRS. FRANC BARADA will entertain the debutante set tonight at a cocktail party and buffet supper in honor of Miss Molly Goodson and Miss Barbara Burton. The party, planned to begin at 7 o'clock, will be held in the garden of the Barada home at 27 Clermont lane, Ladue.

Yellow damask cloths will be draped over small round tables, each table holding a white bird cage containing a hurricane lamp with a yellow candle, surrounded by yellow daisies and greenery. The buffet table will have as its centerpiece a crystal epergne holding yellow daisies, fruit and ivy. A large wicker cornucopia, which is to decorate the bar, will be filled with more of the daisies and fruit.

Miss Burton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gamble Burton, 10048 Litzinger road, Ladue, and Miss Goodson's parents are Mr. and Mrs. McVeigh Goodson, 19 Pointer lane, Ladue.

St. Louisans to Travel in Europe.

A SEVEN-WEEK European trip is in store for Mr. and Mrs. Milton C. Mendle of the Oxford apartments, 5290 Waterman boulevard. They will sail from New York on the Ile de France Sept. 24 bound for London, where they will spend several days before going to Leeds to visit English friends. Rome will be the next stop and then three weeks to points of interest in other parts of Italy and 10 days in Paris. They will fly home.

The Mendles' daughter, Mary Ewing Mendle, returned a few days ago by plane with her grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Murray Pierce, who spent the summer at Wentworth-by-the-Sea, Portsmouth, N.H., as is her custom. Mary Ewing was at Ecole Champlain, a girls' camp at Ferrisburg, Vt., and visited Mrs. Pierce at Wentworth before returning. She will stay with her grandmother during her parents' absence.

A seven-week Mediterranean cruise will be taken by Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Kramer Jr. of the Greystone apartments, 4399 McPherson avenue, beginning Sept. 22 when they sail from New York on the Corona. They plan to visit Egypt, Jerusalem, Istanbul, Athens and points in Italy and Spain.

Miss McKim Married to F. J. Kern.

BRIDE of Wednesday night was Miss Barbara McKim, who was married to Frederick John Kern at a double ring ceremony at First Presbyterian Church in University Hills. The Rev. Kenneth R. Mitchell officiated.

Afterward the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. McKim, 7174 Cambridge avenue, University City, gave a reception at Le Chateau. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Louis Kern of Belleville.

Mr. McKim escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore a white silk taffeta gown which featured Alencon lace panels studded with pearls and an off-shoulder neckline edged in the same lace. Her tulle veil fell from a Juliet cap. The bride held white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Nicholas George of Dayton, O., matron of honor, and Miss Mary Lee Knudstad, bridesmaid, wore identical ballerina gowns of Provence blue silk taffeta and carried cascades of pink carnations. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Ann McGovern, and the flower girl, Miss Barbara Susan Chick, both cousins of the bride, carried baskets of red carnations. Their dresses were fashioned of flesh-tinted taffeta.

Clyde Matthews of Mount Vernon, Mo., was best man and ushers were Lawryn and Wayne McKim, brothers of the bride, and John Dixon.

Mr. and Mrs. Kern flew to the West Coast yesterday to embark on the Lurline at San Francisco for a honeymoon in Hawaii.

Summer Travel Ends For Kirkwood Groups

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD A. SCHULENBURG, 8 Harwood lane, have returned after a week at Minnawawa Lodge, Nisawa, Minn. Accompanying them were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer G. Telthorst, 6200 Devonshire avenue. The vacationers spent most of their days fishing, and at the Nisawa Summer Theater saw a play produced and directed by Miss Shirley Richardson of St. Louis. On nearby Lake Hubert, Miss Richardson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Richardson, 5745 Lindell boulevard, are occupying their summer cottage. The Richardsons were joined last week by Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Schleicher who have since returned to their home at 9 Fair Oaks, Ladue.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Donovan, 220 Orrick lane, Kirkwood, and Mrs. Donovan's sister, Miss Gladys Dickey of the same address, returned to St. Louis Saturday from a month's vacation on Ojibway Island, Canada. Accompanying them were the Donovans' two daughters, Miss Dorothy and Miss Betsy.

She has with her Mrs. Francis Bartlett, her mother, also of the Orrick lane address, and her two children, Susan and David. Planning to remain in England for the next year or two, the group will take up residence in Suffolk, near Ipswich, close to a United States Air Force base where Mrs. Thompson will teach children of the Air Base personnel. David Thompson will attend school on the Air Base.

Martha Carr's OPINION

In a recent letter to this column, "Disgusted Reader" criticized "silly" letters from teen-agers and Martha Carr's answers to their problems. The response from other readers was so great that only a small percentage of their letters can be published. Because the original letter concerned teen-agers, excerpts from these answers will be printed today and tomorrow in the columns customarily reserved for young people's questions. Comment is in proportion to the tenor of letters received.

Dear Martha:
I AM A teacher and I work with teen-agers all the time. I think you have a wonderful outlook on life and living and I have always admired you for never putting parents in a bad light in your answers to young people. In my dealings with young people, I have found it is better to treat them like I would want to be treated. Keep up the good work, Martha. I'm afraid many a youngster finds you more understanding than his parents.

LONG-TIME FAN.
Dear Martha:
I MYSELF and a great, great deal of the public will agree with "Disgusted Reader. I never did like your advice.

Dear Martha:
THIS IS FOR "DISGUSTED READER." How nice for you that you jumped from the age of 12 to a mature 25 and how silly of me to have lived through those years when my heart beat like crazy because of a spring prom date with the football captain, and when I knew life wasn't worth living because the dreamy boy in the next block didn't know I was alive. How could anyone so completely foolish as I grow up and marry wisely and have a family that is well-respected? I'll tell you how. I had a wise mother who listened to my joys and troubles and if she was ever amused, she didn't let me know.

Dear Martha:
I AM NEARLY 81 YEARS OLD. I know it may seem silly to some people for young people from 10 to 14 to seek advice from more mature persons. I commend you for the fine service you are giving our young people who need so much someone who understands young people's problems.

Dear Martha:
I CAN'T UNDERSTAND how on earth anyone can be so prejudiced as to condemn all teens or all customs of dating when so comparatively few are bad.

Dear Martha:
MAYBE WE DO ACT SILLY at times, but what about "Disgusted Reader"? How did the reader act at this age, or was he born an adult? Our problems are just as big if not bigger to us than the reader's problems probably are. I'm writing for a gang of those.

Dear Martha:
SINCE I AM A "KID," my opinion probably will be of little value. But I am rather tired of having the younger set referred to as juvenile delinquents. Perhaps if there were more means of counseling for these "kids" and their "silly" questions, there would be a great decrease in the number of delinquents.

Dear Martha:
TEEN-AGERS HAVE FEELINGS and minds which aren't nearly as empty as "Disgusted Reader" may think. Was "Disgusted Reader" put on earth as an adult? He or she was young once.

School at 14

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D. of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

FOURTEEN is ready for a change, a sizable change, which will satisfy his expansiveness. He also has a tremendous receptiveness for knowing more and doing more about himself. Given the proper school situation, he can indeed blossom. However, given the customary position of being a freshman in a four-year high school, he often not only becomes lost in the obscurity of his beginning, but may also spread himself too thin in the multiple attractions of high school.

Many administrators feel that in a junior high school situation, where Twelves, Thirteens and Fourteens are grouped together, the 14-year-old really comes to the top. Not just because he is placed in that position, but because he is truly capable of accepting the demands of such a position.

OTHER ADMINISTRATORS feel that Fourteen does best in a nine grade added to the usual eight grades. Here again he can blossom in his own right. Fourteen, it is true, in his expansiveness and enthusiasm is ready for many new things. But it does not follow that high school is among the new things from which he will most greatly profit.

A third possibility would be that Fourteen might be placed in a unit of his own, a truly self-sustaining unit just for 14-year-olds. In one town we know of this has been done with most unusual success.

Should Twelve and Thirteen be included in this separate unit as they are in the traditional junior high school unit? Twelve speaks out clearly for himself. He is not ready. He gets all mixed up moving constantly from one class to the next, always racing with time. It is no wonder that he runs in the corridors and chases his friends more than he would in a less demanding, less stimulating environment. He still needs the closer supervision of one teacher, instructing him in a number of different subjects. He needs to move back into younger realms as well as to push forward. Eleven-year-olds are good companions, and they in turn improve under the good influence of Twelve.

AS FOR THIRTEEN, he can fit in with Fourteen, but he's only on the brink of giving up childish things and fits in better with the slower tempo of the 11- and 12-year-old. He concentrates well but he isn't ready to be rushed. His intelligence increases as too much is demanded of him. He shows himself best at the top of the heap.

Many sharp criticisms may be leveled against the idea of providing a separate school for Fourteen. But if Fourteen might be allowed to experience such a contained unit and then could speak for himself, the odds are not only for his thriving under this experience but also for his convincing those in authority that it was a year never to be forgotten.

Something Extra in Hot Dogs

By Edith M. Barber

BOILED FRANKFURTERS WITH CHILI CON CARNE MAKE FOR THE KIND OF MEAL THAT STICKS TO THE RIBS. EXTRA FLAVOR CAN BE PROVIDED WITH A SLICED ONION.

ACCORDING to a reader, I have been neglecting frankfurters in this column. This was unintentional, I assure you. There is nothing more savory for a picnic meal or an easy supper at home than "hot dogs," the popular name for this type of smoked sausage.

Perhaps they have been overlooked because we are inclined to use such simple methods for their preparation. We boil them or grill them and that is all there is to it. Recently, however, I was served a hearty and very good combination of frankfurters and chili con carne. This type of dish, as the saying goes, sticks to the ribs.

It is easy to prepare, for a can of chili con carne furnishes the sauce that needs but to be heated before it is poured over the grilled frankfurters, which are arranged on toast. Chopped or sliced onion makes a contrasting garnish and, of course, adds flavor.

Another good frankfurter recipe calls for sitting the sausages lengthwise, spreading with mustard, and stuffing with thin slices of Swiss cheese and pickle relish. Each frankfurter is then wrapped in bacon and grilled or broiled.

They may then be put between halves of toasted frankfurters. They have the advantage of being appropriate for eating out-of-hand. This is convenient for an outdoor meal.

Spiraled Cheeseburgers
Eight frankfurters, two table-spoons prepared mustard, eight thin slices Swiss cheese (5"x

3/4"), three tablespoons sweet pickle relish, eight slices bacon, eight toasted frankfurter rolls. Partially slit frankfurters lengthwise. Spread with prepared mustard; insert a slice of cheese and some pickle relish. Wrap each frankfurter with a spiral of bacon; secure with toothpicks. Grill or broil, turning till bacon is crisp and franks are hot. Place each in a toasted frankfurter roll. Yield: Four servings.

Fix It Yourself

Good Time for Painting.
SOMEWHERE along this time of year most of us should be getting a spell of weather that is just about ideal for painting. We should be getting several weeks of nice, dry weather when it is neither too hot nor too cool. Several days of this weather will draw all the moisture out of outside woodwork and put it in perfect condition for painting.

The fact that the outside air is dry will mean that the paint will dry fairly quickly and the fact that there are not many flying insects about means that neither you nor the paint will be bothered by bugs. Paint can be bothered by heat just as much as by cold so this mild weather agrees with it just as with you.

If you've got any outside painting to do, do it now. In a few months we'll be getting temperatures of below fifty degrees and when it's this cold it's too cold for painting outside.

This is a good time of year for painting indoors too. You'll be able to keep doors and windows open to remove the odor of paint from the house and also to speed up the drying time of the paint. If you have gone through a pretty wet and humid summer, give your house a good airing out before you start painting. This will remove moisture from walls, ceilings and woodwork that might damage the paint and will also help reduce the overall moisture content of the house which will help prevent sweating walls and window glass come winter. Remember, that you should allow at least four days after a wet spell for outside painting.

Push-Button Home Is Fine, If They Work

By Ruth Millett

ALL these wonderful labor-saving devices that are supposed to take all the drudgery out of housework for the modern housewife do relieve her of a lot of backbreaking work. However, they also fill her life with frustrations.

Any housewife who has a so-called push-button home nearly always has at least one mechanical marvel that is out of whack or one that has to be replaced. And the frustrating part of the business is that trouble usually pops up at the most inconvenient moment.

The electric washer goes on the blink the day the family arrives home from a two-week automobile trip, their suitcases loaded with dirty clothes.

THE HOT-WATER HEATER bursts and floods the house just before out-of-town guests are due to arrive.

The thermostat on the oven of the electric stove goes berserk and mama goes overless for weeks while she waits for a new part from the factory.

Push-button living is fine, so long as all the buttons you push work. But we so quickly adjust our living standards to our labor-saving equipment that having a machine on the blink throws a monkey wrench into routine.

This is the frustrating side of the picture of the "completely automatic" home that nobody ever mentions. Even the housewife happily forgets it in those blissful interludes when every gadget is busy doing what it is supposed to do.

Ambassadors All

By Betty Beale

WASHINGTON.

WHETHER you call them "shambassadors" or ambassadors, those plush representatives of sovereign states with gorgeous colored sashes across their stiff shirt bosoms are still on the increase in the nation's capital.

It's not only that there's a new country born every year or so. It's because no nation these days, outside of the Swiss, wants to be represented by anything as unprepossessing sounding as a minister who presides over a mere legation instead of an embassy.

Now the littlest country of all (at least I believe it is) is getting a full-fledged ambassador in Washington, Hugues Le Galais, Minister from Luxembourg since 1940 and the only person on his staff—he and an able personal secretary take care of all of Luxembourg's business—has been made ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary from the picturesque duchy that has

Betty Beale

SO PERLE MESTA may have put Luxembourg on the map as its first American minister, but Wiley Buchanan gets the distinction of being its first ambassador, since this diplomatic business is reciprocal. Rumored as getting an ambassadorship to another country, he may now stick to his little Luxembourg.

The Republicans who criticized F.D.R. for raising all the "banana republics" south of the border to embassy ranks—that's when the term "shambassador" was born—will keep mum now. He did it to boost the "Good Neighbor" policy. Ike is giving Luxembourg this extra recognition because the country indicated it wanted it. Besides, it is an important NATO ally, a member of the Western European Union and headquarters for the vital European Coal and Steel Community.

Iceland, the only other NATO country with only a legation here, will be the next one to get an embassy.

Keep alert while you drive—chew gum!

Alert drivers are safe drivers. Avoid drowsiness and driving jitters. Chew gum while you're behind the wheel. Chewing helps relieve strain and tension—helps keep you fresh and alert. Chew any brand you like, but chew while you drive. Naturally we recommend refreshing, delicious Wrigley's Spearmint Gum—for lively, full-bodied flavor and real, smooth chewing enjoyment!
